Ottawa Youth Kicked to Death In Gang Fight

Fatal Brawl Outside Church
Follows Argument at Dance

OTTAWA (CP)—Rene Jodin, 17, died today from injuries suffered in a gang attack by a group of teenagers on a west-central Ottawa street.

Police were seeking at least 10 youths believed to have taken part in the attack on Jodin, his two brothers and two other youths.

Police said the attack occurred on the sidewalk in front of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church on Lebreton St.

The trouble began in the church hall during a youth organization dance. The row began inside when Jodin, his brother David, 19, and Maurice, 16, and two friends, Bob Clermont, 18 and Michael Morris, 19, all strangers to the neighborhood, arrived.

Rev. John Kumli who was helping supervise the dance, put a stop to the row. Jodin, his brothers and friends, left the hall but were followed to the street by a group of about 12 youths. The fight resumed and Rene Jodin, fell to the sidewalk, where he was kicked until unconscious.

Rev. John O'Neill, parish priest of the church, was "shocked." The dance was one of a series held in the hall each Friday night.

Father O'Neill said the Jodins and the two other youths were not members of the parish youth organization and apparently went to the dance uninvited. He was absent when the fight broke out.

'Dirty Look' Started Trouble

David Jodin, 19-year-old brother of the victim, said in an interview that the five went to the hall because the community centre they usually attended was closed for repairs.

"We were sitting down talking in French—we're all French boys—when a boy gave us a dirty look as he passed. He said in English 'what are you talking about.' We didn't pay any attention to him and then a little later we began to dance with some girls."

Bob Clermont, one of the Jodin party, said that while he was dancing with a girl another youth asked him "why we had tried to pick a fight with his friend—the guy who had made a face at us."

"I told him we hadn't tried to pick any fight, that we weren't looking for trouble, that we'd only come over to dance."

"Then this guy began pushing me around and then he swung on me and knocked me down and my wrist watch fell off."

"After his the priest told us to leave. We decided to leave, too, because we knew the boys were too many for us and we weren't looking for trouble."

"But when we got outside the gang followed us and there was about two of them for every one of us. We started to defend ourselves and during the fight Rene was knocked down. I saw someone kick him in the stomach."

SOCCER JINX STILL ALIVE

100,000, Queen See Aston Villa Win

(Times News Services) WEMBLEY, Eng. — A 60-year soccer jinx remained alive today as Aston Villa won the English Cup soccer final with a 2-1 victory over Manchester United at Wembley Stadium.

It was the Villa's seventh cup, a new record. Queen Elizabeth was among the 100,000 spectators who jammed Wembley Stadium in cool, overcast weather. Manchester U. was hoping to become the first team in 60 years to score the rare cup "double," by winning both the English League and the English Cup.

However, a mid-game injury to Manchester goalie Ray Wood prevented them from completing the second half of the double. (See story, Page 12).

Freak Power Failure As Plane Rips Lines

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Hundreds of washing-machine, drier and refrigerator motors lay dead in San Francisco Peninsula homes today, burned out in Friday's freak power failure.

A navy attack bomber, hedge-hopping through a canyon, cut two 220,000-volt power lines strung 500 feet above the canyon floor. Power sagged or failed in San Francisco and south 50 miles to San Jose through an area of 1,000,000 persons.

Navy Lieut. Harry Nyberg,

26, on a routine low-level practice mission, said there was an explosion when his plane cut the lines. He landed safely.

The effects were confusion compounded. Motors stopped or slowed. Radio stations' broadcast slow-motion gibberish as record turntables slowed. TV stations went off the air after their picture transmissions faded.

Dentists' drills slowed, then the motors started smoking. So did motors in hundreds of home electrical appliances.

100 GREET ST. LAURENT AT NANAIMO

By PETER MURRAY

NANAIMO—Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent arrived in Nanaimo today to start a two-day visit to Vancouver Island.

The prime minister arrived aboard the yacht Fifer at the Pacific Biological Station dock at Departure Bay.

Accompanied by Defence Minister Ralph Campney and Fisheries Minister James Sinclair, he drove to Nanaimo's new city hall where he was welcomed on the front steps by Mayor Peter Maffeo.

The prime minister made a brief address on the steps and paid particular attention to the children present. About 100 people were clustered in front of the building.

Mr. St. Laurent was introduced to Nanaimo civic officials and then went inside to sign the register.

Afterwards, he talked to many of the youngsters and shook hands with as many persons as possible before being driven to the Plaza Hotel where he was to address a Liberal luncheon.

The prime minister was to drive down-island during the afternoon and will speak tonight at the Royal Theatre in Victoria.

Overflow Crowd Hears Warning On Giveaways

By PETER MURRAY, Times Political Reporter

VANCOUVER—A clear statement of federal government policy on Columbia River hydro, coupled with a warning to B.C. against any power "giveaway," was made here Friday night by Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

Showing no effects from a strenuous day's campaigning, the prime minister addressed an overflow audience at Georgia Auditorium.

He repeated the offer to help finance Columbia development and made it clear the federal government would never agree to any "short-term bargain" deal with the U.S.

The federal plan is to help finance the project if British Columbia's Social Credit government decides it should be a public power scheme.

"The policy of this government is to prevent any improvident deal that would jeopardize B.C.'s long-term industrial development," Mr. St. Laurent said.

Although he did not specifically mention such proposals of the Social Credit government as the Kaiser Dam deal, it was obvious he had them in mind.

If B.C. agreed to treat the project as a national venture, financing could be done under a joint federal-provincial Crown company or by a purely federal company.

If B.C. decided, however, to have the power developed by private industry, then there would be no federal aid. The matter was up to B.C.

Standing Ovation by 2,500

Mr. St. Laurent was given a standing ovation by the crowd of 2,500 both before and after his hour-long address.

Another 200 persons heard the speech over the loudspeaker system in the basement, while 150 listened outside on the sidewalk.

The doors were closed at 7.45, some 15 minutes before the PM's arrival, and an estimated 400 people drifted away after finding they couldn't get in. Mr. St. Laurent made a brief unscheduled talk to the overflow before entering the hall.

Inside, he was heckled repeatedly during his speech but took it good-naturedly, firing off some quick retorts that won applause from the audience.

Most of the heckling occurred during the first part of the prime minister's speech when he developed his theme that "Liberal government has been good for Canada" by listing past achievements and outlining a program for the future.

There were few interruptions during his final remarks on the Columbia, which were considered by observers to be a major policy statement.

Loud applause greeted the prime minister's assertion that although B.C.'s hydro power potential is vast, it is not unlimited and "we have nothing to spare or give away."

Cheap and plentiful electricity is the province's best guarantee of a flourishing economy in the future, Mr. St. Laurent said.

"This province has one of the world's most marvellous water systems. We must not fail to develop to the full its enormous power potential."

Of all the projects in which the federal government is participating in B.C., including the Trans-Canada Highway, Stewart-Cassiar Road and Alaska Highway, the Columbia would be "the greatest of all."

Strong Stand in U.S. Talks

The prime minister indicated his government will take a strong stand in current negotiations with the U.S. government over Columbia development and downstream benefits.

"Under the Boundary Waters Treaty of 1909 Canada preserves legal rights of the most sweeping kind with regard to rivers like the Columbia," he said.

But he added that Canada "will not take a dog-in-the-manger stand against the development of resources that will benefit our good neighbor."

Repeating statements made by Fisheries Minister James Sinclair and Resources Minister Jean Lesage in the Commons on the federal offer of financial aid, Mr. St. Laurent emphasized it is up to the provincial government to decide between public and private power.

"We wanted our views clearly set out so that the government of British Columbia could give full consideration to them in its planning of this power development," the prime minister said.

If it decides on public power, "the federal government is prepared to treat the development of the Columbia River as a national project because it would benefit not only the citizens of British Columbia but all Canadians."

The PM charged that opposition election promises are a "mere cream-puff of a thing."

"Since our Liberal program, while big, has no room in it for election promises, it might, to that extent, be less spectacular than an opposition election program prettied up to attract votes."

"But an election promise, after all, is a mere cream-puff of a thing—with more air than substance in it."

Mr. St. Laurent said the only election promise he would make is that the "best is yet to be."

He invited British Columbia to vote Liberal June 10 and help increase the province's influence in shaping Canadian progress.

Earlier in the day, Mr. St. Laurent said.

WIRE BRIEFS

Public Aid Urged

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Hungarian Relief Council, grouping city and volunteer organization representatives, says the "general refugee situation has produced a local emergency" and asked for public aid. At an emergency session Friday night, prompted by reports of overcrowding at the Hungarian refugee camp in Abbotsford, B.C., the council appealed to the public to help in housing refugees.

Douks Ask to Go

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver Province says that British Columbia's 2,500 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors have officially asked the Soviet government to allow the entire sect to re-locate inside Russia, Asia.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Our Father God, we would remember all that we have shared in our homes, the laughter, sympathy, companionship and protection. Today may we bring to the homes in which we live Christ's spirit of truth, love and service. May Christ be the Unseen Guest in every home. In His name may we keep home life more simple, family life more pure, and so make community life more safe. Amen.

CPR Derailment

PORT MOODY, B.C. (CP)—Four cars and the engine of a CPR freight train were derailed here Friday night when they struck an abandoned car at a level crossing. No one was injured in the mishap but CPR trains today were delayed. Passengers were brought to Vancouver by bus.

Boot Spark Blamed

VANCOUVER (CP)—A spark from a worker's boot is believed responsible for a fire which badly damaged a chemical warehouse on the Vancouver waterfront Friday night. Four men fled to safety when the fire broke out in the Commercial Chemical Co. warehouse.

LIVELY VANCOUVER RALLY

PM Offers Heckler Passport to China

By Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—Prime Minister St. Laurent Friday night offered a heckler a passport to China at his big Georgia Street auditorium rally.

The fast exchange came when the prime minister talked of trade, and Canada's decision to open new negotiations with Australia, New Zealand and the members of the future Caribbean federation.

The heckler, who later described himself as an unemployed, 52-year-old CCFer, cried: "What about trade with China?"

To this, Mr. St. Laurent smoothly replied:

"Would you like a passport to China?"

The crowd roared with laughter and applauded.

LIVELY MEETING

The Liberal leader's quick retorts produced the liveliest meeting of the campaign.

When Mr. St. Laurent spoke of full employment, and the heckler cried that he'd been without work for five months, the prime minister replied:

"There is full employment for those who really want to work."

After the rally, the heckler, who wouldn't give his name, became involved in a scuffle in the aisle with a zealous Liberal supporter, but it didn't amount to much.

When Mr. St. Laurent spoke of the Trans-Canada natural gas pipeline, another voice from the floor shouted:

"Hurrah for Tanner! Hurrah for Tanner!"

This was a reference to Nathan Tanner, president of the Trans-Canada Pipeline Company who was reported to have made large paper profits from the Weather like this ought t' assure any MP of another four years in office.

LOUDSPEAKERS SET FOR OVERFLOW CROWD

An overflow meeting is expected at the Royal Theatre at 8 tonight when Prime Minister St. Laurent makes his only public speech of the election campaign in Victoria.

Loudspeakers are being installed outside the theatre to relay the speeches to persons standing outside.

With Mr. St. Laurent on the platform will be Dr. F. T. Fairley, Victoria MP in the last parliament; Defence Minister R. O. Campney; F. W. Wilfert, Liberal candidate for Nanaimo; Alistair Fraser, Liberal candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich.

Laurent was questioned by reporters on Premier Bennett's objection that he had received no official word of the Columbia power offer.

Asked if he planned to write Mr. Bennett, the prime minister replied:

WON'T SAY

"I am not going to say how it is going to be handled. There is more than one way for people who want to do a good job getting together—not this way or that way but any way that will get us together and get good results for the Canadian people."

The prime minister was introduced at the evening rally by Defence Minister Ralph Campney, who said:

"No Canadian prime minister in all our history is more respected and beloved from one end of this country to the other than Louis St. Laurent."

The prime minister opened with a review of Liberal policies over the past few years.

SAVING

Tax reductions since 1953 have resulted in a saving of $175,000,000 to Canadian taxpayers this year, while the country's debt is being steadily reduced.

Annual cost of defence has been cut by more than $100,000,000 since 1953.

By granting more money to the provinces in new tax-rental agreements, the Liberal party "shows that it stands firm for provincial rights and firm against centralization."

In the field of social security, Liberal policy is to "move ahead as far as this country can afford," the prime minister said.

OUTSTANDING

He described the new hospital insurance program as "the outstanding Liberal social measure of recent years."

The PM also made these points:

1. The Senate inquiry into land use was a form of "educational" process to be followed by federal measures to make sure that Canadian food production does not fall behind consumption needs.

2. He still hoped to make progress in getting the provinces to agree to make the Canadian constitution completely amendable in Canada on federal-provincial and provincial matters.

3. The Gordon commission's economic forecasts, while extremely optimistic, may be "somewhat pale and timid" to what Canada actually achieves in the next 25 years.

The Liberal leader covered a lot of ground in his 14-hour Vancouver tour, visiting the City Halls of Vancouver and North Vancouver, the Shaughnessy Military Hospital, suburban Burnaby, the new city post office and the North Vancouver Community Centre.

He was cheerful; his step was vigorous and his voice was firm. At Vancouver's North Shore Laurier Club, he hinted he may still be in the political arena in 1961, at the age of 79.

He was wearing the same grey felt that he wore in the 1953 fight. He had had it cleaned for the 1957 battle "and after this campaign, I want to use it in the next one and I think I will be doing that."

... HECKLERS COLDWELL ON PRAIRIES

public sale of the company's shares.

To this Mr. St. Laurent replied that he did not know Mr. Tanner personally. But one thing he was sure—the Liberal government would do everything appropriate to encourage private enterprise. It was only when private enterprise did not step in to undertake a project that the federal government took action of its own.

He also was invited from the floor to talk about the suicide of Herbert Norman, Canadian ambassador to Cairo, but the prime minister ignored the shouts of "Talk about Norman! Talk about Norman!"

As the meeting ended, one of the hecklers was shouldered by a younger man. Newspapersmen stepped in to break up the clash.

When Mr. St. Laurent mentioned the name of Trade Minister C. D. Howe in connection with the government's attempts to expand trade with other countries, some of the audience hissed.

There was also scattered laughter when Mr. St. Laurent said it was Liberal policy to encourage the building of more houses.

The prime minister, interrupted while describing the new hospital insurance program as "the outstanding Liberal social measure of recent years," became a bit nettled.

"I'm glad there are a lot of people who enjoy Social Credit, even though their ethics are not the kind that would be recommended by an ordinary social etiquette book," he said.

LET HIM STAY

When a cry went up in the hall that a particularly persistent heckler be thrown out, the prime minister said:

"Oh, I don't think he should be put out, in spite of his interruptions. If he listens to anything at all, he may improve."

Mr. St. Laurent was cheered when he silenced the same interrupter with:

"Don't you think it's strange that you don't get more applause?"

The meeting started with the so far unprecedented happening at the prime minister's public appearances on this campaign—a sing-song.

Three local professional performers slipped a bass, squeezed an accordion and crooned the latest, and some old, hit tunes.

Farmers Poorer
Than in Thirties

SASKATOON (CP) — CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell said Friday night he has found people in his constituency of Rosetown-Biggar "harder pressed for cash than they had been in the 1930s."

He visited the agricultural riding earlier in the week.

Mr. Coldwell made the statement in a television broadcast. Appearing with him was R. R. Knight, CCF candidate for Saskatoon.

Farm prices across Canada have fallen in the last few years, Mr. Coldwell said. Farmers a few years ago received 12 per cent of the national income; now they get 7 per cent. Meanwhile, costs continued to rise.

Defining the difference between floor prices for farm products, and parity prices, which the CCF is advocating, Mr. Coldwell said that parity prices, which the CCF advocates for farm products, would be based on the relationship between cost of production and what the producer receives.

He said he hopes the day will come when all Canadians have a comprehensive health plan. Everyone was entitled to full medical and hospital treatment. It should be as free as education is to children attending public schools. The CCF would not stop advocating this.

He described the proposed federal hospital insurance plan as the most important legislation of the last session of Parliament. But, he said, it was a feeble step when it is remembered that the Liberals, as long ago as 1919, promised a national health plan.

TO QUIT AFTER
ONE MORE TERM

SASKATOON (CP) — M. J. Coldwell, national leader of the CCF party, said Friday he will probably retire after another term of office.

Mr. Coldwell, 68, declined to name any possible candidates for his office on his retirement.

Mr. Coldwell was first elected to the House in 1935 and became leader of the CCF in the Commons in 1940.

The proposed federal plan did not cover the largest group in hospitals in Canada—mental and tuberculosis patients.

"Our popularizing of the Saskatchewan hospital plan is one reason the federal government has adopted its plan," he said. Provinces with Liberal administrations had been slow to join.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gilbert Campbell, 50-year-old Vancouver fireman, Friday was sentenced to seven years in prison for dealing in a forged document.

Campbell was found guilty by an Assize Court jury April 16 of dealing in the forged $900,000 will of hotel owner James Thomson, who died in 1948.

Mr. Justice J. G. Rutan imposed the sentence. At the trial Mr. Justice Rutan directed the jury to dismiss a forgery charge against Campbell after a handwriting expert testified he could not positively identify Campbell's signature as that which appeared on the will.

A third charge of attempting to defraud the Thomson heirs was dropped. Campbell's lawyer, Thomas Dohm, filed notice of appeal against the conviction.

'Meet Any Attack'
NATO Tells Reds

BONN (UP) — The United States and its NATO allies warned Russia Friday night that they will meet any attack with "all available means," including H-bombs.

A strongly-worded communique at the close of the pact council's two-day meeting here flatly rejected the Kremlin's efforts to frighten America's European allies into excluding H-weapons from their soil.

The communique said the Russians are merely trying to establish "a monopoly of nuclear weapons on the European continent."

"Such a situation clearly could not be accepted," it said.

"The Atlantic Alliance must be in a position to use all available means to meet any attack which might be launched against it," the communique added. "It is the availability of

Inco Research helps Canada grow

A vast network of Inco mines and plants now obtains copper. Millions are being spent each year for Inco research 14 elements from ore once thought to contain only to recover new products and develop better methods.

NEW WEALTH FOR CANADA FROM INCO ORES

Inco Research finds ways to recover 14 different elements from Inco's Sudbury ores

IMAGINE—14 elements from one ore deposit! But it wasn't always that way. At first Inco ore was mined for one metal—copper. It turned out that the ore contained more nickel than copper. To make use of the ore at all, research had to work out a method of separating the nickel from the copper.

Since that time, Inco research has developed ways of recovering twelve other elements, most of which are present in the ore in minute quantities.

Gold and silver came first, recovered from the sludge left after refining nickel and copper. Then one after another came platinum, palladium, rhodium, ruthenium and iridium; selenium and tellurium.

Sulphur gases are recovered in large and increasing quantities for conversion into industrial products.

After several years of cobalt oxide production, electrolytic cobalt was added to the list of Inco products. In 1955, a 19-million dollar plant was built to obtain exceptionally high-grade iron ore previously lost in the slag.

Thus does Inco research continue to develop new products and processes that help stimulate the growth of Canadian industry and provide jobs for Canadians.

500 File Past Bier
Of Sen. McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP)—About 500 persons filed through a funeral home here Friday night to view the body of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy.

A folded American flag lay on a pew at the foot of the casket, which was flanked by two marines.

Some wept as they viewed the body of the controversial Wisconsin Republican who died Thursday of a liver ailment.

McCarthy's body will lie in state at the funeral home through Sunday. After a service in the Senate chamber Monday the remains will be flown to Appleton, Wis., for burial Tuesday. Preceding the Senate service, a high mass will be celebrated at St. Matthew's Cathedral.

Most of those who visited the funeral home were elderly. The group included only two senators.

One woman repeatedly told those approaching the casket: "People were a little bit too late showing how they felt. Here we are—flags at half-staff, even at the White House."

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said Friday that flying the flag at half-staff was "automatic" when a member of Congress died. Flags were displayed in that fashion at the White House as well as at President Eisenhower's farm home at Gettysburg, Pa.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By DINAH KERR and IRVING STRICKLAND

Question: "Which party do you think will win the federal election?"

Bill Findlay, owner, James Bay Hardware, Metehosin Road: "I'd rather not commit myself on this. Maybe the Liberals will win again, but it'll be a tough race. The Liberals are the most powerful of the parties."

James Dool, merchant marine, 125 Croft Street: "I don't know. I hear the CCF will reduce income taxes by 50 per cent—I think I read that somewhere. Don't know whether I'll vote for them or not, though. I go along with the crowd."

Kay Deacon, 5 Alma Place: "I think the Liberals will get in, but really I don't take much interest in politics. I'm afraid."

Mrs. Frank Sarginson, 527 Niagara Street: "Let's hope the best party gets in, and that it'll be better than the last government."

Mrs. C. Begley, 117 Oswego: "I think the Liberals will go in again just as strong as before. I'd like to see that. I don't think many Secreds will win seats."

Lawrence Crosthwaite, sailor, 423 1/2 Parry: "The Liberals will come back in again, but not as strong this year. John Diefenbaker's doing all right back East but I don't know how he's doing out here. I think he'll try for a coalition government myself."

Diefenbaker Says Chignecto Plan Should Be Part of Seaway System

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Investigation of the feasibility of a Chignecto canal connecting the Bay of Fundy and Northumberland Strait was promised Friday night by John Diefenbaker if a Progressive Conservative government is elected.

"Our intention is to give it the widest possible investigation," the Conservative leader said before an audience of more than 1,000.

The canal, long talked about, would cut across the Chignecto isthmus joining New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. It would shorten the shipping route from ports like Saint John to St. Lawrence River and Great Lakes ports.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he considers the canal part of the St. Lawrence seaway system. The survey would determine "whether the dream of past generations can become the reality of the future."

He presented the proposal as part of a Conservative national development policy which he said would provide for expansion of Canada in close co-operation with the provinces.

Biggest Crowd in Week of Campaigning

His audience almost filled a large downtown theatre in the centre of this metropolitan area of 75,000 persons. It was the largest crowd since the start of his campaign tour a week ago Thursday in Toronto, and included delegates at a conference here of the province's Young Progressive Conservative Association.

Premier Hugh John Fleming, who moved Mr. Diefenbaker's nomination at last December's party leadership convention in Ottawa, introduced the leader as "a man who will make a great prime minister."

Remove Inequities Retarding Maritimes

Mr. Diefenbaker, on the second last day of a week-long tour of the three Maritime provinces, made two speeches in Charlotte constituency at St. George and at St. Stephen. Charlotte has been a Liberal riding since 1935 and was won in the 1953 election by 975 votes. At St. Stephen Mr. Diefenbaker spoke of Maritime rights and said the eastern provinces should not be "back-benchers in a confederation of equals."

MILAN, Italy (Reuters)—A court has ruled that a husband is not guilty of abandoning his wife if he builds a wall through the middle of his home and lives on the other side of it.

The court rejected charges brought by a Milanese wife that her husband abandoned her.

"He didn't leave entirely," she said. "He built a wall in our apartment and lived behind it." The husband told the court that his wife terrorized him. "She insulted me and beat me," he said.

Drinking Probed In School Annex

PRINCE GEORGE—Charges will likely be preferred against a Prince George youth following a request by the board of school trustees for police investigation into alleged drinking within the school dormitory.

Reports of liquor allegedly being brought into the building by a non-student resulted in the expulsion of two Grade 10 students recently.

Both students were subsequently reinstated upon the recommendation of senior high school principal Lorne Downey, but they have been denied participation in extra-curricular school activities. One of these students involved has been dismissed from the dormitory.

Consultations between the parents of the two students and school board members revealed the name of the third youth who is alleged to have brought the liquor into the school-operated dormitory.

(From CP Dispatches)
HUNDRED-MILE HOUSE—Marc Lane, eight, swam 300 yards through turbulent, icy water to rescue his three-year-old brother from the flood-swollen waters of Buffalo Creek, near here.

Hearing the cries of another brother, Jimmy, 6, Marc saw his youngest brother Danny struggling 150 yards from shore.

Only when Marc was near the water's edge with Danny did the boys' father, Tom Lane, know of the rescue. He dashed into the creek and brought both lads to shore.

Marc has, in the past two years, saved both his sister and a young resident of Buffalo Creek from drowning.

FISHERMAN DROWNED

VANCOUVER — A fishing boat skipper was drowned in Howe Sound Friday.

Robert Hobbs, 72, plunged over the side of his fishing vessel, the Western Fisher, after he stumbled on a roller-bar on the deck.

Crew members who saw the accident tried to pull the heavy man from the water. Eventually a gaff was used to bring Mr. Hobbs back into the boat, but by then he had been in the water for seven minutes.

Seaman Bill Welch applied artificial respiration for 20 minutes without success.

Comet With Two Tails Puzzles World's Leading Astronomers

By DIAL TORGERSON
PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Arend-Roland sped on its way out of the solar system today, leaving astronomers a puzzle: The mystery of the comet with two tails.

At its brightest last week, the comet boasted a headlight shining into outer space—a peculiar jet of light piercing the sky from the comet's head.

"A comet's tail points away from the sun," explained Dr. Seth Nicholson of Mount Wilson Observatory, near Pasadena. "This comet had a tail pointing away from the sun, but it had another tail, too—a long, slender jet of light pointing toward the sun."

STILL VISIBLE

The comet still is visible to the naked eye. It can be seen throughout the northern hemisphere at dusk in the northwest sky. But the headlight-like spike of light has vanished.

Dr. Jesse Greenstein of the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, theorizes that the material comprising the jet was used up when the comet passed close to the sun.

"Normally, the light pressure from the sun forces the evaporating gases from the comet off in the opposite direction from the sun."

"In this case the fountain of stuff reached out toward the sun, instead of away from it. We don't know why, and we don't know what kind of stuff it was."

"But whatever it was, it was apparently boiled out by the pressure of the sun."

The big comet passed between the earth and the sun. It was 30,000,000 miles from the sun and 50,000,000 miles from the earth at its closest point.

Astronomers the world over are expected to offer theories on the light-spike tail.

When will it return? "It could be 10,000 years or 100,000 years," said Dr. Greenstein. "It may never have been seen by man before."

Safety in Saanich

FOR A MAN OF HONOR GENERAL Pearkes, VC, is remarkably careless with the facts. It is unfortunate that he feels compelled to drag the nation's foreign policy into partisan debate and inexcusable that he should misrepresent that policy.

Speaking in Saanich this week, General Pearkes uttered a sequence of inaccuracies, all of them calculated to denigrate Canada in foreign eyes.

He said, first, that the Canadian Government had been so critical of Britain in its note to London during the Suez crisis that it had "never dared to make public" this document.

General Pearkes knows very well why the Canadian note was not made public since the facts were explained to Parliament in his hearing.

When Mr. Diefenbaker asked if this document would be published, Mr. St. Laurent explained that it could be published only with the consent of the British Government, which had refused its consent.

Obviously, candid and friendly relations between Ottawa and London would become impossible if their confidential communications on international matters were revealed to the world and to our foreign enemies.

Mr. Diefenbaker accepted that explanation in Parliament. Safely out of Ottawa, General Pearkes raises the question again where there is no Government to answer him.

Apart from the question of secrecy, how does Gen. Pearkes know the contents of the Canadian note? Either he has seen it or he has not seen it. If he has seen it, obviously it has been shown to him in confidence. Is he breaking that confidence, or putting words in the Government's mouth?

Then he goes on to say that under the Government's foreign policy Canada has suffered "years of bitter and humiliating experiences" when he knows very well, if he reads the world's press, especially the press of Britain, that Canada's international reputation has never stood so high as it stands today.

"We (the Conservatives) believe," says General Pearkes, "in the Commonwealth and staying by our old friend (Britain)." The Government, on the other hand meekly follows the "unrealistic policies of the United States."

In other words, the Government is accused of deserting Britain when, in fact, it moved swiftly and decisively to help Britain out of an impossible situation at Suez. General Pearkes knows that the Canadian attitude was approved by at least half of the British people who were opposed to the Suez intervention and was warmly appreciated also by the British Government.

It is quite true that the Canadian Government did not approve the intervention and believed it would fail, as it did fail, with serious consequences to Britain. But it offered no moral judgments on British policy and all its efforts, through Mr. Pearson at the United Nations, were designed to liquidate the impossible situation at Suez and to heal a dangerous breach in the Commonwealth and the Western alliance.

General Pearkes is trying to tell us that the Canadian Government should have automatically supported British policy, whether it was wise or unwise, whether it was in the interests of the Commonwealth and the Western alliance or not.

He is perfectly entitled to argue that Canada should have no foreign policy of its own and should be automatically committed to British policy, whatever its own views and interests may be. But he will not find many Canadians taking that view.

Next, General Pearkes charges the Government with "fanning the fires of the Middle East" when he knows that Mr. Pearson devised the solution which, though far from perfect (because Mr. Pearson could get nothing better out of the United Nations) rescued the Middle East from conflagration.

In a final sophistry General Pearkes argues that the United States has lately been doing in Jordan exactly what Britain and France did in Suez and this time, he says, Canada makes no complaint.

He knows, of course, that the two actions are by no means parallel but to argue the differences between them is not only bootless now but must only rub salt into old wounds and foment frictions happily past.

General Pearkes, in short, is playing decidedly shabby politics with our usually bipartisan foreign policy even at the cost of distorting the record.

After using hit-and-run tactics in Parliament, the Conservatives dropped the Suez issue like a hot potato at their convention in December. Not a word was said about it by General Pearkes or anyone else when the nation was watching the convention by television. Only in the safety of Saanich does General Pearkes venture to raise and distort this issue again.

Senator Joseph McCarthy

DEATH HAS COME AS AN anti-climax to United States Senator Joseph McCarthy. Though he retained his elective office, his destructively effective public life ceased when his colleagues of the Senate passed on him their vote of censure.

He leaves as a legacy a word in the language: "McCarthyism," the synonym for dark, shabby action that has destroyed people through faceless accusers, ordeal by slander and the diseases of mistrust familiar to the witch-hunt.

This was the man who spread human misery and fear in his ruthless drive for power—the man who fed his ego with the victims of his attacks and presumed a strength sufficient to challenge his president.

After their time of frenzy, the American people saw through Senator McCarthy, exposed him to the light of truth and so destroyed him.

Mr. Bohlen Going to Elba?

HOW WASHINGTON SELECTS and moves its ambassadors to various world capitals is the business of the United States. It is a process, however, which is not without interest to the United States' friends.

Members of the western community accept the leadership of the United States. How that leadership functions, for better or for worse, can depend to a substantial degree on the effectiveness of the ambassadors the United States places in centres of importance and delicacy.

Because of their place in the international picture, the present brisk movement among American ambassadors is a matter of concern to other western nations. Particularly is this the case in the transfer of Mr. Charles E. Bohlen.

Mr. Bohlen has been the unquestioned leader of the western corps in Moscow. By latest shifts, he goes to Manila. The American who enjoyed widespread respect among his colleagues-of-other-nations, and even from the leaders of the Kremlin, is removed from the sphere where he seemed best able to do the most good.

It is distressing to hear the explanation of American observers on this change. The Bohlen transfer, some authorities say, is due to Mr. Dulles' personal reasons.

But if this causes concern, there is a lighter element in the explanation for the appointment of one-time security officer Scott McLeod to the Republic of Ireland.

"The McLeod appointment is generally approved in the (U.S.) foreign service," writes Joseph C. Harsch in The Christian Science Monitor, "on the ground that Mr. McLeod can do less harm in Dublin than as security officer of the whole service."

Perhaps the Irish will appreciate that point.

Sasquatch, Here We Come!

THE B.C. CENTENNIAL COMMITTEE has offered a prize of $5,000 to the first person to find a genuine Sasquatch in British Columbia. The offer holds good from January 1 to December 31, 1958, but the actual date of the finding may be confidently predicted. The Sasquatch will be found on April 1.

As in the case of Sir Harry Lauder's widely publicized prize for the first person to swim the Atlantic, the announced $5,000 is scandalously low. The reward should be at least $5,000,000, and so advertised by the committee. The ultimate net costs to the officials will be the same in any case, so why be pikers—and in our centennial year too!

Sasquatches, like gold, are where you find them, so that the committee has acted rightly in not limiting the search to any specified area of the province. However it is in error in saying that "a Sasquatch hunt can hardly be classified as a permanent project..." What could be more permanent?

LOOSE ENDS

After a Strange Journey Uncle Louie Comes to Town

PRIME Minister Louis St. Laurent arrives in this town today by a strange, circuitous and chancey route. His journey, you might say, began at the funeral of Ernest Lapointe in the winter of 1941.

Mackenzie King had buried his closest friend and most powerful ally, who seemed irreplaceable. Who could possibly succeed the great French Canadian statesman? Mixed with King's grief was the knowledge that the Government and Liberal Party had lost an essential pillar in the darkest days of the war.

On the funeral train, as it returned to Ottawa, King pondered that question at one of the darkest moments of his life. Suddenly C. G. Power, the Quebec minister who had no French Canadian blood, but the affection of all the Quebec people, ventured a suggestion. Why not call in a man named St. Laurent? Who, asked King, was St. Laurent?

Power could say only that St. Laurent was the leading lawyer of Quebec and apparently a Liberal. King knew nothing of this man or his politics. Indeed, St. Laurent's politics were so little known that Arthur Meighen had once invited him into a Conservative cabinet.

King was little impressed by Power's suggestion but, after a weekend's consideration could think of nothing better. He picked up his telephone and called a house in Quebec City on Dec. 4.

No Escape

St. Laurent answered the telephone and, returning to his dinner table, told his wife that King wished to see him in Ottawa next day. Mrs. St. Laurent, with a woman's instinct, at once guessed the meaning of the Prime Minister's invitation and implored her husband not to enter politics.

But after he had seen King in Ottawa there was no escape. St. Laurent was sworn in as minister of justice on the understanding that he would be released as soon as the war was over. Of course there could be no easy release for such a man.

At first the new minister made little impression on an Ottawa, a government and a nation fully occupied with the war. St. Laurent went quietly about his business, spoke little in cabinet, showed no interest in politics and yearned for private life while he and Mrs. St. Laurent camped temporarily in a little apartment where she cooked his meals.

King began slowly to suspect, however, that in St. Laurent he had found a successor. He was sure of it in the great crisis of 1944 when the quiet Quebec lawyer stood by him in supporting conscription and thus, apparently, smashed his own career.

Power, the wounded veteran of the first war, resigned on that issue and thus, with highest honor, kept his pledge to his electors. Cardin resigned also. St. Laurent had given no pledge against conscription, he saw its necessity and he supported it.

If nearly everyone, including St. Laurent, believed that his career had been smashed in Quebec, King thought differently. So it turned out. In 1949 St. Laurent won the largest national majority since Confederation. He held it with small losses in 1953. He seeks his third majority now.

Unique Career

Obviously his career, whatever you may think of it, has been unique in Canada. All his eleven predecessors were professional politicians of long apprenticeship. He began, without apprenticeship, and after eight years of office is still an amateur today. I mean that the game of politics, which obsessed such men as Macdonald, Laurier, King and Bennett, has never appealed to St. Laurent. He has never truly mastered it as a game or wished to master it. Yet he is one of only five prime ministers, among the dozen in our history, who has mastered the nation.

To be chosen prime minister and master of a government is one thing. It is a very different thing, as seven prime ministers have found, to master the nation. Mastery has gone only to Macdonald, Laurier, Borden, King and St. Laurent. It escaped even Meighen whose intellectual gifts were seldom, if ever, equalled.

The interesting question, in St. Laurent's last election campaign, is how the amateur succeeded where so many professionals failed. None of his colleagues could answer that question. I feel quite sure (though I do not know him as I know King) that St. Laurent himself could give no answer.

Grave Disabilities

Certainly he began with grave disabilities, both of history and temperament. Apparently he had ruined himself in Quebec by supporting conscription. After the acute racial frictions of 1941, it seemed unlikely that a French Canadian, almost unknown outside his own province, could possibly appeal to English-speaking Canada.

Moreover, in his public image, he seemed to be a rather dull, factual man, a man of law, at home in the courts and quite out of place in the brawls of politics. His first speech as Liberal leader, in Montreal—a speech on the constitution—was a famous flop. Power, the ablest politician of our time, listened to it and was appalled. He advised St. Laurent to throw away the British North America Act, forget the law and talk to the people in their own language. But no one thought he would, or could.

His Rediscovery

Then, at a farmers' picnic, on Manitoulin Island a few weeks later, something happened. The stiff, unbending lawyer stood up and talked to the farmers and their wives and he talked in their own language. His colleagues discovered that day the small-town boy from rural Quebec. And perhaps St. Laurent had rediscovered himself. He began to enjoy his job.

At any rate, that was the start of St. Laurent's mastery of Canada, the first chapter of the Uncle Louie legend. Like all legends, it has a core of truth and a large ingredient of fiction.

There is an Uncle Louie, a kindly man who worships his family, spoils his grandchildren, is happiest in his home, loves to go fishing and is an enthusiastic, indifferent swimmer.

His strength in politics begins with those common, human qualities. They have won for him a devotion in his cabinet never enjoyed by King or by any prime minister except Laurier and Macdonald. When everyone in Ottawa began to call him The Old Man, his mastery of government was complete. When the public began to understand him as a human being and forgot the constitutional lawyer, his mastery of the electorate was assured.

False Legend

Just the same, the Uncle Louie legend is in many ways false and almost ridiculous. Under the exquisite manners and the avuncular look one soon encounters a very tough mind and an exceedingly shy person.

His reticence makes King look, in retrospect, like a wild exhibitionist. His candor in public affairs is balanced by an invulnerable privacy in personal affairs. He is friendly with everyone, intimate with very few, even in his cabinet. Once the line of privacy is reached, a hard look comes into his eyes, the smile freezes and an iron curtain comes down with an audible metallic rattle. He has never surrendered his private to his public life.

This man is not a genius, as Macdonald, Laurier and King were geniuses of politics.

King, for example, reached all his conclusions by intuition solely and then retired to prepare laborious factual arguments in support of them. This also seems to have been the method of Macdonald and Laurier. It is not St. Lau-rent's method. He never relies on inspiration.

His method is to assemble the facts, to take them home with him, study the documents, add up the figures and, far more rapidly than any of his colleagues, to see the essential point. Probably no mind in Ottawa has ever worked so fast or so easily gutted a state paper. We tend to forget, as we watch the genial peregrinations of Uncle Louie, that fifty years of law and business trained him, like a physician, in the whole anatomy of the Canadian state.

This knowledge is one of his primary assets, though it is probably the least known. A still larger asset, though it may seem a liability, is the openness of his mind.

Lacked Prejudices

All his predecessors, notably King, came to office with fixed ideas, prejudices and the accumulated hatreds of party warfare. St. Laurent was such a stranger to these things that no one could quite classify him in the categories of politics.

To some he appeared a conservative masquerading as a liberal. Yet he is now completing King's old dream of the welfare state. To others he was a secret radical, masquerading as a conservative.

The truth, I imagine, is that St. Laurent was assembling the facts with an open mind and acting on them, pragmatically, as seemed best to him. If this is his method it is also the historic, collective method of the Canadian nation.

If the open mind is an asset; this man, like all men, has his liabilities. He is no orator like Lapointe, Meighen and Laurier. Unlike King, he is an indifferent actor, has no talent for intrigue and dislikes quarrels, one of King's chief enjoyments. Often he is not ruthless enough for his own protection. The quick razor stroke, King's weapon, is hateful to him even when it is required.

Sometimes he is far too patient and then suddenly he blows up in a fit of Irish temper. King blew up, too, but always in private while he was all sweet reasonableness in public. St. Laurent's blow-ups are invariably public and make headlines. His gaucheries are never concealed.

Highly Typical

Some of these storms unquestionably have damaged him and must be bitterly regretted, but they are soon past. For essentially this is a placid, uncomplicated, simple man quite unlike the typical party leader, but highly typical of the nation as a whole.

That, I suppose, is the real reason for his success. With all his assets and liabilities he is the average man writ large, the undoubtedly big man who somehow remains Uncle Louie.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

Wedding Parties, 'Shivarees' and the U ninvited Guests

ONE of the most interesting, if barbaric, customs of the small fry when we were very young in Victoria was the "shivaree," as we called this strange phenomenon. It was simply an established but unhallowed tradition that called for a sort of serenade of buffoonery at house weddings.

The mechanics of the "shivaree" were simple enough, too. They entailed the discovery that a wedding was to take place in our neighborhood on a certain date and at a certain time. Then we young savages descended on the hapless people armed with tin cans, pans, rusty iron bars and anything that would make loud and raucous noises. We would converge on the house yelling out: "shivaree . . . shivaree . . . shivaree."

Apparently the intrusion was expected for I remember no occasion on which we failed to leave the premises laden with loot in the form of cakes, cookies, candies and fruit doled out by some member of the wedding party.

The wonder is that this weird rite was taken in such good part by people to whom it must have been an almost intolerable nuisance.

There were slight risks, of course, but not involving the "shivaree" or the persons concerned with the wedding. The risk was run in coming home to get a proper "wiggling" from mother for demeaning the family's good name by such outlandish conduct and a second scolding for not doing justice to a well-prepared supper.

Many years after I learned that "shivaree" was a corruption of a French word—"charivari." On looking this up in the erudite Encyclopaedia Britannica I found that it is a "word of obscure origin"—which I can well believe—and that it is "probably onomatopoeic." This mouthful of syllables, according to the Webster dictionary, simply means "the naming of a thing by a more or less exact reproduction of the sound of the thing."

Now this may not be in the category of useful information but it somehow partakes of the character of the whole strange business of the "shivaree" as exemplified in our early days. I am happy to learn that the custom has died out probably because the onomatopoeia became altogether too realistic—in sound. I imagine that our sound effects were pretty good and might well have aroused the envy of present-day sound effects men on radio and television programs, and I am quite sure that we felt no compunction whatever in creating a bedlam of discordance at what should be a very solemn though happy occasion.

Indeed we would often sit on the sidewalk opposite the house we were serenading with our tinny cacophony, munching the treats that had been handed out and frankly criticizing the wedding party as it emerged to pile into shiny hacks already draped with ribbons and the one reserved for the happy couple, festooned with trailing old boots and tin cans.

And our unvoiced scorn for the bridegroom for being such a goon as to allow himself to become enmeshed in matrimony was a rich and scathing thing.

That, of course, applied to the little boys. The pig-tailed little girls who miraculously arrived at the tail end of the "shivaree" took an entirely different view of the proceeding.

To them it was a thing of wonder and joy and they could tuck away in their memories an exact reproduction of the dresses of the bride and the bridesmaids—which women can do even to this day. Their only criticism might be of the poor groom, decked out in a brand new suit, shoes and hat; his neck encircled by a high, choking collar, and with a fatuous smile on his red face.

"What in the world can she see in him?" these youthful but strangely mature incipient brides would ask each other.

"Why, he must be at least 28 or 30 and look at that horrible mustache!"

So he is ruthlessly dismissed as a necessary but most unfortunate adjunct to the wedding.

But we boys, relaxed with full stomachs, faces and hands sticky with the evidence of a successful "shivaree," decide that girls are just silly—and perhaps a little bit dangerous because it was impossible to understand them.

And a half century of experience hasn't done much to alter this opinion.

NEUTRAL POWER

Swift was, I believe, the first to think of science as affording a means of ruthless tyranny. I imbibed this point of view at the age of fifteen, and it left my imagination well-prepared for the shock of nuclear bombs. I realized then, and have remembered ever since, that science, in itself, is ethically neutral. It confers power, but for evil just as much as for good. It is to feeling, not to knowledge, that we must appeal if science is to be beneficial.

Tug o' War

"Marriage," says an eminent authority on the subject, "is a state of antagonistic collaboration." And this is so often so, once the honeymoon is over and the "parties" (as the nasty old law calls them) settle down to the humdrum routine of domestic bliss.

Every so often the collaboration becomes so antagonistic that the strained fabric of the marriage splits at the seams, and the parties settle their differences in the divorce court. And there the matter rests, most of the time.

However, in court this past week a rather unusual situation came up. The parties in question had been divorced some time previously, but they were not content to leave it at that. The husband's appetite for litigation apparently whetted by the divorce proceedings was suing his former wife for her interest in the house which they, when married, had occupied as joint tenants. The matter, at the time this column went to press, was still sub judice, so it cannot express an opinion on the rights and wrongs of the case; but I do not think it would be out of the way to raise a surprised eyebrow at the thought of such an unfortunate postscript to a marriage.

So, with eyebrow raised, this column sauntered forth through the stately portals of the noble old Court House, sunk in meditation upon the frailties and vagaries of humankind. So sunk was it in melancholy reflection that it hardly noticed the Court House Seagull perched on its shoulder, whither the old bird had swooped. (I defy anyone to criticize that sentence. It was lifted bodily out "Time.")

"Well," said he, wiping a tear from his beady eye "I'm glad I never married."

"So am I. One is quite enough."

"Not that I haven't had plenty of opportunity, mind you. But my work here has convinced me that there's nothing to it but hassle, hassle, hassle. Why do you earth-bound creatures bother?"

"Had we wings, we would be in a better position not to. You do not realize the difficulties which even Roger Bannister has to face."

"Mobility, I must agree, is a help. Probably the answer to your problem. And incidentally, another proof of the superiority of birds. But what really saddens me about this marriage business is the fact that very often these characters I see in there every Monday getting themselves unmarried will go right out of that Court and do it again. Talk about the triumph of hope over experience! You wingless wonders have got a lot to learn, let me tell you."

"But think what would happen if every gull was a bachelor. Or rather, celibate. Within a few short weeks we'd be up to our ears in garbage, for one thing. What is your system? What would you propose?"

"It would be indelicate to tell you what I propose. But talking of garbage, did you hear what they are talking of now? Sanitary landfill, that's what! I never heard of anything so outrageous! First they try to keep us off our scow, but we fixed that conspiracy. Ha! And now they're trying to scupper us again! Sanitary landfill, indeed! Awrrr!"

"What's all this got to do with marriage?"

"Everything! Never marry on an empty stomach! Arrivederci! and with a scream of derision he swooped off in the direction of the Topaz area.

Canadian Rules the Air

LONDON—Names make news... Rooney Pelletier: The significance of the bare announcement that he has been made controller of BBC radio program planning may have escaped you. Fact of the matter is that it makes this Canadian a very important man in Britain. This newly-created job means that he bosses the planning of all radio programs broadcast in this country—a Canadian becomes the dictator of what Britons should and should not listen to on the air.

It's a case of Ottawa Boy Makes Good. Rooney (those of us who've worked with him over the years will find it hard to refer to him in more exalted terms) is just 46 and started off as a Canadian Press man before switching to the CBC. He came over to Europe in 1936 to broadcast the unveiling of the Vimy Ridge Memorial and became head of the CBC unit in London.

In 1941 he joined the BBC as head of the North American Service and held down that job until two years ago, when he was given charge of the BBC's Light Program. Now, he's Britain's Mr. Radio.

Urbane, cultured, he lives a bachelor life in his Westham (Kent) cottage, tending his roses for relaxation, and speaks either English or French with no trace of his French-Canadian background.

It must be said that Britain gives every opportunity to people from the Dominions. This handing of a big post to a French-Candian follows their giving the job of boss of all news broadcasting (sound and television) to a New Zealand Maori, Tahu Hole.

Sir Laurence Olivier: Londoners are raving about his performance as a broken-down musical hall comedian in the new play he is doing for a limited season before going into more Shakespeare. It's called The Entertainer and Olivier shows his mastery as an actor by portraying a corny hooper, complete with song-and-dance routine and off-color jokes, with the same brilliance he brings to Richard III.

The play is the new offering of Britain's original Angry Young Man, John Osborne, who got everybody talking with his first play, Look Back in Anger. His style of writing got started the cult of the Angry Young Men, which I must explain to you in a future column because it is a constantly referred to phase of British life at present and you have perhaps been wondering what it is all about. Latest addition to the ranks of Angry Young Men is

John Braine, whose novel, Room at the Top, is the most talked-of book here today. A librarian in Wakefield, Yorks., his book tells of a boy of a working class family who rides roughshod over everyone to get what he wants out of life.

Johnnie Ray—On tour here, he's telling people that any time now he's going to give up singing and retire to Jamaica. Why Jamaica? He was recently the house guest of his intimate friend Noel Coward there and it struck him as the ideal retreat from the hurly-burly of show business.

THE PARTY LEADERS

Dogged Determination Diefenbaker Hallmark

This is the second in a series of articles by the British United Press on the leaders of Canada's chief political parties. The third on Mr. M. J. Coldwell, CCF, will appear on Monday.

OTTAWA (BUP)—John George Diefenbaker, 62, Conservative Party leader, aspiring to be Prime Minister, is a lone-wolf political leader who attracts faithful followers by his aura of modesty and simple honesty.

Diefenbaker, a native of Ontario who went to the Prairies and "made good" as a lawyer, was elected leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, succeeding George Drew, last December, and immediately set out on what he called his nation-wide "crusade."

He and his wife, Olive, travelled alone, for the most part. Before the election campaign opened formally, he was not followed by the routine of secretaries, speechwriters, and party hangers-on that normally accompanies them.

J. G. Diefenbaker

as the MP for Lake Centre. He was not then a resident of the riding, but was drafted as the riding's candidate when he spoke to a nominating convention called to pick a candidate from three local residents. They all agreed to stand aside for Diefenbaker.

Diefenbaker's representation still identifies him as the member for Lake Centre, even though he sat in the last parliament for Prince Albert. His old Lake Centre riding was amalgamated before the 1953 general election with Moose Jaw—some said, in a gerrymander to try to keep Diefenbaker out of Parliament.

Won at Third Try

After unsuccessful attempts to gain the party leadership, in 1942 and 1948, Diefenbaker was elected leader on Dec. 14, 1956. In his acceptance speech, he declared:

"Let us leave the past—let us forget those feelings of defeat and despair. Let us raise for this party from the Atlantic to the Pacific the flag of freedom, to be restored once more to Parliament Hill—today that thing so necessary and so long overdue."

"I know what the responsibility is; I know of the formidable task; I know that some have a defeatist attitude."

"Let us unite and go and do it."

During the final weeks of the pre-election session of Parliament this spring, Diefenbaker—turned over the party leadership of the party

Non-Confidence Vote Urged by CCF Veteran

'Arrogance of Liberal Party' Criticized
 By Mainland MP Before Audience of 350

Canada has spent more than $44 billion on war since 1914 yet can only afford $46 a month for her old, disabled and blind. This statement from CCF veteran Harold Winch led off the CCF federal election campaign in Greater Victoria Friday night.

In fighting form, Mr. Winch told 350 people crowding the CCF hall at 3368 Douglas that whereas Canadians spent more than $22,000,000,000 fighting Germany in two world wars, they are now giving $70,000,000 worth of Sabre-jets to Germany free of charge. And he added:

"In the coming year you will spend $1,837,000,000 on maintaining your department of national defence."

Too Much Order-in-Council Rule

"We are being ruled too much by order-in-council. The cabinet in consultation with the government does seven-tenths of all the law-making in Canada—not the parliament of the people."

As an example, Mr. Winch said the governor-in-council had ruled that loggers and other workers who received board and lodging paid for by their employers should have the value of this board and lodging added to their taxable income.

"We of the CCF argued that men who work away from home should be able to deduct the expense of taking days off to visit their families. But the Liberal government in Ottawa wouldn't hear of it."

Calling on the electorate to displace Prime Minister St.

HAROLD WINCH

"... A few centuries ago King Charles the First lost his head because he tried to interfere with the rights of Parliament. Prime Minister St. Laurent will lose his seat by doing the same."

your income tax is just over $1,800. But if you receive $11,000 a year from dividends your income tax is only $60 a year."

Dr. J. M. Thomas, CCF candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said the Liberal government in Ottawa "has been promising a health insurance scheme for 38 years—and they are still promising."

Victor Williams, CCF candidate for Victoria city, said:

"Socialism, boiled down, means the greatest good for the greatest number."

Frank Snowsell, chairman, paid tribute to Harold Winch and his father, the late Ernest Winch, as "great workers for progress and enlightenment."

What with a do-it-yourself psychology sneaking in, just about everyone these days, we would like to give a gentle warning against a serious attempt at camera repairing by amateurs. Unless one is quite at home in the innards of a camera, it is prudent to steer clear of attempting it. If the job calls for taking a camera apart, all too often, inexperienced tinkering only results in aggravation of any trouble which existed before.

Along with a good cleaning, a camera should be checked and minor repairs made at least once a year. For the few who feel that there is nothing in the world like oil to keep any mechanism operating efficiently, let us caution you against trying to lubricate the shutter or other moving parts with oil or grease.

Now, how about a few words on photo finishing? It's a combination of skill, equipment and patience in the darkroom which results in the sparkling prints which do justice to your shooting efforts. JUB-ETTE PHOTOS LTD., 716 Yates St. is proud of a finishing service which for speed and over-all quality is as fine as we can make it. Try us. Phone 4-1822.

PIQUANT BLEND

Art Gallery Deserves Better Than Grade 'B'

Graham Moncrieff Williamson is a newcomer to Victoria from London, Eng. He has been a director of Art Exhibitions Bureau and was formerly a manager of the Hatfield Gallery in London. He has also been a contributor to numerous leading periodicals and newspapers and has published two books of poems, including "The Field Book." He has also written the libretto of a Scottish opera based on R. L. Stevenson's "Weir of Hermiston." Scottish born, Mr. Williamson has come to Victoria with his family to make his home. He will be a regular contributor to the Victoria Times with reviews and articles and a weekly column on the graphic arts appearing on this page.

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

"Just look what I've got," said the small boy delightedly. "A thumbtack in his shoe."

Along with a dozen other children he had come from a drawing class at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. Deciding that it would be more fun to leave the thumbtack where it was the youngster dashed off, only to return and ask for help with his coat.

I had been sitting in the hall, reading the latest New York art journal. Through an open doorway I could hear the Curator, Mr. Colin Graham, dictating a letter. Outside birds were singing. I would not have been surprised if a cat had jumped upon my knees.

40 Delectable Dishes Annually

Art and entertainment happily blends into a piquant sauce; each exhibition is served as a delectable dish—and with more than 40 dishes annually, this adds up to quite a meal.

Yet art exhibitions are only a small portion of the fare offered.

Lectures, concerts, film shows, a picture loan service, poetry workshops, instruction in the crafts; a casual reading of bulletin board and handouts makes one fact outstanding.

This infant among galleries, this five-and-a-half-year-old civic centre, not as old as the youngest child in the classroom upstairs, is already offering a cultural program that surpasses many similar programs in England.

Almost 200,000 visitors have come to the Gallery since the opening of this building in November, 1951, yet surely J. B. Priestly was not among them. For how could he declare that there was no culture in British Columbia? Right here on Moss Street was a contradiction to his statement.

Where Is Our Permanent Collection?

But what of the youngster and his thumbtack. What might he expect to see in the Gallery when he is older? A permanent collection of old masters, impressionists; masterpieces by living Canadians?

And what of the present-day Victorians? How many miles must they travel before they see great paintings and other works that stimulate all but the duller imaginations?

Where, in fact, is Victoria's permanent collection of great works which is the rightful heritage of citizens in every capital city of the world.

Mr. Graham partly answered these questions when he showed me a model of the new fire-proof wing. It was a surprise to learn that this first-rate capital of a first-rate, enterprising province has a gallery classified by Ottawa as grade "B."

The recent and most tragic examples of holocaust here in Victoria merely stress the urgent importance of completing the fire-proof wing and getting this classification altered, so that Victorians can avail themselves of circulating art exhibitions distributed by the national gallery and other cultural bodies.

Even if sufficient funds were available for the purchase of masterpieces in the inflated art markets of today, it is only using common sense to concentrate first on building safe premises in which to house them.

Likewise there must surely be many Islanders who would gladly bequeath their treasures to the Capital, when this project has been completed.

I feel that Victorians have every reason to be proud of their art gallery. The list of private citizens, private and public organizations who have given the gallery financial support in addition to Provincial, Capital and Municipal grants

In his autobiography, "Crooks Are Human, Too," which Prentice-Hall, will publish on April 30, Captain (Retired) Campion recalls the many types of swindles (the smack, the pigeon drop, the Spanish handkerchief switch) and the many kinds of "light" criminals (spieler, stall, matchman and steerer) he encountered as commander of New York City's Pickpocket and Confidence Squad.

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

Literary Insight, Travel Blend in Fascinating Book

As refreshing as an April zephyr is it to sit down to some solid but highly readable comment on writers who have been remembered for around 2,000 years and who look as if they will keep on going strong long after most—probably all—the best sellers of this season have been forgotten.

Such a book is Gilbert Highet's Poets in a Landscape. The poets in question are the great Roman poets, Catullus, Vergil, Propertius, Horace, Tibullus, Ovid and Juvenal. The landscape, well that is more complicated to define. At first sight this might appear to be one of those books which grow out of pergegrinating critics' notebooks. Mr. Highet has recently taken a trip to Italy and he has visited the home country of the above-mentioned poets. And he kept a notebook all right. A certain portion of this book is devoted to picturing on paper the country which bred these great writers.

Scott

Re-Creation of an Ancient World

But Mr. Highet is also dealing with another kind of landscape—the environment in which these poets actually wrote—and for this reader his re-creation of the ancient Roman world in which each poet lived is much more important and a much more interesting landscape than the actual geographical one.

The two have been well integrated and combined to make both good reading and good sense.

Result is that for the reader who knows not much more about the Roman poets than that they were great and chunks of their work had to be translated in school, will find this most cogent introduction to these men as personalities and as writers.

For the reader who already has considerable knowledge of the subject matter of this book, the approach is still fresh enough to give him—if not more information—at least more insight into great writers of the Roman Empire.

MAJOR FEAT

To be able to achieve both these things in a single book and at the same time to write a very enjoyable travelogue is no small literary feat.

Of course, those who know Mr. Highet's earlier work will not be too surprised to find that he has done it again. For them, I would merely say that this is very good Highet and that there should be no disappointment.

For the reader who has not yet given this writer a chance to show him, that the classics are not necessarily dull I can only say that now is as good a time as any to let yourself be subject to a little highly intelligent propaganda for the Roman greats.

In short, I don't think that anybody is likely to lose by giving this one a whirl.

And, as I said, before, it is a refreshing change to the usual fare, no matter how your taste may run.

SATIRE

Quite different, very slight but still literary and literate, is Margaret Kennedy's The Heroes of Clon which is a nice satire on what critics sometimes do with obscure writers, building them up, drawing false inferences from scanty source material and creating sensation and scandal where none existed.

In this novel, the writer so treated was an obscure Victorian novelist whom a critic "discovered" a hundred years later, a playwright built into a successful play and the movies are on to it. In the process, the error is discovered and a far more plausible and poignant true version of the writer's life is uncovered instead.

The satire is good and exact and nobody escapes entirely, but it is not so bitter that it obscures the real humanity which underlies this story.

Very good reading.

Adele Wiseman Wins High Literary Award

TORONTO (CP)—Adele Wiseman, a 29-year-old Winnipeg writer, has won Canada's highest literary award for fiction.

Miss Wiseman, now living in England, was named winner of the Governor-General's Award for 1956 for her first novel, The Sacrifice, which won wide critical acclaim when it was published last summer.

The small, dark Canadian author took seven years to write the prize-winning book, a story of a family of Ukrainian Jews who settled in Winnipeg early in the century.

OTHER WINNERS

Awards in other categories announced by J. J. Tallman, chairman of the awards board:

Academic non-fiction: Century of Conflict, Joseph Lister Rutledge, Toronto.

Creative non-fiction: The Mysterious North, Pierre Berton, Toronto.

Poetry: A Window on the North, Robert A. D. Ford, Bogota, Colombia.

Juvenile: Lost in the Barrens, Farley Mowat, Paigrove, Ont.

Miss Wiseman, who was born in Winnipeg, took her BA with honors at the University of Manitoba. She won the Chancellor's Prize for a short story during her student days. Her only published work before The Sacrifice.

At present in London, she is doing voluntary welfare work at the Stepney Jewish Girls' Club. At the same time she has ambitious literary plans.

ADELE WISEMAN

Mr. Rutledge, winner of the academic non-fiction award, died shortly after judging was completed. Although it has been the board's policy not to make posthumous awards, it was decided that Century of Conflict should be declared the prize-winning work since the author was alive when the decision was made.

Well Researched Tale Of Witches and Wiles

THE DARK STRANGER, by Dorothy Charques.
Coward-McCann.

In this country, witches are figures of fun and "witch hunt" is a synonym for persecution of the innocent. In England 300 years ago, however, witches were a very real thing—worshippers of the ancient gods of field and forest, whom Christianity had transformed into devils.

To the extent that these witches were believed in, they had special powers just as voodoo doctors have today. Many believed they could fly, with or without broomsticks, and perform other miraculous feats; in fact, most of these appear to have been drug-induced fantasies.

Mrs. Charques describes three witches, each of whom actually had taken part in the forbidden rites of the old gods and each of whom was in her way typical—an ambitious, sex-hungry, vengeful girl; a bitter, lonely lady of title with enough learning to be dangerous; and an aged, feeble-minded countrywoman.

The account of their adventures makes a suspenseful and thoroughly researched story of life in England's turbulent 17th century. It is a worthy successor to Men Like Shadow, which established Mrs. Charques as one of modern Britain's leading historical novelists.

'Joy of Doing' Festival Theme

All the bright faces on this page belong to Victoria people who are looking forward to participation in the music festival which opens next Tuesday and occupies the ensuing eight days.

They are entering the festival, not to engage in a fierce struggle for a silver pot or a medal to be propped up among the bric-a-brac and become a repository for tarnish, dust and cigarette ash.

Reasons they will give you are various and have little to do with "winning." Mostly their reaction is—"Oh, it's fun."—"We like to stand up alongside others and see how we rate"—or—"It's good for you—gives you confidence and experience."

Because the Greater Victoria Musical Festival has eliminated trophies and concentrated on bursary and scholarship prizes, approach of competitors has become more relaxed and generally happier than once was the case.

This year sees a record number of individual entries and it is encouraging to note that many more string players are to appear. String classes have shown a disappointing response up to now.

What with folk dancing which occupies the first two days and Wednesday evening; choral, bands and orchestra events; operatic, folk song and concerto classes, the Greater Victoria Musical Festival can well be described as this city's very own LIVE spectacular.

(BB PLUS) "THREE VIOLENT PEOPLE" (Capitol) — A capable rancher of the area, is encountered and a slightly off-beat plot make Paramount's "Three Violent People" enthralling fare for those who enjoy action westerns.

As the old southern hero and owner of the Bar-S ranch in the days immediately following the U.S. Civil War, Charlton Heston sits proud and big in the saddle, virtual overlord of his realm that includes his bitter, young, one-armed brother, Tom Tryon, and his Mexican overseer, Gilbert Roland.

At the time, Heston, like most ranchers of the area, is encountering trouble from carpetbaggers who are buying up the land—by hook or by crook under the understanding eye of an unscrupulous local administration. But his real trouble hasn't started. He has yet to meet Anne Baxter, a designing, sexy naive Heston mistakes for a misplaced southern belle.

IN FACT it isn't until after they are married that the baron of the Bar-S learns that his wife was once one of the girls who encouraged boys to be boys. When he does find out, however, he is understandably irked and after slapping down a handful of silver "for services rendered," he bids her gone but quick. Scarcely has she made off with young brother Tom and a herd of her hubby's horses than Heston is told by overseer Roland that she is with child.

Immediately he fetches her back and makes a bargain that she will remain under his roof until after the child is born. Then she is to depart for good with the horses, worth some $30,000 on the hoof, plus additional loot. For this she is to leave the babe behind.

One of the most amazing stories (completely authentic) ever to come out of World War II is this story of a scheme designed to alter the whole course of the war and to have thousands of lives. So ingenious and daring was it that it required the express approval of Prime Minister Winston Churchill who gave the final orders for its implementation. The account was written by the Hon. Even Montagu, one of England's leading lawyers who actually played a small role in the picture. It ensures you complete and absorbing entertainment. Very highly recommended.

Whimsical Alcoholic Best Role

Acting plum of the year in local dramatic circles belongs to Ken Bostock, one of the most competent and experienced of this city's actors.

He is currently rehearsing the whimsical role of Elwood Dowd in Mary Chase's delightful comedy, "Harvey." Elwood is the slightly alcoholic but very gentle man whose pal is an invisible six-foot white rabbit.

Some choice parts that Ken has had expertly in the past include the rag-picker in "The Madwoman of Chaillot" and leads in "And So to Bed" and "Dear Brutus." Most of his work has been done with the Victoria Theatre Guild which is presenting "Harvey" during the week of May 25 to June 1 at Langham Court Theatre.

Shoe Polish Artist

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—Businessman Otis Lammy, an amateur artist, uses shoe-polish instead of paints.

Art has been Lammy's hobby for the past 35 years. He was inspired to try the shoe-polish technique a few months ago while shining his shoes. He applies the wax to the canvas with a palette knife and uses a brush only for finishing touches.

Gene Autry is going back to his old radio "Melody Ranch" format for a 15-minute western song TV series.

Scala's 'Masked Ball' Abounds In Melody and Dramatic Action

By HUMPHREY DAVY

In the last six months record companies have released an imposing list of operas by Massenet, Tchaikovsky, Charpentier and Gounod, as well as a few written by early Russian composers. Some of these have been outstanding recordings.

In the field of Italian opera, however, Angel seems to have taken the lead, especially with regard to Verdi's works. It's recording of Falstaff released earlier in the year was a remarkable success in Canada and England.

Now Angel has come out with a superb recording of "Un Ballo in Maschera" (The Masked Ball)—a work with an abundance of melody and action. It is presented by the famous La Scala opera house in Milan.

The success of this album (3 discs) is in large part due to recording engineers who made a first-class job of reproducing the voices of a star cast. There can be little fault-finding with any of the three discs; the voices are heard clearly and the performance is well balanced.

The cast includes Tito Gobbi, baritone, and attractive Geonora soprano, Eugenio Ratti. Then there is soprano Maria Callas, who made a big hit in New York this past winter; Giuseppe di Stefano, tenor; Fedora Barbieri and others.

The entire opera sparkles with singable and lovable melodies and arias—some of which are not too well-known. One of these is the "Ha-ha-ha" song of a group of conspirators—one of many highlights of the opera.

The opera represents a milestone in Verdi's development. Here he introduces new innovations and orchestral effects, which won him acclaim at the time. It foreshadowed to some extent his Othello and Falstaff. There is quite a history to this opera. Verdi was obliged to fight "tooth and nail" to get it on the stage. The Bourbon authorities at the time were against its production because it portrayed ruling princes as anything but models of virtue.

Though the opera was banned in Naples, Verdi finally got it produced there, but only after he agreed to change the scene of action from Europe to America.

POPS LIBRARY: Tony Bennett does a wonderful job on the standard "One for My Baby" (Columbia). A good recent jazz album is "Silver's Blue" on Epic, starring Horace Silver Quintet.

Jimmy Rushing, a great blues singer, is the subject of a hop-skip-and-jump LP recorded by

WHEAT BASIC PRICE SAME BUT OATS CUT 5 CENTS

OTTAWA (CP)—The government Friday announced maintenance of the existing initial prices for wheat and barley for delivery in the crop year starting Aug. 1, but cut the initial price on oats by five cents.

The prices for the next crop year announced by Trade Minister Howe are $1.40 a bushel for No. 1 northern wheat, 60 cents a bushel for No. 2 Canadian western oats and 96 cents for No. 3 cw six-row barley. They are prices for the basic grades delivered at the Lakehead.

Government officials declined to explain the cut in the basic price for oats. It is 65 cents for the current crop year ending next July 31.

However, it was taken to be a hint to western grain growers to hold back on production of oats, stocks of which stood at 366,463,000 bushels on March 31, up from 238,161,000 bushels in 1956.

Sherritt-Gordon Expands Refinery

Nickel Mine in B.C. Slated To Supply Most of Increase

TORONTO (CP)—Sherritt-Gordon Mines Ltd. will expand capacity of its refinery at Fort Saskatchewan, near Edmonton, to a minimum of 25,000,000 pounds of nickel metal a year—compared with a current capacity of around 20,000,000 pounds—Eldon L. Brown, president, said Friday at the company's annual meeting.

The largest part of the increased production is expected to be from concentrates from the nickel mine at Chouteau, B.C., which Western Nickel Ltd., in which Sherritt has an interest, plans to put into production.

The increased capacity is expected to be effective in early 1958, when Western Nickel concentrates should start arriving.

Sherritt has also agreed, Mr. Brown said, to buy from American Cyanamid Company all the patents and licensing rights in certain chemical metallurgical processes which the two companies share.

This would give Sherritt complete world-wide freedom in the licensing of the processes concerned. Considerable interest in them now is being shown by some large mining companies outside Canada and the company expects it will eventually receive revenue from such licences.

These two developments, together with expenditures at the Lynn Lake mining operation in northern Manitoba and the Laurie River power development, which supplies the mine operation with power, would mean that capital expenditures this year would be in the same range as last year, when they were more than $6,000,000.

Capital expenditures were held to those necessary to maintain the company's position or those "so obviously profitable as to be irresistible," and the result would be that the company's whole operation would be on a sound basis to maintain its share of the nickel business in the more highly-competitive conditions expected in the 1960s.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL
Hardy annuals may now be planted out in areas usually frost free after this date: Snap, stocks, alyssum, dianthus, nemesis, verbena. Plant dahlias tubers, but provide shelter for young green shoots in the event of late frosts.

Remove old flowers from all narcissi (which include daffodils), give balanced fertilizer and water if no rain. Continue planting of summer and fall flowering perennials: Phlox, tritoma (red hot poker), rudbeckia, erigeron (summer Michaelmas), gaillardia, coreopsis and many of the dianthus (pinks).

Flowering and coniferous shrubs with root balls intact may still be planted if kept well watered all summer.

Plant out lettuce raised indoors.

Sow peas, beets, carrots, spinach.

Thin early sowings of vegetables and annual flowers gradually.

Cucumbers, peppers and tomatoes may be planted out in cold frames or under cloches.

Sowing of seed of the above three tender crops may be done outdoors now, since the plants will not be above ground until later in the month, when possibility of frost is lessened.

Plant potatoes if not already done.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Recipe for Tomato Culture ... Air, Moisture, Warmth

As the time approaches to plant out tomatoes, here are a few hints which may help produce a satisfactory crop.

Most tomato troubles, such as blossom end rot and blotchy ripening, are due to environment and can be overcome to a large degree by incorporating quantities of humus into the soil where the plants are to grow.

The tomato does not need excessive amounts of water, but it does require a steady supply of moisture at its roots throughout the growing period.

Humus is the sponge which holds moisture in the root area where it is available to the roots as needed.

Heavily fertilized soil will produce lots of leaf growth on the plants but does not encourage fruiting. The plants show little inclination to produce seeded on lawns and leafy vegetables, and is not suitable for plants which are to produce fruits or seed pods.

Should you be compelled to use leggy tomato plants, those with eight or ten inches of bare stem and few leaves on top use baby palm trees, lay them on their sides in a trench about three or four inches deep. The tops will straighten and grow upright as the plants elongate.

MORE THE BETTER

Planted this way, roots will develop all along the stem, and the more roots the better. Planting a lanky stem straight down into the soil will smother the original roots and the plant will lose a couple of weeks growth while new roots are formed near the soil surface.

Unless you are sure the plants have been well hardened, some form of protection should be provided for the first week or so.

This should not be a tight cover such as hotkaps because these simulate greenhouse conditions and soften, rather than harden, the plants. Hotkaps with holes punched in them are better, or any structure which will protect from the elements but permit free air circulation.

DON'T MULCH

Remember that tomatoes are a warm-soil crop and not suited to surface mulching. While a mulch will hold moisture, it also can reduce soil temperature by 10 or more degrees, and this retards growth and delays fruiting.

Tomatoes grown to a single stem can be planted about 18 inches apart and the stakes should be driven before the plants are set.

Bush-type tomatoes require at least 30 inches, and preferably 36 inches, between plants.

Simple Rack Keeps Light Bulbs Handy

It's always a good idea to have spare fuses and electric light bulbs where you can find them, which is the purpose of the rack above. This easy-to-make device can be installed in a closet or at a convenient spot in the cellar.

Necessary materials include two short pieces of shelving and some nails or screws.

Tentative dimensions are stated, but these may be varied according to individual needs. (Those who store large bulbs, of course, will require larger space allotments, etc.)

Helicopters May Track Herring Runs

LONDON (CP)—Helicopters may be used to track down herring in the North Sea this summer.

The secretary of state for Scotland, John MacLay, said in the House of Commons the British government is considering a proposal that experimental efforts should be made to locate herring shoals by use of helicopters.

The minister made the statement after Sir Robert Boothby, a Conservative member who represents a Scottish constituency, said it is absolutely vital that herring should be found in the North Sea, or the herring industry "might as well pack up."

Chickens probably were the first birds domesticated by ancient man. Spanish conquistadors brought the fowl to the New World. Though varieties of chicken are numerous, present-day species have a common origin, the Red Jungle Fowl of India.

Q. Why are nails referred to as 10-penny nails, 20-penny nails, etc.? P.A.P.

A. At one time, the "penny" designation referred to the number of nails of a particular size that could be purchased for one penny. Today, nails are sold either by the package, or by the pound.

FIVE YEARS IN PREPARATION

Leading Photographic Artists Meeting at Empress May 17-19

The Empress Hotel will bulge with photographic talent May 17 to 19 when the Photographic Society of America, northwest region, will meet for its third annual convention.

James A. McVie, APSA, who started to plan five years ago for the event, said up to 500 registrations are expected. Although designed as a session for PSA members of B.C., Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, already registrations have been received from Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta, New York, Michigan, California and Pennsylvania, in addition to the member areas.

The convention actually will be a photographers' workshop, with lectures by the top photographers in North America in the fields of motion pictures, nature time in Canada, will be included in a Walt Disney production to be titled "Bernadina."

Specific items on the agenda are as follows: Friday, tour of the city, showing of color shots from the Canadian Rockies by Victoria artist Edward A. Goodall, and color shots made by Floyd B. Evans in Death Valley; Saturday, official opening, and clinics on making studio prints, motion pictures, color work, black and white photography, nature shots, and creative photography; Sunday, use of props, color exhibitions, and dark-room techniques.

Some of the well known photographers to be here will include Lowell Miller, of Rochester, N.Y., a leading pictorial artist; John R. Hogan of Wynnewood, Penna.; Alfred Renfro, Santa Barbara, a leading nature authority who won acclaim in 1938 for his Alaska gold rush pictures; Jean Elwell, Detroit; Boris Dobro, Santa Barbara; Rex Frost, Toronto, and many others.

M. M. Phegley of Glendale, Calif., PSA president, will be here with at least 13 PSA zone directors and district representatives.

Mr. McVie said the PSA, largest photographic organization in the world, is non-commercial, and deals with photographic principles only. Its members include both amateur and professional photographers.

Convention dates were arranged to give visitors an opportunity to stay over and see the Victoria Day celebrations May 20.

Despite the fact that the best in the business will be here, Mr. McVie said the majority of the clinics and discussions will be of a nature to be enjoyed by all but the rankst duffers. Non-members may register for the sessions, he said.

Three outside "shooting sessions" have been scheduled, Saturday night, at the conclusion of a banquet in the Crystal Ballroom, interested photographers will make studies of the illuminated Parliament Buildings.

On Sunday, those interested in sunrise lighting effects will meet for a session at Thunderbird and Beacon Hill Parks, and Sunday afternoon a tour has been arranged to Butchart's Gardens.

A picnic supper will be served, and time will be allowed to photograph the gardens in both natural and artificial light. An additional feature will be the presence of models wearing national costumes at appropriate spots in the gardens, such as Hollanders at the tulip displays, and Orientals at the Japanese gardens.

Another highlight will be the presentation of a motion picture by Dick Bird of Regina on Bermuda. Parts of the film, showing for the first time in Canada, will be included in a Walt Disney production to be titled "Bernadina."

Egg Stockpile To Control Price Under Scrutiny

Methods of storing eggs to avoid price-busting over-production problems will be studied at a special meeting of the Lower Vancouver Island Poultry Producers' Association Tuesday night.

The meeting was called by president V. E. Virgin following an announcement Friday that all sizes of Grade A eggs would be reduced 3 cents, and Grade B, 2 cents. Retail prices are expected to be adjusted in most stores next week.

The reduction, caused by a surplus of eggs on Vancouver Island, brought wholesale prices to a 10-year low in this area.

"The irony of the situation is that the Island is still a deficiency area as far as eggs are concerned," Mr. Virgin said today. "Most of the chain stores and department stores get their eggs from the mainland."

With the decrease, Island producers must accept less than cost price for their eggs, he said.

"It costs about 35 cents a dozen to produce eggs," Mr. Virgin said. Producer's price for Grade A large is now 34 cents a dozen.

Current retail prices are 51 or 52 cents a dozen for large, 49 or 50 cents for medium, and 46 for small.

Mrs. Anne McGee was elected president of the Baha'i Spiritual Assembly of Victoria at a recent annual meeting. Bill Duckitt was elected secretary, and Mrs. Nan Greenwood, treasurer. Tenth annual convention of the Baha'is of Canada was held at Toronto April 26-28.

William Ullrich, Langford, was fined $100 and $50 costs in Colwood RCMP court Friday when convicted of consuming liquor at a public dance at Luxton.

MONTE ROBERTS

MONTE ROBERTS

Although the following report is not especially newsworthy, it may be somewhat surprising to the constituents. It was certainly surprising to me.

Because a little stranger arrived at our house late Friday afternoon.

Female type.

Felinus domesticus, if I may attempt the Latin, and one hell of a lot more felinus than domesticus, if you will pardon the French.

The arrival of the little stranger brings the score in our house to:

Male-types, one, namely me.

Female-types, three, namely, My Favorite Wife, My Favorite Doggie, and My Favorite Kitten.

The only trouble so far is, My Favorite Kitten wishes to have no part of (a) me, or (b) My Favorite Doggie.

First of all, I should tell you about My Favorite Kitten. She is a very beautiful young character, nine weeks old, smoky grey, with a built-in necklace and whiskers as silvery grey as my own.

And I wish to make it very clear I brought this little stranger home on my own volition, of my own free will, being (I think) of sound mind at the time.

In brief, I wished to add a cat to the family household, having been brought up with cats, and certain columns notwithstanding) having a great affection for same.

My only concern was whether or not My Favorite Doggie would take kindly to the idea of an addition to the family. So great pains were taken to allow the new arrival the run of the house, while the doggie was entertained outside in the garden.

After several hours, the doggie came in, and expressed interest—but no concern—over the kitten, which beat a strategic retreat behind the chestfield.

Upon which the doggie shrugged her shoulders, yawned, and went to sleep on the rug.

Not long after, the kitten tentatively advanced from her hiding place, looked the situation over, and climbed gently onto my knee.

This scene of domestic bliss endured for 15 minutes or so, at which moment the doggie rose, stretched, and extended her head for the customary scratch behind the ears.

So I patted My Favorite Doggie with one hand, and stroked My Favorite Kitten with the other hand, and I said: "Kitten-cat, I would like you to meet Judy Boots Streak, the doggie who lives at our house."

At which moment the kitten-cat said "Pssst % ! ! !"

and laid into me with tooth and nail.

The doggie retreated to the bedroom, the kitten retreated under the chair, and I retreated to lick my wounds.

Next time I try to introduce My Favorite Kitten to My Favorite Doggie, I am going to have the Cat's Protection League standing by.

And you can guess who I am going to ask them to protect.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Dominion president Edward Burgess of Ottawa will meet with executives of Canadian Legion groups here May 15. J. E. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the Esquimalt branch, announced today.

Dennis Labreque today won a "fork lift rodeo" or driving competition for the B.C. Forest Products Ltd. employees who drive the "jitneys" used to carry and stack timber products in the company's yards.

In second place was Andy Ustick, and John World, last year's champion, was third. A total of 15 drivers, including two from Youbou, took part in the competition, held in connection with the company's "Safety Day" program. All three winners were from Victoria.

Victoria Aged Pensioners Association No. 3 will meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Britannia Legion hall.

Langford 18-year-old Robert Rory Fraser, 1005 Dunford, was fined $300 and $3 costs in Colwood RCMP court Friday on conviction for permitting minors to consume liquor in a dwelling in his charge.

In the absence of his family, police said, Fraser held parties at their home on weekends.

Fire engines screamed up to a stalled cab in Saanich early today and startled the driver who had just radioed the office saying he had a "flat tire."

The taxi dispatcher, thinking the driver had said "cab fire," sent Saanich firemen from the Shelbourne hall to the scene on Carmen.

The rookie driver was so startled by the turn of events he could barely explain what started it all.

The fire department boys moved quietly away.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston will speak May 7 on projected development in B.C.'s northland at the final meeting for the year of the Victoria section, American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

The dinner gathering, in the Monterey restaurant starting at 6 p.m., will include election of officers.

MONDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Gyros: Empress Hotel, noon luncheon. Dr. F. T. Fairley, Victoria MP, will speak on his recent trip to India with UNESCO.

Toastmasters No. 331: Pacific Club, 7.15 p.m., ladies' night meeting.

William Ullrich, Langford, was fined $100 and $50 costs in Colwood RCMP court Friday when convicted of consuming liquor at a public dance at Luxton.

salesman who has found his feet with a Victoria firm.

"Not nonsense at all—the plain unvarnished truth," averred pretty, outspoken Mary Ford, a Yorkshire baker.

In many cases, says Mr. Soames, it is the weaklings who are staying at home. They would rather live in security on a low wage, "filling up forms and taking orders from petty government officials," than take their chance in a new country where competition is harder, keener.

This chorus of indignation—with a few dissenters—is directed at Gilbert Harding, the contentious BBC broadcaster who wrote in Maclean's Magazine last week that it is the weaklings who are coming to Canada because conditions in Britain are not so "soft" as they were.

"For the first time in years the British boss is off his knees and people are getting the sack," Harding wrote. "In short," he added, "a whole generation has come to growth (some might say rank) rapid and maturity under the protecting glass of the welfare state."

Harding described the mass migration from Britain to Canada as: "The panic surge into the air of young pigeons, crumb fed and a bit out of condition, taking wing at the mere back-firing of a car."

Mr. Stone, the organizer, had a ready reply for Mr. Harding, the TV trumpeter.

"He is a man with a line who, by making rash provocative statements, has made a good thing for himself out of radio and TV."

"His income from this source is considerable and it is easy

BRAWN of Gordon Gordienko enabled him to smash down door of burning house in what turned out to be unnecessary rescue attempt. The building was empty.

On his way home from his job at the Sports Club, he saw flames reaching out from window and roof of a house at 126 Douglas Street.

EARLY MORNING FIRE burned out old city home at 126 Douglas Street, near Beacon Hill School. Flames gutted building, ate through roof.

Man Risks Life In House Blaze

A Victoria athlete, ex-navy man, and club steward risked his life early today when he broke into a blazing house to rescue the occupants.

Gordon Gordienko, 37, saw the fire and thought there might be people trapped inside.

As it turned out, the house was empty.

On his way home from his job at the Sports Club, he saw flames reaching out from window and roof of a house at 126

Douglas. He ran through the adjacent schoolyard, Beacon Hill, and reached a telephone, where he turned in the alarm.

He then ran to the house and broke down the front door. Inside there was flame and smoke. He shouted again and again:

"Fire! Anyone here! Fire!" The heat got him, and "the place sort of blew up."

He added, "I took off fast and there was no sense in staying there. That was it when the place blew."

Mr. Gordienko, who lives nearby at 29 Paddon, said he acted as he did "because I thought there would be somebody in there."

He was inside the blazing building several minutes. "It just went poo-off. It went up faster than you could shake a stick."

Mr. Gordienko is a veteran of 4½ years in the navy and weighs 240 pounds.

"No, I had no trouble breaking down that door," he recalled.

"And I'm sure glad there was nobody home."

Mr. Gordienko is well known to many of Victoria's sport fans. He has played in the Victoria Intermediate Canadian Football League for the past few seasons and has appeared in the professional wrestling ring on several occasions.

The fire, of undetermined origin, caused extensive damage to the house, once owned by the Lenfesty family.

The building had recently been vacated.

INVESTIGATION

City fire department was making a routine investigation this morning, but was unable to contact the present owner, believed to be former alderman R. P. Macmillan.

Much of the interior was gutted and a large portion of the roof destroyed.

It is believed the house was due to be demolished soon.

Archie Muir

Dies in Ottawa

Former Victoria sportsman and businessman, Archie Muir died suddenly in Ottawa Friday.

His body will be brought here for burial following funeral services in Vancouver Monday.

A resident of this city for many years, Mr. Muir, 65, had recently retired in the mainland city. He was an interviewer and counsellor for the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Born in Scotland, he came to Victoria prior to First World War then returned overseas to serve as a pilot in the RAF. After the war he entered the automotive business in Masters Motor Co. Ltd., which still operates at 815 View.

Later he was appointed sales representative for Western Canada for General Motors Oldsmobile and was employed in Edmonton and Vancouver. He served in Second World War in the RCAF in an administrative capacity and joined DVA after the war.

In Victoria he was president of Gyro in 1926, later organized and served as first president of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce.

SOCCER PLAYER

In sporting circles he was known as an outstanding centre forward on Victoria West soccer teams and was the only man in Canada to score against visiting Scottish Internationals. For years he has attended golf tournaments here.

Death came suddenly while he was visiting with his son, William, and grandson at Ottawa. Only other survivor is his widow Gertrude, resident in Vancouver.

Funeral will be conducted at 4 p.m. Monday at T. Edwards Memorial Chapel, Granville at 10th, in Vancouver. Burial will be at Royal Oak Burial Park, Tuesday at 10.30 a.m. Hayward's B.C. Funeral Co. Ltd. will conduct arrangements. The body is being flown west.

Tot's Rib Fractured In Street Accident

Seven-year-old Bill Muggidge, 1705 Garnet, received a fractured rib, two broken teeth and bruises when he was in collision with a car on Shelbourne near Garnet Friday at about 2.35 p.m.

Jubilee Hospital reported his condition satisfactory today. Saanich police said the boy jumped over a ditch and ran into the path of a car driven by Geoffrey Vantreight, 76, 4423 Tyndall.

Three persons were given hospital treatment for minor injuries received in auto accidents Friday evening to early this morning.

Alfred Dowell, 66, 30 Howe, received chest injury when the car he was driving collided with a pole on Rockland at about 6.15 p.m. He was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and discharged.

Also the victim of collision with a pole was Gerhard Huetzelmann, 147 Ontario, whose car struck a telephone pole in the 300 block King George at about 1.45 a.m. today.

He was treated for a leg injury at Jubilee Hospital and discharged. Total damage to car and pole was about $650.

Kenneth Jones, 30, RCN, was a passenger in a car in collision with another auto at Yates and Douglas at 1 a.m. today, and was taken to Jubilee with minor cuts, then transferred to HMCS Naden Hospital.

Car driven by Raymond Barrett, 2817 Adelaide, was stopped at a red light on Douglas when struck on the rear by a car driven by George C. Hunter, 3217 Quadra, causing heavy damage to both.

Hunter was fined $250 and his licence suspended when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to a charge of impaired driving.

His decoration, for service in the field, is one of the highest granted to non-commissioned men.

He lived here at 2565 Empire. Funeral will be at 1.30 p.m. with Canon George Biddle officiating, and burial will be in the family plot, Ross Bay.

Survivors include two daughters, both of Victoria, Mrs. H. W. Mayar and Mrs. Dorothy White; four grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

$5,000 Bail Set In Arson Case

Two Sooke men, Rudolph Arthur Vowles, 23, and Stephen Gregory Ward, 19, had bail set at $5,000 each Friday in Colwood RCMP court.

They are charged with arson in connection with a fire which destroyed a barn at Sooke last Saturday.

Demolition of the building, which measures 214 by 60 feet, is proceeding on the long sides of the plant that face Blanshard Street and the parking lot.

R. A. Robison, owner of the locker firm, suspended business with the public March 15, and completed the sale to the "Bay" April 1.

Work has started on razing former Victoria Quick Freeze Lockers Ltd. building, Blanshard Street, to allow for extension of the Hudson's Bay Company parking lot.

CITY WOMAN UNCONSCIOUS 12 MONTHS

Victoria doctor, Anne Steel, begins her second year in a coma Monday, virtually unchanged from the day a horse tossed her and rolled on her head near Osnyoos.

She will be 37 years old next month.

The accident occurred after she took her 10-year-old daughter, Philippa, to a riding stable May 6, 1956. When the horse chosen for the girl looked frisky, Dr. Steel mounted for a trial ride.

Of late years she was unaccustomed to horseback riding and was not wearing riding clothes.

The horse apparently reared and slipped backwards on rocky ground, landing on Dr. Steel.

She underwent brain surgery when she was brought to Victoria two days after the accident.

Jubilee Hospital reports her condition unchanged since last year.

Dr. Steel is also mother of a son, Tony, five.

Missionary, 75, Coming to West Revives Memory

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer
MONTREAL (CP) — A former missionary with the Blackfoot Indians of Alberta, now white-haired and 75 years old, heads westward today in quiet pursuit of old memories.

For Rev. Thomas Castle of Carnford, Eng., the west in his heyday as a young preacher was a wild world of cowboys and Indians and scarlet-coated policemen.

"Ah," says he now, almost 50 years later, "those days have gone by."

Retired from his English parish, he arrived here Friday aboard the Empress of England on the way to Calgary where he will serve for six months at St. Cyprian's Anglican Church.

Spry and sparkling, he relishes the past, telling fondly of his "adventures" in a crisp, pulpit-preaching voice.

"Adventures?" he says. "I remember the wooden hotel where I spent my first night in Calgary. There were so many bugs I looked like raspberry jelly in five minutes."

Like an old uncle talking to young 'uns, he tells of the time one of his "boys" got in trouble in a gambling saloon.

"It was a Chinese place, and they smoked opium," he says, leaning closer for suspense.

"I summoned the police officer—his name was Harold—and he put on his scarlet coat and his revolver. Handsome, he was. When he entered the gambling den, with me discreetly behind, everyone pulled out guns. I thought they were going to shoot us both, but he said, 'Put those toys down, boys,' and they did."

And Mr. Castle saved his man. "I remember driving a horse and buggy across a river on the ice. Suddenly the ice cracked, and we fell to the bottom of the river—about 20 feet. The water had all dried up, leaving the ice overhead like windows in a greenhouse. So we drove on the river bed, under the ice, and I reached up with the buggy wheel to break the ice when we reached shore."

PIONEER POSTS
He tells of the time he and his young wife rode 60 miles to visit a lonely rancher. "The rancher's wife said to my wife, 'I could eat you—I haven't seen a woman in years,' and I said, 'Don't eat my wife—we're still on our honeymoon.'"

That ranch, he adds, stood where the town of Drumheller, Alta., now is.

His first church was at Fort McLeod, but he later opened churches at Gleichen, Strathmore, and Rosebud Creek.

"Ah, the old days. Why let me stop a freight train to get a ride."

One ambition he hopes to realize is to speak Blackfoot again. "It's not a written language, but I think I could remember it all. Give me half an hour or so."

YOU SAID TO ME—

By ETHEL TULL
A Sunday message of help and comfort for those puzzled, depressed or low in spirit.

You said to me, "I wish I had your faith."

When one writes about faith, it is easy to give a wrong impression of one's own experience. To me, as I suppose to most Christians, come moments when faith is very weak.

Sometimes it is difficult to hang on and wait for the purpose of God to be fulfilled. His ways are not our ways, and we cannot always understand what He is doing with us. Of course, that is the very time we find out whether what we call our faith is the real thing or not. It may have been only the determination to get our own way.

One of my great weaknesses is impatience to see results from prayer, and often I have had to cry, "Help Thou mine unbelief," because it seemed to me that God promised something and then held it back. But the older I grow, the more I am sure that if one has faith enough to go on praying, and drawing on the power and love and wisdom of God, then His purpose is fulfilled, and what better can we wish for ourselves and others than that His perfect will may be done in and through us.

My husband and I celebrated our golden wedding anniversary last week, so you see we can look back over many years and trace the way in which God took us through trials and difficulties when we had faith enough in Him to seek His guidance and obey it. He is a wonderful God, and though my faith is such an imperfect thing, I would not be without it for all else the world can offer.

Some day, your faith and mine and that of millions of others obedient to the voice of Christ, "Have faith in God," will grow until the whole world is won from greed and hatred and war to understanding and love and joy and peace.

To the Graduates... Congratulations!

Arranged By
KITTY DIXON
Women's Department

Sunday evening will be a landmark in the lives of 34 young women who are stepping into professions of nursing and technology. The occasion is the commencement exercises of the graduating classes of St. Joseph's School of Nursing and St. Joseph's School of Radiography and Medical Technology at the Royal Theatre. To these young Canadians who have chosen to serve humanity ... Congratulations! May you find success in your chosen careers.

In Step With Style

By NONA DAMASKE

Gals of the sailing set have been busy all week readying the family's yachting togs. All manner of craft will take to the water in the following few weeks as The Naval Yacht Club, The Royal Victoria Yacht Club and The Capital City Yacht Club open their sailing seasons.

Quite an extensive wardrobe is required by the enthusiastic feminine sailor as she ventures out in fair weather and foul. Shirts and T-shirts are favored for warm and sunny days when legs and arms take on the golden glow of a summer tan. White and navy blue top the list as colors for this abbreviated sportswear.

Sailing blue seems to be the choice when it comes to full-length slacks or clam-digger pants. Made in washable hard-wearing denim, sailing blues are co-ordinated in outfits for the whole family... even to caps and shoes.

Wet weather gear may not be very glamorous but it is an important part of the sailor girl's wardrobe. Slickers with attached hoods defy the rain.

and spray to keep her as snug as a bug in a rug.

Under her slicker she will more than likely be wearing a bulky jumbo knit sweater, preferably a cardigan which may be easily slipped on and off as the weather changes.

As part of any crew the gals really have to work and find that their sailing clothes must be functional and easy to move about in as well as attractive. A very necessary item as far as boat owners are concerned is a sturdy pair of work denims for the painting bees.

Speaking of sailboats... the White Swan is a sailorette, of which there are six based at the Naval Yacht Club. Sparkling bright in their appropriate colors are the White Swan, Silver Heron, Green Teal, Black Hawk, Blue Goose and Red Star.

These sailorettes are 27 feet long, carry an auxiliary motor and require a crew of three. Several small craft of the "snipe" class bobbed about the jetty... these are handled by only two people.

Not only will the members and the boats be all spruced up... the Naval Yacht Clubhouse at Monroe Head is fresh and bright for the opening party tonight.

Advice on Preparing Home For Hot Summer Season

In preparing for pleasure and comfort during the approaching hot season we would be wise to take the physical atmosphere of our homes into consideration. Certain colors, lack of clutter and simplification, are all cooling and restful.

Pastel-tinted slipcovers over winter upholstery gives us a change of scenery and look cool. These slipcovers also are economical since they protect against the perspiration which heat produces. If you have teen-agers in your house, these are almost a necessity during vacation periods.

Inexpensive summer rugs look cool and also save the wear and tear of your winter rugs. Lightweight, gauzy draperies look and do the same. For informal living you will find paper napkins and hand towels indispensable. I think, too, that you would find individual trays a great delight.

Many families love to eat on the porch in the summertime. The trays can be served ahead of time or you can serve buffet. Think, too, of your hairdo and clothes for summer comfort. All of these small items count up to gracious and comfortable living even when the temperature soars.

Summer is the season when we should and do slow our pace, when we loaf about more, when we live less formal lives. Why not then take full advantage of this mood of "La Manana" (do it tomorrow rather than today)?

SHOPPING GUIDE

Shopping Basket Given A New and Different Use!

By PENNY SAVER

The salesman told me that if I was really stuck for a spring chapeau, I could turn down the top of these lace-work plastic shopping baskets and pop it on my head. No one would even know the difference, he said. Though I can't agree with his straight-faced mockery of our precious hats, I must agree with him that these shopping baskets are wonderful, and versatile. The baskets of plastic in open-work weave come in red, yellow, white or black and because of their construction, weigh almost nothing. This is important in a shopping basket, because once parcels are piled in, the burden is heavy enough without the basket being bulky and heavy, too. The price of the basket is $1.25.

Ladies... when sewing have you ever felt the need for a third hand? You can have one, you know, with very little effort. The sewing device I found in town is called just that, a "third hand" and it will aid in holding fabric, thus leaving both hands free. Here's how it works. A vise grip attaches to table or working counter and a bird-shaped hinged section of wood grips fabric and holds it taut. You can then use both hands for ripping, stitching, embroidering, catch stitching or basting. A pincushion is on the back of the little bird for your convenience, too. You'll be through your sewing quicker and find that your job is easier with this wee gadget. The price is $2.98.

A box, attractive and handy, to hold spools of thread caught my eye, too, in my meanderings. The boxes come in white, pink or blue plastic, with hinge-top lids of daintily cut-away design. Set in the box is a plate with 24 tiny spikes to hold the spools. If you wish, you can use the box for jewellery or any number of things, for the spool section can be removed. The boxes cost $1.50.

I roamed into a jewellery department in town, and found earrings and bracelets that will look lovely with your white-touched spring and summer clothes. Mother of pearl is used lavishly to highlight wide bracelets, from $3.95 to $7.50, and glamorous earrings, $2.50 to $3.95. Mother of pearl is very popular and very feminine, and will adapt to so many smart ensembles. Large or small, plain or fancy, the jewellery is yours in many styles.

For information about any items here in the column, please call me at 2-3131.

IODE Headquarters Now on Courtney St.

Decision was made at meeting of Municipal Chapter, IODE, to establish headquarters at 605 Courtney Street, immediately.

Mrs. A. Warren Smith presided at the meeting held in the council chamber at City Hall. Reports were heard from Mrs. E. R. Freethy, citizenship ceremony; Mrs. E. Lowthian, plans for a booth where tickets will be sold for prizes at the industrial and agricultural exhibition this month.

Miss Christine MacNab reported on plans for the Empire Day services for school children, to be held in front of the Parliament Buildings on May 17 at 10.45 a.m. Mrs. W. F. Mawdsley announced that the intercession service will be held at St. John's Anglican Church on May 19.

Mrs. Smith was named delegate to the national convention in Vancouver, May 25 to 29 with Mrs. A. G. Fulmer, standard bearer. Mrs. C. Riach was elected film convener; Mrs. J. A. Dunn, press and publicity; and Mrs. H. W. S. Soudy, convener for Canadian Association of Consumers.

It was decided to hold a coffee party in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on May 30 to honor delegates to the national convention, who will be in Victoria on a one-day visit.

Liddiard, Royal Oak, and Richard John Wheeler of Niagara Falls, Ont., son of Mrs. John D. Wheeler, Ottawa, Ont., and the late Mr. Wheeler.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and for the ceremony chose a charming gown of white nylon tulle. The floor-length skirt was fashioned in handkerchief layers from the fitted waistline. Chantilly lace edged the tulle tiers and the bottom was a flourish of gathered tulle. Her fingertip veil of white tulle misted from a headdress of seed pearls

First Nuptial Mass Today

As traditional organ music sounded, Miss Francis Johnston, on the arm of C. N. Montague, entered Our Lady of the Rosary Church at Langford this morning to become the bride of George Dorian Elgin.

Father W. J. O'Brien officiated at the ceremony, the first Nuptial Mass said in this church.

The bride, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Johnston of Great Falls, Man., and formerly of County Atrim, Ireland, chose for the ceremony a brown ensemble-complemented with green hat and matching accessories. Her corsage was of white and yellow roses.

Miss Yvonne Trotter was the bride's only attendant, and wore a beige suit with matching accessories and corsage of red and white roses.

The groom, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Elgin of Liverpool, England, had Frank Doherty as best man and Joseph Longpre as usher.

Organist was Mrs. O. D. Young who accompanied soloist, Mrs. William Baines. Spring flowers and greenery were placed on the altar for the ceremony.

Following the wedding, a breakfast was held at the Knotty Pine at Langford, where Father O'Brien proposed the toast to the bride.

Violet Dawson and Edward Powell Wed in Friday Evening Ceremony

Rev. C. C. Janzow heard the wedding vows of Miss Violet May Dawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Dawson, Victoria, and Edward Arthur Powell, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Powell, 1289 Walnut Street, Friday evening.

Spring flowers were placed at the front of Hope Lutheran Church for the ceremony, and guests sat in pews marked with flower sprays. The processional hymn, "Praise My Soul, The King of Heaven" and "O Perfect Love" were sung by the church choir during the ceremony and at the signing of the register. The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Harry Chalke, wore a white satin gown fashioned with classical full skirt in train, fitted bodice and v-neckline with inset featuring lace collar embroidered with sequins and pearls.

Her veil of white illusion net was bordered with lace and extended to the tip of the gown's graceful train. A headdress of pearls and sequins held the veil. Her bridal bouquet was of red garnet roses and lily of the valley.

Maid of honor, Miss Shirley Dawson, sister of the bride, wore a gown of lavender taffeta complemented with a lavender and green headpiece and a colonial bouquet of yellow roses, mauve sweet peas and white stock. Flower girl, Janice Bruce, wore a yellow taffeta bouquet of yellow roses, white frock and carried a colonial carnations and multi-colored sweet peas.

Thomas Sexton was best man for the groom, and ushers were the groom's nephew, William Parker and Kenneth Schebek. Spring flowers decorated the bride's table at the reception party held in the Club Tango, Oak Bay. Andy Anderson's orchestra provided music during the evening. A wedding cake made and decorated by the bride's aunt centred the table and was topped with garnet roses. Herbert Bruce proposed the toast.

Leaving for a honeymoon in Washington and Oregon, the bride wore a coral-toned sheath dress and jacket with flax accessories and gold jewelry. Her corsage was a white orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Powell will live at 1341 Balmoral Road when they return.

ISLAND DIGEST

Volunteers Called For All-Sooke Day

SOOKE—Plans for the annual All-Sooke Day celebration, which this year actually will cover three days, were launched this week at a meeting of Sooke Community Association.

First two days will be given over to eliminations in the world birling championships, to be held here for the first time, and finals will be held on the last day in connection with the customary celebration, loggers' sports, and midway on the Sooke River flats.

Eric Butler, president, called for volunteers to take part in "work bees" to help get the grounds on the river flats ready for the event.

Ben Laughren Seeks Sponsor For Long Swim

NANAIMO—"Big Ben" Laughren of Victoria, winner of the Jaycees' mass swim in Juan de Fuca Strait last year and unsuccessful strait challenger, wants to try the 36-mile swim from Nanaimo to Vancouver.

He has asked Nanaimo Junior Chamber of Commerce for information regarding a sponsor, boat and local navigator. The letter was turned over to the senior chamber, which is being asked to consider a similar swim by Bill Muir, former Saanich surveyor who now makes his home in Nanaimo.

H. Galvin Heads Little Leaguers At Chemainus

CHEMAINUS—Hugh Galvin was re-elected president of the Little League baseballers at the annual league meeting this week, and Miss W. Appleby was named secretary-treasurer.

It was announced that four teams will play this year under sponsorship of Kinsmen, Rotary Club, Canadian Legion and Community Centre. All games will be played on a new diamond to be built out on the junior high school grounds.

Registration of Little League players of from eight to 12 years will be held shortly. Those too young to make one of the four teams will play in a special "farm" league, and those beyond the age limit will play in a league of their own, to be run by the Community Centre.

Kinsmen Elect Officers for New Season

CHEMAINUS—Nick Maika was elected this week as president of Chemainus Kinsmen Club for 1957-58, to succeed Joe Carmichael.

Other officers are Earl McCall, vice-president; Len Robinson, secretary; John Wemyss, treasurer; Alec McAuley, registrar; and Larry Stevens, Bill Stein and Bob Wilson, directors.

Trevor Thompson, Nanaimo, a Kinsmen founder, explained the club's history for the benefit of new members. It was announced that the club will make a donation of $15 to the Conquer Cancer Campaign, and will conduct a pledge canvass prior to the regular blood donor clinic here.

New Postmaster Named for Langford

LANGFORD—H. W. Hobbs, Happy Valley, has been appointed postmaster of Langford post office. He replaces Ernest Jeffery, who retired recently.

Island Firms Get Big Share In Safety Awards

Vancouver Island firms were well represented in the list of winners of B.C. forest products industry safety awards, announced today by the Workmen's Compensation Board.

They were chosen according to an accident frequency rate calculated as the number of lost-time compensable injuries occurring in each million man-hours of work in an operation during 1956.

Winner of the multiple logging operations award was B.C. Forest Products.

Other logging division awards for smaller operations went to Cowichan division of B.C. Forest Products; Teakerm Arm camp at Kelley Logging Co. Ltd., on Redonda Island, east of Campbell River; and Fischer and Danielson of Refuge Cove, also on Redonda Island.

PALDI WINS
Sawmill industry awards were won by Summit Logging & Lumber Co. Ltd., of Paldi, west of Duncan, and Beaufort Sawmills Ltd., Qualicum Beach.

Sash and door industry awards were bestowed on Crowe Gonsalon Co. Ltd., of Victoria, and Skipsay Sash and Door Works, Port Alberni.

It was announced earlier this week that Victoria plywood division of B.C. Forest Products made the best safety record in the plywood industry.

More than 2,000 companies took part in the competition.

W.C.B. officials said that 1956 was the first year in which the rate for the logging industry was less than 100, and that the rate for the industry as a whole had reached an all-time low.

CUMBERLAND TAXPAYERS NO RICHER, NO POORER

CUMBERLAND—A tax boost of six mills will absorb most of the $28 provincial government grant to homeowners here, leaving net payment for 1957 at the 1956 level.

Mill rate this year is 38.13, including 23 mills for general city services and 15.13 mills for school costs. Rate last year was 32.14 mills.

N. Cowichan Approves 119-Lot Subdivision

DUNCAN—North Cowichan municipal council has approved plans for a 119-lot subdivision on the eastern shore of Duncan, known as the Jaynes Estate farm.

R. W. Whitmore, who represents the syndicate which owns the property, announced Friday that 33 lots will be offered for sale as soon as a surveyor has completed ground plans. Maximum size of lots is 75 by 125 feet.

The subdivision will be served by Duncan city water mains, and subject to the restricted residential area by-laws of North Cowichan municipality. The subdividers will provide black-topped roads, sewers and fire hydrants. Approval has been received from the Central V.I. Health Unit.

AT NANAIMO TONIGHT

Honor Plays Named For Drama Finale

NANAIMO—Victoria, Duncan, and Ladysmith drama groups will appear on the Nanaimo Senior High School stage tonight for honor performances of the Vancouver Island Drama Festival.

They were chosen by Vancouver adjudicator Peter Manning from among nine plays staged Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday night, and two of them will be selected to enter the B.C. Drama Festival in Vernon.

The Gremlins of Victoria will stage "The Storm," directed by Mrs. Lesley Allen. Duncan Little Theatre will present "From Little Acorns Grow," written and directed by A. L. Brown, and third of the finalists is "Sganarelle," by Yellow Point Drama Club and directed by Miss Anne Mossman.

Mr. Manning said winning plays will not be announced until tonight. Also to be announced will be the best actor and actress, best supporting actor and actress, and best directed play.

The adjudicator said that some of the plays were exceptional, and that all were "excellently done."

"It has been three years since I adjudicated at the Vancouver Island festival, and the standard in all departments is much higher," he said. "The non-win-

Water System Assured For Saltair

LADYSMITH—Saltair district will have its own water system this year, according to F. J. Rumble, Saltair Water Board chairman.

A by-law concerning joint operation of a water system with Saltair will be put to Ladysmith voters in May, he said, and if it is passed, then construction of the Saltair system can begin in July.

If it fails, then Saltair can proceed on its own, Mr. Rumble told a meeting of waterworks district ratepayers.

Water rights to 260,000 gallons per day from Stocking Lake have been acquired, he said.

Chief problem at present is non-payment of water taxes. Delinquents face severe measure under the Water Act than the Municipal Act, he said. At present there are $400 owed in delinquent taxes, and the board owes $725 for engineering services.

Journeymen Tailors Union, Local 178 of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, has won certification for employees of Hall & Company Ltd., 506 Bastion Square.

Welfare Election?

COWICHAN LEADER — The joy of Canadian politics is that competitors in the art of representing the public outdo one another in their promises of spending the public's money before even the public gets its hands on it.

It would not be fair to say that the Canadian general election campaign now under way is to be a welfare election, but there are signs of it. Mr. Diefenbaker, new Conservative leader, is holding up a $60 old-age pension. The Liberals this year granted a $6 increase to the present $40 universal old-age pension and said this amount would cost taxpayers Canadians $45,000,000. How much will Mr. Diefenbaker's $60 cost, an additional $150,000,000?

There are too many other issues at stake without this campaign being permitted to degenerate into a welfare contest. What about our military program, federal, education, Canadian highways, reduced government taxation, the price of gold and foreign affairs?

Price of Progress

SIDNEY REVIEW — Workmen serving the provincial department of highways are now completing the laborious task of removing and burning brush and trees alongside attractive Lochside Drive south of Sidney. Many residents have viewed with genuine regret the chopping down of the many beautiful trees. But the consensus is that this is the price of progress, and these leafy attractions must yield way to progress in the form of a safe highway connecting Sidney with Patricia Bay Highway.

But... there is general agreement as well that highway construction should be embarked on without delay. If the highways department has decided to build the long-awaited road this year, removal of the trees is, naturally, the first step. Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi and his staff will be applauded. On the other hand, if the beautiful trees have been removed and destroyed and the road-building machinery does not appear promptly, the actions of the department will be condemned.

FACE THE BIG ISSUES

VOTE FOR CANADA

Hold on to what we have and cherish !

We live today in a world of explosive contradictions. While Canadians enjoy soaring prosperity, millions elsewhere are hungry. While we strive for peace, the threat of war is ever present. The age of abundance for all mankind now is possible; so is world-wide atomic destruction.

These are the big issues. Today, as never before, Canada's freedom and prosperity and the future of our children—all the things we love and want most, — depend on events in the world around us.

It's essential to elect a government which promotes prosperity at home and peace abroad. History shows we can't have one without the other.

Only the Liberal Party can do this. It's the only party with statesmen experienced and respected in world affairs. The Liberal record proves it can promote prosperity at home and peace abroad. It's Canada's only truly national party, seeking constantly to re-affirm national unity, the 90 year old goal of Confederation.

ONE DREAM
 COME TRUE!
THE LEGAL BASEMENT SUITE
 Four good reasons recommend it to you:
 1. You get a better home for yourself and you rent the suite to help you with the monthly payments.

2. As your kiddies become teenagers, they need an entertainment area of their own, where they do not interfere with the rest of the family and the family TV. (Our design allows for the removal of a non-bearing wall to create a full-sized playroom.)

3. Later on Mom or Pop may want to come and live with you and there you have the ready-made accommodation for them.

4. All the time you have the wonderful convenience of a

Aldermen Pare From Budget

Meet Again Monday in Drive To Avert 10 Per Cent Rate Hike

Aldermen reduced Victoria city estimates by $56,000 Friday. They meet again Monday morning in a drive to defeat a threatening 10 per cent tax hike.

They must either chop another $300,000 from this year's expenditures or find new revenue to that amount in the new business tax, announced this week.

That would mean doubling the income from city merchants now paid through trade licences.

Alternative is to cut deeply into estimates, possibly curtailing essential services, settle on a lesser millrate increase and leave the levy on business where it is.

Instead of paying business licence, merchants would pay business tax. It would be a percentage of assessed rental values. It would provide the same revenues as the licensing system but would collect them in what is considered a more equitable manner. The store with the richest premises would pay most.

Set Mill Rate Before Thursday

Council aims to set its final reduced millrate before next Thursday's council meeting.

Here are the items altered in the provisional $7,596,000, record budget in the first day of re-examination:

These items were reduced—printing annual report $1,200 to $1,000, building inspection services $62,260 to $54,760, electrical supplies $9,400 to $7,400 equipment rentals $3,250 to $3,000, replace old style street lights

Mayor Scurrah leads the attempt to avoid a heavy business tax. Ald. Donald Smith feels business should pay more—$500,000 instead of the $300,000 now collected from trade licences. Planned expenditures should not be cut much further, he believes.

Ald. Austin Curtis felt Ald. Smith's proposal would "drive all the business out." The business tax problem is swelling in importance as the budget talks continue and is expected to burst into a major controversy between now and Wednesday.

$2,500 to nil, new street construction $91,700 to $70,100, new works equipment $38,400 to $5,000, new traffic signals $60,100 to $49,610, new sewer construction $34,608 to $33,180, Beacon Hill parking $850 to nil, develop parks and playgrounds (Topaz and Oaklands) $19,200 to nil, water service (boulevards) $6,000 to $3,000, and trade and industry grants $39,550 to $35,050.

Added into the budget were $35,000 for setting up a business tax roll and $200 for extra office equipment.

The reductions mean reconstruction of Douglas from Superior to Dallas, rebuilding of the St. Charles-Rockland intersection and rebuilding of Chambers Street will not be carried out.

Hopes were dimmed for completion of Bay Street as a through street this year. Traffic lights had been planned for Bay at Blanshard, Quadra, Cook and Fernwood. But council halved the estimate. Later $8,000 was cut from a $10,700 program for stop-and-go lights on Hillside.

The long-sought development of Oaklands playground and development of another field at Topaz Park were chopped.

A $2,000 grant to Chamber of Commerce was cancelled. On the other hand, Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau request for funds resulted in approval of a $35,050 grant—increased $2,528 from 1956.

Ald. Austin Curtis argued for the chamber and the publicity bureau; Ald. Smith opposed.

"I have no charity in my heart for the directors of the chamber of commerce," he stated. "They have, through their influence on city council, and by their actions, kept a great deal of money out of city coffers over some years."

Approved were a $500 vote for a city float to carry Miss Victoria in the Victoria Day parade and a vote of $5,250 for operation of city pound. It was pointed out that if, as planned, this service is contracted to the SPCA, the change would affect only part of the current year as negotiations have been delayed. Over a full year the SPCA operation is expected to save the city $1,000.

Fire and police budgets went untouched. Ald. Dowell commented on the police budget approval, "that's the first time that's ever happened."

Also approved was a $500 allotment to buy a chain of office for the mayor. Mayor Scurrah refused to speak for or against this item. Ald. Smith was not as reticent: "Why do we need a chain of office. We are working on an economy budget. The mayor has sufficient authority without a chain of office or any headgear. Such things are usually donated."

He found no support. Ald. Curtis said he noticed the mayor of Kingston wearing one. The mayor of Duncan wears one. City manager C. C. Wyatt thought the outlay was modest. The Kingston chain of office is insured for $5,000, he pointed out.

Ontario Sailor Welcomed Home—In Police Court

Naval rating Gordon Fraser, arrested at HMC Dockyard jetty as the cruiser Ontario berthed after a four-month cruise Friday, pleaded guilty in city court today to causing wilful damage to a jewelry store window last Dec. 24.

He was remanded by Magistrate H. C. Hall to May 8 for probation and sentence.

Const. Frederick Acreman, who was on patrol at about 7.30 p.m. Dec. 24, said he heard the sound of breaking glass on Broad Street and investigated.

He saw two men running from a jewelry store at 1321 Broad, the business of H. L. Lyus, and gave chase.

He caught Fraser, who had a cut hand, and whom he quoted as saying, "Don't turn me in. I'll pay for it." Damage to the window was $144.28.

Ottawa Youth Kicked to Death In Gang Fight

Fatal Brawl Outside Church
Follows Argument at Dance

OTTAWA (CP)—Rene Jodoin, 17, died today from injuries suffered in a gang attack by a group of teenagers on a west-central Ottawa street.

Police were seeking at least 10 youths believed to have taken part in the attack on Jodoin, his two brothers and two other youths.

Police said the attack occurred on the sidewalk in front of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church on Lebreton St.

The trouble began in the church hall during a youth organization dance. The row began inside when Jodoin, his brother David, 19, and Maurice, 16, and two friends, Bob Clermont, 18 and Michael Morris, 19, all strangers to the neighborhood, arrived.

Rev. John Kumli who was helping supervise the dance, put a stop to the row. Jodoin, his brothers and friends, left the hall but were followed to the street by a group of about 12 youths. The fight resumed and Rene Jodoin, fell to the sidewalk, where he was kicked until unconscious.

Rev. John O'Neill, parish priest of the church, was "shocked." The dance was one of a series held in the hall each Friday night.

Father O'Neill said the Jodoin and the two other youths were not members of the parish youth organization and apparently went to the dance uninvited. He was absent when the fight broke out.

'Dirty Look' Started Trouble

David Jodoin, 19-year-old brother of the victim, said in an interview that the five went to the hall because the community centre they usually attended was closed for repairs.

"We were sitting down talking in French—we're all French boys—when a boy gave us a dirty look as he passed. He said in English 'what are you talking about.' We didn't pay any attention to him and then a little later we began to dance with some girls."

Bob Clermont, one of the Jodoin party, said that while he was dancing with a girl another youth asked him "why we had tried to pick a fight with his friend—the guy who had made a face at us."

"I told him we hadn't tried to pick any fight, that we weren't looking for trouble, that we'd only come over to dance."

"Then this guy began pushing me around and then he swung on me and knocked me down and my wrist watch fell off."

"After this the priest told us to leave. We decided to leave, too, because we knew the boys were too many for us and we weren't looking for trouble."

"But when we got outside the gang followed us and there was about two of them for every one of us. We started to defend ourselves and during the fight Rene was knocked down. I saw someone kick him in the stomach."

SOCCER JINX STILL ALIVE

100,000, Queen See Aston Villa Win

(Times News Services)
WEMBLEY, Eng. — A 60-year soccer jinx remained alive today as Aston Villa won the English Cup soccer final with a 2-1 victory over Manchester United at Wembley Stadium.

It was the Villa's seventh cup, a new record.
Queen Elizabeth was among the 100,000 spectators who jammed Wembley Stadium in cool, overcast weather. Manchester U. was hoping to become the first team in 60 years to score the rare cup "double," by winning both the English League and the English Cup.

However, a mid-game injury to Manchester goalie Ray Wood prevented them from completing the second half of the double. (See story, Page 12).

Freak Power Failure As Plane Rips Lines

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Hundreds of washing-machine, drier and refrigerator motors lay dead in San Francisco Peninsula homes today, burned out in Friday's freak power failure.

A navy attack bomber, hedge-hopping through a canyon, cut two 220,000-volt power lines strung 500 feet above the canyon floor. Power sagged or failed in San Francisco and south 50 miles to San Jose through an area of 1,100,000 persons.

Navy Lieut. Harry Nyberg,

26, on a routine low-level practice mission, said there was an explosion when his plane cut the lines. He landed safely.

The effects were confusion compounded. Motors stopped or slowed. Radio stations broadcast slow-motion gibberish as record turntables slowed. TV stations went off the air after their picture transmissions faded.

Dentists' drills slowed, then the motors started smoking. So did motors in hundreds of home electrical appliances.

100 GREET ST. LAURENT AT NANAIMO

By PETER MURRAY

NANAIMO—Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent arrived in Nanaimo today to start a two-day visit to Vancouver Island.

The prime minister arrived aboard the yacht Fifer at the Pacific Biological Station dock at Departure Bay.

Accompanied by Defence Minister Ralph Campney and Fisheries Minister James Sinclair, he drove to Nanaimo's new city hall where he was welcomed on the front steps by Mayor Peter Maffeo. The prime minister made a brief address on the steps and paid particular attention to the children present. About 100 people were clustered in front of the building.

Mr. St. Laurent was introduced to Nanaimo civic officials and then went inside to sign the register.

Afterwards, he talked to many of the youngsters and shook hands with as many persons as possible before being driven to the Plaza Hotel where he was to address a Liberal luncheon.

The prime minister was to drive down-Island during the afternoon and will speak tonight at the Royal Theatre in Victoria.

Overflow Crowd Hears Warning On Giveaways

By PETER MURRAY, Times Political Reporter

VANCOUVER—A clear statement of federal government policy on Columbia River hydro, coupled with a warning to B.C. against any power "giveaway," was made here Friday night by Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

Showing no effects from a strenuous day's campaigning, the prime minister addressed an overflow audience at Georgia Auditorium.

He repeated the offer to help finance Columbia development and made it clear the federal government would never agree to any "short-term bargain" deal with the U.S.

The federal plan is to help finance the project if British Columbia's Social Credit government decides it should be a public power scheme.

"The policy of this government is to prevent any imprudent deal that would jeopardize B.C.'s long-term industrial development," Mr. St. Laurent said.

Although he did not specifically mention such proposals of the Social Credit government as the Kaiser Dam deal, it was obvious he had them in mind.

If B.C. agreed to treat the project as a national venture, financing could be done under a joint federal-provincial Crown company or by a purely federal company.

If B.C. decided, however, to have the power developed by private industry, then there would be no federal aid. The matter was up to B.C.

Standing ovation by 2,500

Mr. St. Laurent was given a standing ovation by the crowd of 2,500 both before and after his hour-long address.

Another 200 persons heard the speech over the loudspeaker system in the basement, while 150 listened outside on the sidewalk.

The doors were closed at 7.45, some 15 minutes before the PM's arrival, and an estimated 400 people drifted away after finding they couldn't get in.

Mr. St. Laurent made a brief unscheduled talk to the overflow before entering the hall.

Inside, he was heckled repeatedly during his speech but took it good-naturedly, firing off some quick retorts that won applause from the audience.

Most of the heckling occurred during the first part of the prime minister's speech when he developed his theme that "Liberal government has been good for Canada" by listing past achievements and outlining a program for the future.

There were few interruptions during his final remarks on the Columbia, which were considered by observers to be a major policy statement.

Loud applause greeted the prime minister's assertion that although B.C.'s hydro power potential is vast, it is not unlimited and "we have nothing to spare or give away."

Cheap and plentiful electricity is the province's best guarantee of a flourishing economy in the future, Mr. St. Laurent said.

"This province has one of the world's most marvellous water systems. We must not fail to develop to the full its enormous power potential."

Of all the projects in which the federal government is participating in B.C., including the Trans-Canada Highway, Stewart-Cassiar Road and Alaska Highway, the Columbia would be "the greatest of all."

development," the prime minister said.

If it decides on public power, "the federal government is prepared to treat the development of the Columbia River as a national project because it would benefit not only the citizens of British Columbia but all Canadians."

The PM charged that opposition election promises are a "mere cream-puff of a thing."

"Since our Liberal program, while big, has no room in it for election promises, it might, to that extent, be less spectacular than an opposition election program prettied up to attract votes."

"But an election promise, after all, is a mere cream-puff of a thing—with more air than substance in it!"

Mr. St. Laurent said the only election promise he would make is that the "best is yet to be!"

He invited British Columbia to vote Liberal June 10 and help increase the province's influence in shaping Canadian progress.

Earlier in the day, Mr. St. Laurent said he would make a public speech of the election campaign in Victoria.

Loudspeakers are being installed outside the theatre to relay the speeches to persons standing outside.

With Mr. St. Laurent on the platform will be Dr. F. T. Fairley, Victoria MP in the last parliament; Defence Minister R. O. Campney; F. W. Wilfert, Liberal candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich.

CPR Derailment

PORT MOODY, B.C. (CP)—Four cars and the engine of a CPR freight train were derailed here Friday night when they struck an abandoned car at a level crossing. No one was injured in the mishap but CPR trains today were delayed. Passengers were brought to Vancouver by bus.

Boot Spark Blamed

VANCOUVER (CP)—A spark from a worker's boot is believed responsible for a fire which badly damaged a chemical warehouse on the Vancouver waterfront Friday night. Four men fled to safety when the fire broke out in the Commercial Chemical Co. warehouse.

LIVELY VANCOUVER RALLY

PM Offers Heckler Passport to China

By Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—Prime Minister St. Laurent Friday night offered a heckler a passport to China at his big Georgia Street auditorium rally.

The fast exchange came when the prime minister talked of trade, and Canada's decision to open new negotiations with Australia, New Zealand and the members of the future Caribbean federation.

The heckler, who later described himself as an unemployed, 52-year-old CCFer, cried: "What about trade with China?"

To this, Mr. St. Laurent smoothly replied:

"Would you like a passport to China?"

The crowd roared with laughter and applauded.

This was only one of a series of interruptions by hecklers throughout the prime minister's speech.

The Liberal leader's quick retorts produced the liveliest meeting of the campaign.

When Mr. St. Laurent spoke of full employment, and the heckler cried that he'd been without work for five months, the prime minister replied:

"There is full employment for those who really want to work."

After the rally, the heckler, who wouldn't give his name, became involved in a scuffle in the aisle with a zealous Liberal supporter, but it didn't amount to much.

When Mr. St. Laurent spoke of the Trans-Canada natural gas pipeline, another voice from the floor shouted:

"Hurrah for Tanner! Hurrah for Tanner!"

This was a reference to Nathan Tanner, president of the Trans-Canada Pipeline Company who was reported to have made large paper profits from the

Th' way some o' these political gath'rin's are filled with hecklers, th' meetin' halls seem t' hev wall-t'wall carping.

Anyways, it's nice t' live in a country where critics o' th' gov'mint git their names in th' news columns 'stead o' th' obituary columns.

Weather like this ought t' assure any MP of another four years in office.

Laurent was questioned by reporters on Premier Bennett's objection that he had received no official word of the Columbia power offer.

Asked if he planned to write Mr. Bennett, the prime minister replied:

WON'T SAY

"I am not going to say how it is going to be handled. There is more than one way for people who want to do a good job getting together—not this way or that way but any way that will get us together and get good results for the Canadian people."

The prime minister was introduced at the evening rally by Defence Minister Ralph Campney, who said:

"No Canadian prime minister in all our history is more respected and beloved from one end of this country to the other than Louis St. Laurent."

The prime minister opened with a review of Liberal policies over the past few years.

SAVING

Tax reductions since 1953 have resulted in a saving of $475,000,000 to Canadian taxpayers this year, while the country's debt is being steadily reduced.

Annual cost of defence has been cut by more than $100,000,000 since 1953.

By granting more money to the provinces in new tax-rental agreement, the Liberal party "shows that it stands firm for provincial rights and firm against centralization."

In the field of social security, Liberal policy is to "move ahead as far as this country can afford," the prime minister said.

OUTSTANDING

He described the new hospital insurance program as "the outstanding Liberal social measure of recent years."

The PM also made these points:

1. The Senate inquiry into land use was a form of "educational" process to be followed by federal measures to make sure that Canadian food production does not fall behind consumption needs.

2. He still hoped to make progress in getting the provinces to agree to make the Canadian constitution completely amendable in Canada on federal-provincial and provincial matters.

3. The Gordon commission's economic forecasts, while extremely optimistic, may be "somewhat pale and timid" to what Canada actually achieves in the next 25 years.

The Liberal leader covered a lot of ground in his 14-hour Vancouver tour, visiting the City Halls of Vancouver and North Vancouver, the Shaughnessy Military Hospital, suburban Burnaby, the new city post office and the North Vancouver Community Centre.

He was cheerful; his step was vigorous and his voice was firm. At Vancouver's North Shore Laurier Club, he hinted he may still be in the political arena in 1961, at the age of 79.

He was wearing the same grey felt that he wore in the 1953 fight. He had had it cleaned for the 1957 battle "and after this campaign, I want to use it in the next one and I think I will be doing that."

public sale of the company's shares.

To this Mr. St. Laurent replied that he did not know Mr. Tanner personally. But one thing he was sure—the Liberal government would do everything appropriate to encourage private enterprise. It was only when private enterprise did not step in to undertake a project that the federal government took action of its own.

He also was invited from the floor to talk about the suicide of Herbert Norman, Canadian ambassador to Cairo, but the prime minister ignored the shouts of "Talk about Norman! Talk about Norman!"

As the meeting ended, one of the hecklers was shouldered by a younger man. Newspapersmen stepped in to break up the clash.

When Mr. St. Laurent mentioned the name of Trade Minister C. D. Howe in connection with the government's attempts to expand trade with other countries, some of the audience hissed.

There was also scattered laughter when Mr. St. Laurent said it was Liberal policy to encourage the building of more houses.

The prime minister, interrupted while describing the new hospital insurance program as "the outstanding Liberal social measure of recent years," became a bit nettled.

"I'm glad there are a lot of people who enjoy Social Credit, even though their ethics are not the kind that would be recommended by an ordinary social etiquette book," he said.

LET HIM STAY

When a cry went up in the hall that a particularly persistent heckler be thrown out, the prime minister said:

"Oh, I don't think he should be put out, in spite of his interruptions. If he listens to anything at all, he may improve."

Mr. St. Laurent was cheered when he silenced the same interrupter with:

"Don't you think it's strange that you don't get more applause?"

The meeting started with the so far unprecedented happening at the prime minister's public appearances on this campaign—a sing-song.

Three local professional performers slapped a bass, squeezed an accordion and crooned the latest, and some old, hit tunes.

group included only two senators.

One woman repeatedly told those approaching the casket:

"People were a little bit too late showing how they felt. Here we are—flags at half-staff, even at the White House."

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said Friday that flying the flag at half-staff was "automatic" when a member of Congress died. Flags were displayed in that fashion at the White House as well as at President Eisenhower's farm home at Gettysburg, Pa.

Most of those who visited the funeral home were elderly. The

Farmers Poorer

SASKATOON (CP) — CCF

Leader M. J. Coldwell said Friday night he has found people in his constituency of Rosetown-Biggar "harder pressed for cash than they had been in the 1930s."

He visited the agricultural riding earlier in the week.

Mr. Coldwell made the statement in a television broadcast. Appearing with him was R. R. Knight, CCF candidate for Saskatoon.

Farm prices across Canada have fallen in the last few years, Mr. Coldwell said. Farmers a few years ago received 12 per cent of the national income; now they get 7 per cent. Meanwhile, costs continued to rise.

Defining the difference between floor prices for farm products, and parity prices, which the CCF is advocating, Mr. Coldwell said that parity prices, which the CCF advocates for farm products, would be based on the relationship between cost of production and what the producer receives when it is sold.

He said he hopes the day will come when all Canadians have a comprehensive health plan.

Everyone was entitled to full medical and hospital treatment. It should be as free as education is to children attending public schools. The CCF would not stop advocating this.

He described the proposed federal hospital insurance plan as the most important legislation of the last session of Parliament. But, he said, it was a feeble step when it is remembered that the Liberals, as long ago as 1919, promised a national health plan.

TO QUIT AFTER

SASKATOON (CP) — M.

J. Coldwell, national leader of the CCF party, said Friday he will probably retire after another term of office.

Mr. Coldwell, 68, declined to name any possible candidates for his office on his retirement.

Mr. Coldwell was first elected to the House in 1935 and became leader of the CCF in the Commons in 1940.

The proposed federal plan did not cover the largest group in hospitals in Canada—mental and tuberculosis patients.

"Our popularizing of the Saskatchewan hospital plan is one reason the federal government has adopted its plan," he said.

Provinces with Liberal administrations had been slow to join. Saskatchewan now had the highest number of hospital beds in terms of population—seven per 1,000—in North America.

7-Years Jail
For Fireman
In Will Forgery

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gilbert

Campbell, 50-year-old Vancouver fireman, Friday was sentenced to seven years in prison for dealing in a forged document.

Campbell was found guilty by an Assize Court jury April 16 of dealing in the forged $300,000 will of hotel owner James Thomson, who died in 1948.

Mr. Justice J. G. Rutten imposed the sentence. At the trial Mr. Justice Rutten directed the jury to dismiss a forgery charge against Campbell after a handwriting expert testified he could not positively identify Campbell's signature as that which appeared on the will.

A third charge of attempting to defraud the Thomson heirs was dropped. Campbell's lawyer, Thomas Dohm, filed notice of appeal against the conviction.

Pink Slips, New Shows Hit TV Scene

By WILLIAM EWALD
NEW YORK (UP)—"Kukla, Fran and Ollie," one of TV's veterans, plays its last stanza on the ABC-TV network June 7. ABC-TV will offer a sports show next fall in place of the Kuklapolitans.

"Blondie" goes out the NBC-TV revolving door next fall. . . .
Doris: Evensen will trade her ice cube for grasspant on "Studio One." May 13 when the stars in "Babe in the Woods," Judy McCrea will also grace the cast—he's the son of Joe McCrea and Frances Dee.

Everybody but the dog in the "Lassie" cast is getting the pink slip for next season . . . Harry Belafonte, who has caught fire this year, will do a 90-minute spec on CBS-TV or ABC-TV.

Gay Mitchell will be spotted on "Person to person." May 10, but he doesn't know it yet. He's en route to the United States from Australia—Joe's wife Edna, gave the go-ahead to Ed Murrow.

"Tic Tac Dough" is branch-

Aldermen Pare From Budget

Meet Again Monday in Drive To Avert 10 Per Cent Rate Hike

Aldermen reduced Victoria city estimates by $56,000 Friday. They meet again Monday morning in a drive to defeat a threatening 10 per cent tax hike.

They must either chop another $300,000 from this year's expenditures or find new revenue to that amount in the new business tax, announced this week.

That would mean doubling the income from city merchants now paid through trade licences. Alternative is to cut deeply into estimates, possibly curtailing essential services, settle on a lesser millrate increase and leave the levy on business where it is.

Instead of paying business licence, merchants would pay business tax. It would be a percentage of assessed rental values. It would provide the same revenues as the licensing system but would collect them in what is considered a more equitable manner. The store with the richest premises would pay most.

Set Mill Rate Before Thursday

Council aims to set its final reduced millrate before its Thursday's council meeting. Here are the items altered in the provisional $7,596,000 record budget in the first day of re-examination:

These items were reduced—printing annual report $1,200 to $1,000, building inspection services $62,260 to $54,760, electrical supplies $9,400 to $7,400, equipment rentals $3,250 to $3,000, replace old style street lights $2,500 to $1,700, new street construction $91,700 to $70,100, new works equipment $38,400 to $30,000, new traffic signals $60,100 to $49,610, new sewer construction $34,608 to $33,180, Beacon Hill parking $850 to nil, develop parks and playgrounds (Topaz and Oaklands) $19,200 to nil, water service (boulevards) $6,000 to $3,000, and trade and industry grants $39,550 to $35,050.

A BOOSTER of Victoria's Garden Festival, Mrs. Stella Kendall, 84, of Albany, Ore., who was presented today with a corsage by the Victoria Horticultural Society to mark her many visits to the city.

Rock Gardens, 'Twisty' Oaks Given Praise

The most attractive feature of Victoria and district is its twisty Garry Oaks, according to 84-year-old Mrs. Stella Kendall, of Albany, Oregon, who has been coming here for six consecutive years for the Spring Garden Festival of the Horticultural Society.

Mrs. Kendall, an expert on gardening, has participated in all the visits to private gardens since they were opened to the public for inspection Wednesday.

The garden tours ended today with visits to the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Ahler, 1233 Palmer Road; Mr. and Mrs. F. Anson Firth, 2676 Queenswood Drive; Mr. and Mrs. Edgell, 3230 Beach Drive; and Mr. and Mrs. N. Abkhazi, 1964 Fairfield Road. The society today presented Mrs. Kendall with a corsage to mark her many visits to Victoria.

"We have plenty of dogwood in Oregon," Mrs. Kendall said, "but we have no Garry Oaks. I think it is one of the most attractive trees."

She said it was the natural rocks which made the private gardens so attractive in Victoria. In Albany we have no rocky outcrops to speak of," she explained.

Meanwhile, the city's Springtime Festival will enter its second week Sunday with conducted tours through Dunsmuir Castle at Royal Roads and other beauty spots in and around the city.

The emphasis next week will be on the Industrial and Agricultural Exhibition to be opened at the Memorial Arena and the Victoria Curling Rink at six p.m. Monday. The week-long fair will feature all types of manufactured products, an agricultural section and a midway.

On Wednesday the major event will be the opening to the eight-day famous Victoria Music Festival.

The festival's "grand finale" will be the crowning of Victoria's Spring Festival Queen to be selected from eight contestants at the industrial exhibition.

Mayor Scurrah leads the attempt to avoid a heavy business tax. Ald. Donald Smith feels business should pay more—$500,000 instead of the $300,000 now collected from trade licences. Planned expenditures should not be cut much further, he believes.

Ald. Austin Curtis felt Ald. Smith's proposal would "drive all the business out." The business tax problem is swelling in importance as the budget talks continue and is expected to burst into a major controversy between now and Wednesday.

Added into the budget were $35,000 for setting up a business tax roll and $200 for extra office equipment.

The reductions mean reconstruction of Douglas from Superior to Dallas, rebuilding of the St. Charles-Rockland intersection and rebuilding of Chambers Street will not be carried out.

Hopes were dimmed for completion of Bay Street as a through street this year. Traffic lights had been planned for Bay at Blanshard, Quadra, Cook and Fernwood. But council halved the estimate. Later $8,000 was cut from a $10,700 program for stop-and-go lights on Hillside.

The long-sought development of Oaklands playground and development of another field at Topaz Park were dropped.

A $2,000 grant to Chamber of Commerce was cancelled. On the other hand, Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau request for funds resulted in approval of a $35,050 grant—increased $2,528 from 1956.

Ald. Austin Curtis argued for the chamber and the publicity bureau; Ald. Smith opposed. "I have no charity in my heart for the directors of the chamber of commerce," he stated. "They have, through their influence on city council, and by their actions, kept a great deal of money out of city coffers over some years."

Approved were a $500 vote for a city fleet to carry Miss Victoria in the Victoria Day parade and a vote of $5,250 for operation of city pound. It was pointed out that if, as planned, this service is contracted to the SPCA, the change would affect only part of the current year as negotiations have been delayed. Over a full year the SPCA operation is expected to save the city $1,000.

Fire and police budgets went untouched. Ald. Dowell commented on the police budget approval, "that's the first time that's ever happened."

Also approved was a $500 allotment to buy a chain of office for the mayor. Mayor Scurrah refused to speak for or against this item. Ald. Smith was not so reticent.

"Why do we need a chain of office? We are working on an economy budget. The mayor has sufficient authority without a chain of office or any headgear. Such things are usually donated."

He found no support. Ald. Curtis said he noticed the mayor of Kingston wearing one. The mayor of Duncan wears one. City manager C. C. Wyatt thought the outfit was modest, the Kingston chain of office is insured for $5,000, he pointed out.

J. V. Rogers Leads B.C. Business Body

J. Victor Rogers, a native of Victoria, was elected president of the British Columbia Chamber of Commerce at the chamber's sixth annual meeting in Vancouver Friday.

Mr. Rogers is now manager, engineering division, Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada, Ltd., at Trail.

G. Fitzpatrick Dunn, Victoria, was elected first vice-president. Mr. Dunn is provincial vice-president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and a past president of the Victoria Chamber.

Re-appointed manager of the B.C. Chamber was Charles K. Bankock, B.C. manager of the Canadian Chamber.

E. L. Hodson, Nanaimo; Jack Luckhurst and E. G. Stroyan, Port Alberni, and G. H. Wheaton, Victoria, were elected directors of the B.C. Chamber.

Highways Minister P. A. Gallagher told the meeting Ontario's master highway plan is "about 25 years behind schedule."

"We are not going to make that mistake here," he said. "We're working now on the same kind of highway program and we'll be 15 years ahead of time."

Westcoast Secures New Gas Holdings

CALGARY (CP)—Canadian Husky Oil Ltd. of Calgary today announced an agreement is being completed with Westcoast Transmission Co. of Vancouver and El Paso Natural Gas Co. of Texas which dedicates its 32.5 per cent interest in the Savanna Creek gas field in southwest Alberta to Westcoast.

President Glenn E. Neilson made the announcement in a report to the annual meeting of shareholders held this week. Westcoast earlier announced plans to build a transmission line to take gas from the Savanna Creek field in a contract with Phillips Petroleum Co. of Bartlesville, Okla., owner of 27.5 per cent interest in the field.

DURING TEST

Blows Up
VANCOUVER (CP)—A section of Westcoast Transmission Co. pipeline in British Columbia's Peace River district split under testing about two weeks ago and the natural gas erupted with a fiery roar, scaring residents out of their homes in nightclothes, witnesses reported today.

A spark apparently ignited the gas. The eruption is reported to have gouged a hole 50 by 100 feet.

Westcoast Transmission confirmed the blowout, but denied rumors that many miles of pipeline would have to be unearthed and relaid.

WHEAT BASIC PRICE SAME BUT OATS CUT 5 CENTS

OTTAWA (CP)—The government Friday announced maintenance of the existing initial prices for wheat and barley for delivery in the crop year starting Aug. 1, but cut the initial price on oats by five cents.

The prices for the next crop year announced by Trade Minister Howe are $1.40 a bushel for No. 1 northern wheat, 60 cents a bushel for No. 2 Canadian western oats and 96 cents for No. 3 cw six-row barley. They are prices for the basic grades delivered at the Lakehead.

Government officials declined to explain the cut in the basic price for oats. It is 65 cents for the current crop year ending next July 31.

However, it was taken to be a hint to western grain growers to hold back on production of oats, stocks of which stood at 366,463,000 bushels on March 31, up from 238,161,000 bushels in 1956.

Sherritt-Gordon Expands Refinery

Nickel Mine in B.C. Slated To Supply Most of Increase

TORONTO (CP)—Sherritt-Gordon Mines Ltd. will expand capacity of its refinery at Fort Saskatchewan, near Edmonton, to a minimum of 25,000,000 pounds of nickel metal a year—compared with a current capacity of around 20,000,000 pounds—Eldon L. Brown, president, said Friday at the company's annual meeting.

The largest part of the increased production is expected to be from concentrates from the nickel mine at Choate, B.C., which Western Nickel Ltd., in which Sherritt has an interest, plans to put into production.

(Choate is in the upper Fraser Valley, near Hope.)

The increased capacity is expected to be effective in early 1958, when Western Nickel concentrates should start arriving.

Sherritt has also agreed, Mr. Brown said, to buy from American Cyanamid Company all the patents and licensing rights in certain chemical metallurgical processes which the two companies share.

This would give Sherritt complete world-wide freedom in the licensing of the processes concerned. Considerable interest in them now is being shown by some large mining companies outside Canada and the company expects it will eventually receive revenue from such licences.

These two developments, together with expenditures at the Lynn Lake mining operation in northern Manitoba and the Laurie River power development, which supplies the mine operation with power, would mean that capital expenditures this year would be in the same range as last year, when they were more than $6,000,000.

Capital expenditures were being held to those necessary to maintain the company's position or those "so obviously profitable as to be irresistible," and the result would be that the company's whole operation would be on a sounder basis to maintain its share of the nickel business in the more highly-competitive conditions expected in the 1960s.

NO DIVIDEND PAID

Nevertheless, capital expenditures would be higher than had been anticipated and it was obvious that no dividend could be paid this year.

Present forecasts indicated an accumulation of cash in 1958 which would permit a dividend in the latter half of that year, unless it was required for capital expenditures not now foreseen.

Net profit in the quarter ended March 31 was $1,601,846, compared with $1,993,512 in the corresponding period last year. Last year's first-quarter profits, however, had been increased through use of carryover of concentrates from 1955, and this year's first quarter earnings were higher than those for the third and fourth quarters of 1956 and might better be compared with them.

TWO WILL START, ONE WILL FINISH

The six-week Times Open Golf Tournament reaches a tense climax Sunday at Uplands Golf Club as Bill Court, left, of Colwood, faces par-sniping Joe Briggs of Gorge Vale in 36-hole final. Morning and afternoon rounds start at 9.30 and 1.30, respectively. Consolation finalists will follow at 9.40 and 1.40.

Hammering Hank Hauls Braves' Pennant Wagon

WHAT'S THE SCORE?

BY

SATURDAY IS BARGAIN DAY . . .

To easy-going Joe Briggs goes the job of shinning up the jack-staff and hauling down the Colwood pennant that has flapped in victory after the last two Times Open golf tournaments.

It has been a Colwood clambake the last two years, with Laurie Kerr bumping stable-mate Vince Clarkson last year and Bill McColl dropping Hughie Morrison the year before.

But out in the gullies of Gorge Vale, they will tell you in no uncertain terms (and they'll back the claim with crinkly stuff) that this is Gorge Vale's year.

Ideally suited for tournament golf in temperament, the unruffled Briggs, toasted as a hero in the Gorge locker room last Sunday after his great semifinal round, would say no more than "I'll give it a big try," when asked about his championship chances.

As for Bill Court, there is nothing he wants more than this championship. Having publicly avowed this to be his last tournament, he'd like to make it a successful one.

They'll be some fur flying at Uplands Golf Club Sunday.

One minute you were sitting there, wondering if it was humanly possible to hurt Gene Fullmer and wondering how long it would be before those chorus girl legs of Ray Robinson would fold up like a jack-knife.

Suddenly, from out of left field, came a whistling left hook that caught Fullmer on the dimple and spilled him on the canvas as limp as a platter of buttered noodles.

Such is the appeal of Sugar Ray that, all over the city, people were hoisted out of their chairs with excitement. The Friday night regulars at the Pacific Club ordered fresh rounds and toasted the repeat champ several times over with ringing and spontaneous cheers. Grannies in a dozen homes forgot their rheumatism and danced happy jigs.

Robby was the man of the hour. And so he will be until the night when he crawls through the ropes to meet Carmen Basilio. And that will be the biggest mistake Robinson will ever make.

BOXLA BITS—Vancouver Pilseners would dearly love to have Bobby Marsh back in the fold, but the blonde speed-merchant is holding out for one thing the Pils refuse to talk about—money. . . . Dave Unwin probably would have been in goal for the Pils Wednesday night, except that he is recovering from a shoulder injury suffered in a California auto accident. . . . Veterans Ed Hamson and Fred Aspin are expected to bolster the Pils before long and Mario Crema is listed on the roster of the New Westminster Salmonbellies.

Orval Tessier of the Quebec Aces stopped a puck with his chin Thursday night and batted in the rebound for the winning goal that beat the Brandon Regals. Which brought to mind an anecdote in that never-ending feud between Whitey Severson and Jack Blonda as to which has the most disfigured nose.

When Blonda scored his first goal for the Boston Bruins last hockey season, Severson wrote him the following note: "Congratulations; but I hear they are disallowing it because it went in off your nose."

MOSTLY ABOUT PEOPLE—The Cougars' Bruce Carmichael, resting from the hockey wars by serving as an assistant pro at Colwood, has been opening a few eyes with acrobatic work at second base with the Farmer Construction team. . . . And former Shamrock goalie Bill Andrews is having weight problems. Willyum recently sweated through a back-breaking workout at the "Y," hustled home to his bathroom scales and found to his horror that he had gained two pounds.

Pete Turko and Joe Kurylo, fullback and tackle of Oak Bay Drakes last season, have been invited to training camp with the Calgary Stampede, thanks to some energetic agency by former Drake manager, Mort Graham, now living in Calgary.

Wind-Up to Swim Season

Victoria Amateur Swimming Club will wind up its winter season with a splash party and award presentations at the Crystal Garden Monday night.

Highlight of the summer season will be the VASC-sponsored B.C. championship gala at the Crystal Garden June 1. Nine provincial championship events and 11 open races will be scheduled in the meet.

Jim McCague was elected to another term as president during tests.

Tom Welburn was named honorary president, and Mrs. Harriet Gordon was named vice-president. Members selected Douglas Dakers as secretary and George Brown as treasurer.

Chosen for the executive were Mrs. S. Powell, Mrs. G. Dufour, Arnold Bailey and Stan Powell.

During the winter season, 45 members passed life-saving tests and 240 qualified in swimming tests.

Worrying Bill, Easy Joe Tangle for Times Crown

Ross Battles Galbraith. For Hugh Francis Trophy

Two golfers who have never won a major title, go gunning for a big one Sunday.

Professional Bill Court, the likeable worrier from Royal Colwood, and Joe Briggs, the easy-going sweet swinger from Gorge Vale match strokes and widely-different temperaments over the 36-hole route at Uplands Golf Club Sunday for the Times Vancouver Island Open crown.

For Court, who has finally attained his ambition and reached a tournament final, it will probably be a now-or-never occasion.

Unable to leave his worries on the golf course, Court has fretted 12 pounds off his slender frame since he qualified with a 78 at Gorge Vale and suffered with aching legs during each match on his way to final. This one, he says, is "my last tournament."

Briggs apparently starts thinking about golf shots when he walks up to the first tee and stows his tee troubles in the locker with his clubs. Owner of a picture swing usually that drops into the groove after a couple of practice swishes, Briggs has often remarked that he would sooner quit the game than spend time on serious practicing.

An eight-handicapper, Briggs was in top form in last Sunday's semifinals at Gorge Vale, turning in the day's most impressive performance as he matched par figures over the first 18 holes on his way to a 7-and-6 triumph over Colwood's Bob Woods.

But Court, who was scrambling in his 6-and-5 win over Alan Reside of Uplands, is a scrapper and noted for his ability to play well enough to win.

Thursday, the Colwood pro served notice that he would be ready for Sunday's final. Playing a practice round over the Uplands course, Court followed his usual habit of getting rid of his bad shots on the early holes then sliced two strokes from par over the last 10 holes to finish with a four-over 74.

Neither of the finalists was given more than an outside chance of going all the way when a record field teed off in the qualifying round March 31. But there were no longer any doubt that they were serious threats for the title when they played a prominent part in the upset spurge in the second round of match play at wind-swept Oak Bay.

Court, who ousted Connie McBeth in the first round, nudged medalist and defending champion Bill McColl out of the running with a thrill-studded 1-up victory before moving into the semifinal round with a 2 and 1 win over Gorge Vale pro Joe Pryke.

Briggs sidelined Fred Ross in his first match then crushed Vince Clarkson, who was defeated in last year's final by Laurie Kerr, 5 and 4, in the second round. The quiet tiger continued along the title trail with another 5 and 4 win, this one against Roy Chappell in the third round.

Court and Briggs both depend mainly on their short games and Sunday's final could develop into a down-to-the-wire battle of short irons and putters that could be decided by the breaks around the greens.

Neither is a long hitter and they may have trouble matching par figures on the long first nine at Uplands, but they have the shots to take advantage of the shorter holes on the course's back nine, which has earned the title of "birdie alley."

Uplands Provides Versatile Test

Starting with the straight 439-yard first hole and including the 438-yard, par-four sixth and 508-yard, par-five seventh hole, the front nine covers 3,345 yards with a par of 35.

The back nine, also with a par of 35, extends only 2,874 yards and accurate work around the greens can keep a golfer below regulation figures on the tree-lined holes.

Toughest par on the incoming nine is the par-four 12th, which stretches 454 yards from tee to flag. The other long hole is the dog's-leg 14th, a 445-yarder with a par-five rating and an inviting birdie target to a straight hitter.

A new champion will also be crowned in the handicap division. Dr. Roger Ross and Jack Galbraith square off in the 36-hole final for the "B" championship and the Hugh Francis Trophy, won last year by George Buckingham.

The championship final for the Times Trophy will get away at 9.30 and the second trip around the well-wooded Uplands layout will start at 1.30.

Galbraith and Ross will start 10 minutes behind the open final finalists on each round.

Prizes won during the tourney will be presented at the clubhouse following the matches.

TRACK TO BE PAVED

Gas Buggies Roar In Speedway Opener

Bigger and better than ever will be the theme when stock-car drivers roar into Speedway tonight.

Races at the Millstream Road oval are scheduled for each Saturday night through the summer and at least three afternoon holiday cards are also planned. Each card will include time trials, a trophy dash, four heat races and a main event.

Although the stockers will see the most action during the season, speedway officials have made plans to include racing dates for sprint cars and possibly midget machines.

A major change in due for the Langford track on June 8, when the dust and dirt will disappear under a paved surface. Drivers, operating on dirt until then, will not be forced to break their schedule for the six-day paving job.

Hardtop will also be laid down around the stands and additional safety lights will be installed.

SEVEN-MAN CARS

Adding to the new look will be seven new cars, which will be in action this season for the first time and increase the number of machines to a new high. Included in the newcomers is a car assembled by Grant King and scheduled to be driven by Ed Kostenuk, which may be one of the hottest stockers in the northwest.

Spirited rivalry between Victoria wheel-jockeys and up-Island drivers shows no sign of diminishing. The entire up-Island contingent, led by last year's Gold Cup winner, Ed Pottinger, went through a recent tune-up session at the Langford track and promises to provide even stiffer competition than last year.

Old reliables from the Victoria club who are returning for another season are Island champion and popular driver pool winner Lamont Brooks, point champion Dick Willoughby, Dave Cooper, Dick Varley, Phil Lambright, Gerry Sylvester, Bert Gilmour and Pigger Q'Dell.

Time trials for tonight's opening meet start at 7.30 with the first race due to roll at 8.

Colwood Golf Draw

Draw for Helen Crowe Trophy, Ladies "B" championship at Royal Colwood Golf Club Sunday follows:

10.30—Mrs. Petri vs. Mrs. D'Easum.
10.35—Mrs. Vale vs. Mrs. Bradley.

INJURY STRIKES MANCHESTER U.

Aston Villa Cup Champion

LONDON (AP)—Aston Villa defeated injury-hit Manchester United 2-1 today in the English Soccer Cup final before a sellout crowd of 100,000.

Manchester's hopes of becoming the first team to win the English League and Cup double in 60 years faded in the sixth minute when goalkeeper Ray Wood was carried off on a stretcher.

Wood severely injured his jaw in a collision with Villa left winger Peter McFarland. Wood came back after about 30 minutes, looking pale and in pain. He played on the wing.

Manchester started the second half without Wood. But after 10 minutes he returned to the field and played on the wing. Wood took over in goal seven minutes from the end, but it was too late. The handicap proved too much for the Manchester team.

McFarland got both Villa goals in the 67th and 72nd minutes.

Manchester rallied strongly and centre forward Tommy Taylor scored for United in the 83rd minute. That was the signal for Wood to take over from half-back Danny Blanchflower, who had played brilliantly as Wood's substitute in the Manchester goal.

Manchester threw everything into the attack. They crowded round the Villa goal but Villa's defence held out for its seventh cup triumph in the 86-year-old competition—a record.

Juvenile Boys' Softball League Starts Monday

Four teams of the seven-team Greater Victoria Juvenile Boys' Softball League swing into action Monday when McNutts play Fairfield at the Strawberry Vale grounds at 6.30 and View Royal plays Cadboro Bay on the Mount View High School grounds at the same time.

View Royal is a new entry in the league, having played in the Colwood League last year.

FIVE YEARS IN PREPARATION

Leading Photographic Artists Meeting at Empress May 17-19

... creative expert

The Empress Hotel will bulge with photographic talent May 17 to 19 when the Photographic Society of America, northwest region, will meet for its third annual convention.

James A. McVie, APSA, who started to plan five years ago for the event, said up to 500 registrations are expected. Although designed as a session for PSA members of B.C., Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, already registrations have been received from Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta, New York, Michigan, California and Pennsylvania, in addition to the member areas.

The convention actually will be a photographers' workshop, with lectures by the top photographers in North America in the fields of motion pictures, nature

Some of the well known photographers to be here will include Lowell Miller, of Rochester, N.Y., a leading pictorial artist; John R. Hogan of Wynnewood, Penna.; Alfred R. Smith, of Seattle, a leading nature authority who won acclaim in 1898 for his Alaska gold rush pictures; Jean Elwell, Detroit; Boris Dobro, Santa Barbara; Rex Frost, Toronto, and many others.

M. M. Phegley of Glendale, Calif., PSA president, will be here with at least 13 PSA zone directors and district representatives.

Mr. McVie said the PSA, largest photographic organization in the world, is non-commercial, and deals with photographic principles only. Its members include both amateur and professional photographers.

Convention dates were arranged to give visitors an opportunity to stay over and see the Victoria Day celebrations May 20.

study, color and pictorial work.

Despite the fact that the best in the business will be here, Mr. McVie said the majority of the clinics and discussions will be of a nature to be enjoyed by all but the ranker duffers. Non-members may register for the sessions, he said.

Three outside "shooting sessions" have been scheduled. Saturday night, at the conclusion of a banquet in the Crystal Ballroom, interested photographers will make studies of the illuminated Parliament Buildings.

On Sunday, those interested in sunrise lighting effects will meet for a session at Thunderbird and Beacon Hill Parks, and Sunday afternoon a tour has been arranged to Butchart's Gardens.

A picnic supper will be served, and time will be allowed to photograph the gardens in both natural and artificial light. An additional feature will be the presence of models wearing national costumes at appropriate spots in the gardens, such as Hollanders at the tulip displays, and Orientals at the Japanese gardens.

Another highlight will be the presentation of a motion picture by Dick Bird of Regina on Bermuda. Parts of the film, showing for the first time in Canada, will be included in a Walt Disney production to be titled "Bermudiana."

Specific items on the agenda are as follows: Friday, tour of the city, showing of color shots from the Canadian Rockies by Victoria artist Edward A. Goodall, and color shots made by Floyd B. Evans in Death Valley; Saturday, official opening, and clinics on making studio prints, motion pictures, color work, black and white photography, nature shots, and creative photography; Sunday, use of props, color exhibitions, and dark-room techniques.

Some of the well known photographers to be here will include Lowell Miller, of Rochester, N.Y., a leading pictorial artist; John R. Hogan of Wynnewood, Penna.; Alfred R. Smith, of Seattle, a leading nature authority who won acclaim in 1898 for his Alaska gold rush pictures; Jean Elwell, Detroit; Boris Dobro, Santa Barbara; Rex Frost, Toronto, and many others.

Egg Stockpile To Control Price Under Scrutiny

Methods of storing eggs to avoid price-busting over-production problems will be studied at a special meeting of the Lower Vancouver Island Poultry Producers' Association Tuesday night.

The meeting was called by president V. E. Virgin following an announcement Friday that all sizes of Grade A eggs would be reduced 3 cents, and Grade B, 2 cents. Retail prices are expected to be adjusted in most stores next week.

The reduction, caused by a surplus of eggs on Vancouver Island, brought wholesale prices to a 10-year low in this area.

"The irony of the situation is that the Island is still a deficiency area as far as eggs are concerned," Mr. Virgin said today. "Most of the chain stores and department stores get their eggs from the mainland."

With the decrease, Island producers must accept less than cost price for their eggs, he said.

"It costs about 35 cents a dozen to produce eggs," Mr. Virgin said. "Current retail prices are 51 or 52 cents a dozen for large, 49 or 50 cents for medium, and 46 for small."

Mrs. Anne McGee was elected president of the Baha'i Spiritual Assembly of Victoria at a recent annual meeting. Bill Duckitt was elected secretary, and Mrs. Nan Greenwood, treasurer. Tenth annual convention of the Baha'is of Canada was held at Toronto April 26-28.

William Urlacher, Langford, was fined $100 and $5.00 costs in Colwood RCMP court Friday when convicted of consuming liquor at a public dance at Luxton.

BRAWN of Gordon Gordienko enabled him to smash down door of burning house in what turned out to be unnecessary rescue attempt. The building was empty.

Man Risks Life In House Blaze

A Victoria athlete, ex-navy man, and club steward risked his life early today when he broke into a blazing house to rescue the occupants.

Gordon Gordienko, 37, saw the fire and thought there might be people trapped inside.

As it turned out, the house was empty.

On his way home from his job at the Sports Club, he saw flames reaching out from window and roof of a house at 126

Douglas. He ran through the adjacent schoolyard, Beacon Hill, and reached a telephone, where he turned in the alarm.

He then ran to the house and broke down the front door. Inside there was flame and smoke. He shouted again and again:

"Fire! Anyone here! Fire!"

The heat got him, and "the place sort of blew up."

He added, "I took off fast and there was no sense in staying there. That was it when the place blew."

Mr. Gordienko, who lives nearby at 29 Paddon, said he acted as he did "because I thought there would be somebody in there."

He was inside the blazing building several minutes.

"It just went poo-off. It went up faster than you could shake a stick."

Mr. Gordienko is a veteran of 4½ years in the navy and weighs 240 pounds.

"No, I had no trouble breaking down that door," he recalled.

"And I'm sure glad there was nobody home."

Mr. Gordienko is well known to many of Victoria's sport fans. He has played in the Victoria Intermediate Canadian Football League for the past few seasons and has appeared in the professional wrestling ring on several occasions.

The fire, of undetermined origin, caused extensive damage to the house, once owned by the Lenfesty family.

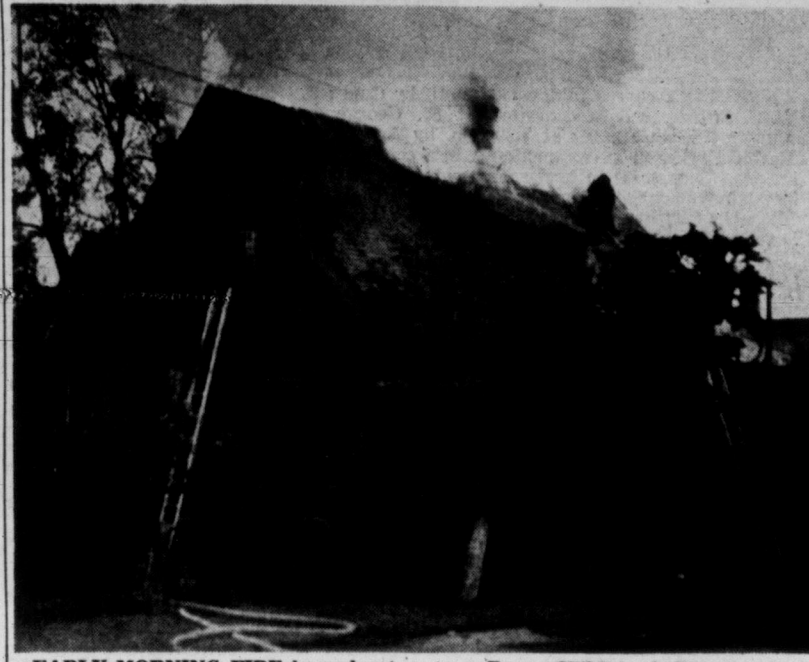

The building had recently been vacated.

INVESTIGATION

City fire department was making a routine investigation this morning, but was unable to contact the present owner, believed to be former alderman R. P. Macmillan.

Much of the interior was gutted and a large portion of the roof destroyed.

It is believed the house was due to be demolished soon.

EARLY MORNING FIRE burned out near Beacon Hill School. Flames gutted old city home at 126 Douglas Street, building, ate through roof.

Tot's Rib Fractured In Street Accident

Seven-year-old Bill Muggeridge, 1705 Garnet, received a fractured rib, two broken teeth and bruises when he was in collision with a car on Shelbourne near Garnet Friday at about 2:35 p.m.

Jubilee Hospital reported his condition satisfactory today.

Saanich police said the boy jumped over a ditch and ran into the path of a car driven by Geoffrey Vantreight, 76, 4423 Tyndall.

Three persons were given hospital treatment for minor injuries received in auto accidents Friday evening to early this morning.

Alfred Dowell, 66, 30 Howe, received chest injury when the car he was driving collided with a pole on Rockland at about 6:15 p.m. He was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and discharged.

Also the victim of collision with a pole was Gerhard Huetzelmann, 147 Ontario, whose car struck a telephone pole in the 300 block King George at about 1:45 a.m. today.

He was treated for a leg injury at Jubilee Hospital and discharged. Total damage to car and pole was about $650.

Kenneth Jones, 30, RCN, was a passenger in a car in collision with another auto at Yates and Douglas at 1 a.m. today, and was taken to Jubilee with minor cuts, then transferred to HMCS Naden Hospital.

Car driven by Raymond Barrett, 2817 Adelaide, was stopped at a red light on Douglas when struck on the rear by a car driven by George C. Hunter, 3217 Quadra, causing heavy damage to both.

Hunter was fined $250 and his licence suspended when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to a charge of impaired driving.

Funeral Thursday For Fishing Guide F. E. 'Doc' Smith

Funeral will be held Tuesday from Hayward's for well-known fishing guide and First World War veteran Francis Edgar W. (Doc) Smith, MM, who died today in the Veterans' Hospital, aged 82.

A native son, he was a lacrosse player in his youth, served overseas with the 102nd Battalion and for many years was a fishing guide at Brentwood Bay.

His decoration, for service in the field, is one of the highest granted to non-commissioned men.

He lived here at 2565 Empire. Funeral will be at 1:30 p.m. with Canon George Biddle officiating, and burial will be in the family plot, Ross Bay.

Survivors include two daughters, both of Victoria, Mrs. H. W. Mayar and Mrs. Dorothy White; four grandchildren and seven-great-grandchildren.

$5,000 Bail Set In Arson Case

Two Sooke men, Rudolph Arthur Vowles, 23, and Stephen Gregory Ward, 19, had bail set at $5,000 each Friday in Colwood RCMP court.

They are charged with arson in connection with a fire which destroyed a barn at Sooke last Saturday.

DR. ANNE STEEL

CITY WOMAN UNCONSCIOUS 12 MONTHS

Victoria doctor, Anne Steel, begins her second year in a coma Monday, virtually unchanged from the day a horse tossed her and rolled on her head near Osyoos.

She will be 37 years old next month.

The accident occurred after she took her 10-year-old daughter, Philippa, to a riding stable May 6, 1956. When the horse chosen for the girl looked frisky, Dr. Steel mounted for a trial ride.

Of late years she was unaccustomed to horseback riding and was not wearing riding clothes.

The horse apparently reared and slipped backwards on rocky ground, landing on Dr. Steel.

She underwent brain surgery when she was brought to Victoria two days after the accident.

Jubilee Hospital reports her condition unchanged since last year.

Dr. Steel is also mother of a son, Tony, five.

Ex-Victorian Archie Muir Dies in Ottawa

Former Victoria sportsman and businessman, Archie Muir died suddenly in Ottawa Friday.

His body will be brought here for burial following funeral services in Vancouver Monday.

A resident of this city for many years, Mr. Muir, 65, had recently retired in the mainland city. He was an interviewer and counsellor for the Department of Veterans' Affairs.

Born in Scotland, he came to Victoria prior to First World War then returned overseas to serve as a pilot in the RCAF. After the war he entered the automotive business in Masters Motor Co. Ltd., which still operates at 815 View.

Later he was appointed sales representative for Western Canada for General Motors Oldsmobile and was employed in Edmonton and Vancouver. He served in Second World War in the RCAF in an administrative capacity and joined DVA after the war.

In Victoria he was president of Gyro in 1926, later organized and served as first president of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce.

SOCCER PLAYER

In sporting circles he was known as an outstanding centre forward on Victoria West soccer teams and was the only man in Canada to score against visiting Scottish internationals. For years he has attended golf tournaments here.

Death came suddenly while he was visiting with his son, William, and grandson at Ottawa. Only other survivor is his widow Gertrude, resident in Vancouver.

Funeral will be conducted at 4 p.m. Monday at T. Edwards Memorial Chapel, Granville at 10th, in Vancouver. Burial will be at Royal Oak Burial Park, Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. Hayward's B.C. Funeral Co. Ltd. will conduct arrangements. The body is being flown west.

RCMP Announce Promotions in 'E' Division

Promotions in E Division of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police were announced today by Assistant Commissioner C. W. Harvison, officer commanding.

Promoted from sergeant to staff sergeant are: J. H. S. P. Jones and W. F. Austin, Victoria; J. W. Todd and A. Wildgoose, Prince Rupert.

From corporal to sergeant: S. P. Gregory and J. L. Cotter, Victoria; M. H. McLeod, Nanaimo.

From constable to corporal: P. N. Burke and D. W. Dreaper, Victoria; A. J. S. Band, Lake Cowichan.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Dominion president Edward Burgess of Ottawa will meet with executives of Canadian Legion groups here May 15. J. E. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the Esquimalt branch, announced today.

Dennis Labreque today won a "fork lift rodeo" or driving competition for the B.C. Forest Products Ltd. employees who drive the "jitneys" used to carry and stack timber products in the company's yards.

In second place was Andy Ustick, and John World, last year's champion, was third. A total of 15 drivers, including two from Youbou, took part in the competition, held in connection with the company's "Safety Day" program. All three winners were from Victoria.

Victoria Aged Pensioners Association No. 3 will meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Britannia Legion hall.

Langford 18-year-old Robert Rony Fraser, 1005 Dufford, was fined $200 and $3 costs in Colwood RCMP court Friday on conviction for permitting minors to consume liquor in a dwelling in his charge.

In the absence of his family, police said, Fraser held parties at their home on weekends.

Fire engines screamed up to a stalled cab in Saanich early today and startled the driver who had just radioed his office saying he had a "flat tire."

The taxi dispatcher, thinking the driver had said "cab fire," sent Saanich firemen from the Shelbourne hall to the scene on Carmen.

The rookie driver was so startled by the turn of events he could barely explain what started it all.

The fire department boys moved quietly away.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston will speak May 7 on projected development in B.C.'s northland at the final meeting for the year of the Victoria section, American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

The dinner gathering, in the Montreux restaurant starting at 6 p.m., will include election of officers.

MONDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Gyros: Empress Hotel, noon luncheon. Dr. F. T. Fairley, Victoria MP, will speak on his recent trip to India with UNESCO.

Toastmasters No. 531: Pacific Club, 7:15 p.m., ladies' night meeting.

Mrs. Gordon Wismer is the new president of Victoria Antiques Dealers' Association, following elections at a recent annual meeting. Other officers are Mrs. V. Bartholomew, secretary-treasurer, and directors H. Robinson, B. R. Fibiger and T. Juelsberg.

Plans were outlined for an Antique Dealers' Fair at the Empress Hotel, Oct. 21-23.

Clear skies tonight and warm, sunny weather Sunday, were predicted today by weatherman William Mackie.

Winds will be limited to an afternoon sea breeze and temperatures will range between a minimum of 45 degrees tonight and 65 degrees Sunday.

Mrs. Anne McGee was elected president of the Baha'i Spiritual Assembly of Victoria at a recent annual meeting. Bill Duckitt was elected secretary, and Mrs. Nan Greenwood, treasurer. Tenth annual convention of the Baha'is of Canada was held at Toronto April 26-28.

William Urlacher, Langford, was fined $100 and $5.00 costs in Colwood RCMP court Friday when convicted of consuming liquor at a public dance at Luxton.

Britain 'Exporting' Weaklings? Certainly Not, Say Immigrants

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Is Canada getting Britain's weaklings?

"Certainly not," say most of the migrants from old England and bonnie Scotland who have settled in Greater Victoria in recent times.

"Stuff and nonsense," exploded burly Reginald Stone, former London theatre organist who came here 16 months ago and now broadcasts daily over a local radio station.

"Absolute nonsense," erupted Harry L. Soames, Manchester

salesman who has found his feet with a Victoria firm.

"Not nonsense at all—the plain unvarnished truth," averred pretty, outspoken Mary Ford, a Yorkshire baker.

In many cases, says Mr. Soames, it is the weaklings who are staying at home. They would rather live in security on a low wage, "filling up forms and taking orders from petty government officials," than take their chance in a new country where competition is harder, keener.

This chorus of indignation—with a few dissenters—is directed at Gilbert Harding, the contentious BBC broadcaster who wrote in Maclean's Magazine last week that it is the weaklings who are coming to Canada because conditions in Britain are not so "soft" as they were.

"For the first time in years the British boss is off his knees and people are getting the sack," Harding wrote.

"In short," he added, "a whole generation has come to rapid (some might say rank) growth and maturity under the protecting glass of the welfare state."

Harding described the mass migration from Britain to Canada as: "The panic surge into the air of young pigeons, crumb fed and a bit out of condition, taking wing at the mere back-firing of a car."

Mr. Stone, the organist, had a ready reply for Mr. Harding, the TV trumpeter.

"He is a man with a line who, by making rash provocative statements, has made a good thing for himself out of radio and TV."

"His income from this source is considerable and it is easy for him to point the finger of scorn at people on much lower incomes who are leaving the country to better themselves in a new land."

But Harding has some supporters here too.

"A lot of the people who are stampeding out of Britain today will be back here inside a year," predicted Mrs. Mary Ford, who hails from Sedburgh, Yorkshire, about 10 miles south of the Scottish border.

"They are, as Mr. Harding says, getting out because things are not so easy since the Suez crisis. They've been used to state security and easy jobs since the war and they hope to find them in Canada."

"They won't — and then you'll see them queuing up to book a passage home."

Mrs. Ford and her husband, a motor engineer, flew out to Victoria last month—but not because of recent hardships in Britain.

"We'd been saving to go to Canada for two years," said Herbert Ford, an ex-Royal Navy man. "We always figured there was more opportunity here. But we didn't come out with any chip on our shoulders about Britain."

"The people who grumble back there will probably grumble here, too."

Back to Mr. Stone. He admits there is an "element of slackness" in some British industries, and he adds:

"The young Britons of today never knew the hard school of the depression years and jobs have been easy to get since the war. But I don't believe these are the types who emigrate."

"Most emigrants are people who are looking for opportunity and are not afraid of hard work."

This also is the view of Vancouver columnist Eric Nicol writing in The Province. He sees the average British emigrant as an "eager beaver, tired of living in a stagnant pond . . . a beaver with gumption enough to get up and go where he'll be better off by a dam-site."

What do you think?

Missionary, 75, Coming to West Revives Memory

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer
MONTREAL (CP) — A former missionary with the Blackfoot Indians of Alberta, now white-haired and 75 years old, heads westward today in quiet pursuit of old memories.

For Rev. Thomas Castle of Camford, Eng., the west in his heyday as a young preacher was a wild world of cowboys and Indians and scarlet-coated policemen.

"Ah," says he now, almost 50 years later, "those days have gone by."

Retired from his English parish, he arrived here Friday aboard the Empress of England on the way to Calgary where he will serve for six months at St. Cyprian's Anglican Church.

Spry and sparkling, he relishes the past, telling fondly of his "adventures" in a crisp, pulpit-preaching voice.

"Adventures?" he says. "I remember the wooden hotel where I spent my first night in Calgary. There were so many bugs I looked like raspberry jelly in five minutes."

Like an old uncle talking to young 'uns, he tells of the time one of his "boys" got in trouble in a gambling saloon.

"It was a Chinese place, and they smoked opium," he says, leaning closer for suspense.

"I summoned the police officer—his name was Harold—and he put on his scarlet coat and his revolver. Handsome, he was. When he entered the gambling den, with me discreetly behind, everyone pulled out guns. I thought they were going to shoot us both, but he said, 'Put those toys down, boys,' and they did."

And Mr. Castle saved his man. "I remember driving a horse and buggy across a river on the ice. Suddenly the ice cracked, and we fell to the bottom of the river—about 20 feet. The water had all dried up, leaving the ice overhanging like windows in a greenhouse. So we drove on the river bed, under the ice, and I reached up with the buggy wheel to break the ice when we reached shore."

PIONEER POSTS

He tells of the time he and his young wife rode 60 miles to visit a lonely rancher. "The rancher's wife said to my wife, 'I could eat you—I haven't seen a woman in years,' and I said, 'Don't eat my wife—we're still on our honeymoon.'"

That ranch, he adds, stood where the town of Drumheller, Alta., now is.

His first church was at Fort McLeod, but he later opened churches at Gleichen, Strathmore, and Rosebud Creek.

"Ah, the old days. Why when I was far from home, they'd let me stop a freight train to get a ride."

One ambition he hopes to realize is to speak Blackfoot again. "It's not a written language, but I think I could remember it all. Give me half an hour or so."

AN AUMBRY carved in dogwood motif by Cmdr. H. W. S. Soulsby will be dedicated at St. George's Martyr Church Sunday at 7.30 p.m. by Archbishop Harold E. Sexton in conjunction with a confirmation service. The recess to hold sacraments was donated by church architect John Wade and installed in St. Michael's Chapel this week. Pictured with it, above, is rector Rev. William Hills. (Times Photo.)

CGIT Class Tuesday At Oak Bay United

Rev. E. Laura Butler will conduct a graduation service for 13 Canadian Girls in Training at Oak Bay United Church Tuesday at 7.30 p.m.

Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett will be guest speaker at the ceremony. Valedictory will be given by Miss Mary Gibson, CGIT member at First United Church.

Dr. W. W. McPherson will preach the dedicatory prayer and Miss Avril Hayes, also of First United CGIT, will read the Scripture.

Graduates will be welcomed into the Young People's groups by Walter Jamieson and Miss Fay Jamieson, both of St. Alban's Anglican Church.

Singing will be led by Mrs. J. Turnbull, head of the Metropolitan United CGIT and Gordon Britton of Centennial United Church.

In the graduating class are Darlene Hetherington, Douglas Street Baptist Church; Elma Snider, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church; Diana Bird, Gorge Presbyterian Church; Jean Davidson, Barbara Sherreff, Solongue Beach, Noreen Gordon and Mary Gibson, First United Church, and Sheila Service, Carole Reid, Patricia Ross, Carol Ambrey and Carolyn Hill, St. Aidan's United Church.

Program is in charge of Mrs. Pat Davis, Mrs. A. Hall, Mrs. R. McGill and Mrs. H. R. Harris.

Recent graduates of the United Church Training School in Naramata, B.C., will assist Rev. Douglas B. Carr at the morning service in Centennial United Church Sunday. In the evening Mr. Carr will preach on "Saints and Sinners."

Holy Communion will be celebrated at Christ Church Cathedral Sunday at 8 a.m. Dean Brian Whitlow will preach at Choral Eucharist at 11, and Rev. R. E. H. Howell at evening. Holy Communion will be celebrated in James Bay Hall at 10 a.m.

Rev. Arthur F. Grobe will preach on "Commissioned in Teach" at the morning service in First Church of the Nazarene Sunday. At night his subject will be "Brought Out To Be Brought In."

Sunday service at Garden United Church will be held at 10 a.m. when Rev. E. J. Staley will preach on "The Providence of God." Mr. Staley will preach a Communion service at Wilkison Road United Church at 11.15 a.m.

Rev. A. I. Avery will preach on "Remember the Sabbath Day" at morning service in St. Aidan's United Church. Evening service will be conducted by graduates of the United Church Training School at Naramata. Sermon subject will be "Our Christian Youth."

Canon George Biddle will preach at both services in St. John's Anglican Church Sunday. His sermon subjects will be "Believe Thou This?" and "In Christ Shall All Be Made Alive." Holy Communion services will be held at 8 and 11 a.m.

YOU SAID TO ME -

By ETHEL TULL
A Sunday message of help and comfort for those puzzled, depressed or low in spirit.

You said to me, "I wish I had your faith." When one writes about faith, it is easy to give a wrong impression of one's own experience. To me, as I suppose to most Christians, some moments when faith is very weak.

Sometimes it is difficult to hang on and wait for the purpose of God to be fulfilled. His ways are not our ways, and we cannot always understand what He is doing with us. Of course, that is the very time we find out whether what we call our faith is the real thing or not. It may have been only the determination to get our own way.

One of my great weaknesses is impatience to see results from prayer, and often I have had to cry, "Help Thou mine unbelief," because it seemed to me that God promised something and then held it back. But the older I grow, the more I am sure that if one has faith enough to go on praying, and drawing on the power and love and wisdom of God, then His purpose is fulfilled, and what better can we wish for ourselves and others than that His perfect will may be done in and through us.

My husband and I celebrated our golden wedding anniversary last week, so you see we can look back over many years and trace the way in which God took us through trials and difficulties when we had faith enough in Him to

Some day, your faith and mine and that of millions of others obedient to the voice of Christ, "Have faith in God," will grow until the whole world is won from greed and hatred and war to understanding and love and joy and peace.

Human Relations Seminar Set for UBC, July 8 to 12

Second seminar on Human Relations for Religious Organizations will be held at the University of British Columbia July 8-12.

Sponsored by the UBC extension department, Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, western division, and the Vancouver Civic Unity Association, the seminar is open to clergy, key lay leaders in religious organizations and social workers in religiously oriented agencies.

Among those taking part will be C. Roy Brookbank, executive director, western division, Canadian Council of Christians and Jews; Knute Buitendahl, executive director, Vancouver Civic Unity Association.

Ontario Sailor Welcomed Home—In Police Court

Naval rating Gordon Fraser, arrested at HMC Dockyard Jetty as the cruiser Ontario berthed after a four-month cruise Friday, pleaded guilty in city court today to causing wilful damage to a jewelry store window last Dec. 24.

He was remanded by Magistrate H. C. Hall to May 8 for probation and sentence.

Const. Frederick Acreman, who was on patrol at about 7.30 p.m. Dec. 24, said he heard the sound of breaking glass on Broad Street and investigated.

He saw two men running from a jewelry store at 1321 Broad, the business of H. L. Lyus, and gave chase.

He caught Fraser, who had a cut hand, and whom he quoted as saying, "Don't turn me in. I'll pay for it." Damage to the window was $144.29.

GENERAL ELECTRIC SAVES YOU MONEY ON EVERY DROP OF OIL YOU BURN!

GENERAL ELECTRIC Automatic OIL FURNACE

Fuel Savings as Much as 50% Over Ordinary Furnaces and Oil Burners

It's astounding! For every age and style of home, General Electric has designed and built an automatic oil furnace that gives you more convenience, comfort and economy than you've ever known before. Here's the exact degree of warmth you want—air that's automatically filtered for work-saving cleanliness—circulation to keep your home warm from wall to wall, ceiling to floor. G-E triple air supply is precisely measured for complete combustion—maximum economy. Design, too, is different. So compact it can be installed within a closet or alcove, utility room, or basement corner. And so good looking you can show it anywhere. Works automatically, economically, with dependable G-E performance built into every inch. Discover today how easily and economically you can enjoy the very finest heating system in your home. Look for these General Electric features:

FUEL SAVING G-E "TURN-BACK" FLAME—travels longer, hotter path than ordinary units. More heat mileage for every drop of oil because every speck of oil is turned into heat. No heavy refractory to waste your fuel dollars.

GIANT SIZE BLOWER—Quiet Heat... no crackle-bang stops and starts with the General Electric Automatic Oil Furnace. Rubber cushioned to reduce vibration—entire cabinet insulated with fiber glass—no high pressure blow torch roar.

QUICK-HEATING G-E "SPIRA-FLOW"—heat transfer section of heavy-gauge steel. Welded to prevent leakage. Baffled-in surface gives quick heat. No warm-up wait. More surface for more and faster heat.

SPACE SAVING—fits conveniently into closet, alcove or small corner of basement, recreation room. Modern styling would even look attractive in a room. Everything's inside—tamper proof, safe. No exposed parts to trip over.

PLUS: Long lasting G-E Motor Compressor—Automatic G-E Master Control "Brain"—G-E Non-Clog Burner Head for economical "atomized" oil spray—Safe G-E Flame Protector

"Pre-paired" to add the G-E Air Conditioning unit any time

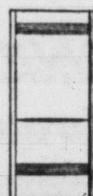

Yes, a wonderful, automatic cooling unit can be joined to your General Electric Automatic Oil Furnace any time at a fraction of the cost you'd pay for a separate air conditioning system. Imagine sleeping in cool comfort on hot summer nights—enjoying balmy spring weather every day. Control climate all through the year for the ultimate in home comfort the General Electric way.

Remember: when you want the finest in heating you want General Electric. There's a G-E Oil Furnace or a G-E Gas Furnace to suit your heating needs.

MARINES STAY

U.S. Fleet Leaving Jordan Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Navy announced Friday that the major fighting ships of the 6th Fleet are moving out of the eastern Mediterranean where they were sent during the Jordan crisis last week. The ships are returning to the central Mediterranean to take part in North Atlantic Treaty Organization naval exercises. Amphibious elements of the fleet, including the reinforced Marine battalion of 1,800 men, will remain in the eastern Mediterranean with some escorting ships.

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFS

Nearly 50 pounds of fish were donated to senior citizens at Twilight Homes Thursday by members of the Victoria-Saanich Anglers' Association.

Through a public service project, the Anglers hope to supply cod and salmon to senior citizens' units each week, and to Victoria Surplus Food Stall each month, committee chairman C. J. Rose said.

This year's convention of the Telephone Association of Canada will be held in the Empress Hotel June 3 to 7 inclusive.

Approximately 125 top telephone executives from across the country are expected to attend.

Case of John Fallerdeau, 8 Cooper, charged in Saanich court with robbery with violence April 14, was adjourned to next Thursday to complete defence evidence.

Complainant is McKinley Mercer, 982 McBriar, who said he was attacked, received multiple injuries necessitating nine days in hospital, and lost between $40 and $50 from his wallet.

Ten-year-old Virginia Bosdet, 1415 Gladstone, was treated for minor injuries and discharged from Jubilee Hospital Thursday afternoon following collision with a car at Fernwood and Gladstone.

Police said she was riding her bicycle when in collision with a car driven by David R. Spedding, 2626 Avebury, at about 3.40 p.m.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

* Right NOW!

Bonus trade-in allowance

Trade-in value of the car you're driving right now is at its peak because of the big Spring demand for used cars. And Buick's big sales volume lets us make you the best possible trade-in allowance. That's one bonus reason for buying into the Buick class : : : right now.

Bonus buy

Buick prices start down low—right next to smaller cars. But you buy so much more in any Buick. There's more style, more newness, more power, more ride stability. And one glance—one ride—in a Buick will convince you. It's easy to see why your next car must be a Buick! And it's easy to understand why you'll be so happy in a Buick.

Bonus resale

A Buick always resells high. And one reason the '57 Buick is valued so highly at trade-in time is its new Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo† —an instant Dynaflo that really means action when you want it. That, plus other Buick features, and Buick's undisputed leadership in style make your new Buick a good buy from any angle.

†New Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

Salsberg Would Lead New Group

TORONTO (CP)—Veteran Communist Joseph Salsberg, avowed foe of Tim Buck for the leadership of the Canadian extreme Left, said today he is prepared to head up an organization for those who have lost faith in international communism.

Salsberg, former member of the Ontario legislature, was defeated by Buck when he tried to lead the Labor-Progressive party away from Stalinism at the LPP convention here two weeks ago.

Longshoremen Win 30-Cent Boost

VANCOUVER (CP)—A wage increase of 30 cents an hour for about 1,800 deep-sea longshoremen in five British Columbia ports has been agreed by Longshoremen's Union Local 501 and the B.C. Shipping Federation.

The increase is retroactive to May 1 and the new contract will be for one year. It brings the basic scale to $2.57 an hour.

Ports affected are Vancouver, New Westminster, Chemainus, Fort Alberni and Victoria.

American Beaten as Syrians Vote

DAMASCUS, Syria (UP)—Syrians turned out in disappointing numbers today for weather-vane East-or-West elections marked by boisterous anti-American feelings and an attack on one U.S. correspondent, Welles Nagen of the National Broadcasting Co.

But despite the heated emotions only 24 per cent of the electorate had balloted by poll-closing time and the government decreed the election will continue tomorrow.

Freedomites
Ask Russia
For RefugeOfficial Request
To Soviet Official

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver Province says that British Columbia's 2,500 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors have officially asked the Soviet government to allow the entire sect to relocate inside Russia.

The newspaper says: "This historic decision could complete a cycle of fury and despair in Canada that started 60 years ago when Doukhobors left Russia in a flight from persecution."

A copy of the Freedomites' official presentation to Soviet Ambassador to Canada Dmitri Chuvahin was given Province reporter Bruce Larsen, the account says. Details were supplied here by a "reliable observer."

FORCED DETENTION

The Province continues: "It is claimed that the decision to desert B.C.'s Kootenay country for Russia was prompted by the forced detention of more than 100 Freedomite children in a special school at Denver, B.C., because their parents refused to send them to school."

However, the actual move to Russia spark probably was kindled elsewhere. Much credit should go to the Communist propaganda machine, the Province says.

"The pro-Communist newspaper Vestnik, published in Russian language in Toronto, in recent weeks has lavished sympathy on the Freedomites who have children detained in New Denver. Soon the Freedomites were observing that 'perhaps only Communists are interested in getting our children back to us.'"

Ottawa Youth
Kicked to Death
In Gang FightFatal Brawl Outside Church
Follows Argument at Dance

OTTAWA (CP)—Rene Jodoin, 17, died today from injuries suffered in a gang attack by a group of teenagers on a west-central Ottawa street.

Police were seeking at least 10 youths believed to have taken part in the attack on Jodoin, his two brothers and two other youths.

Police said the attack occurred on the sidewalk in front of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church on Lebreton St.

The trouble began in the church hall during a youth organization dance. The row began inside when Jodoin, his brother David, 19, and Maurice, 16, and two friends, Bob Clermont, 18 and Michael Morris, 19, all strangers to the neighborhood, arrived.

Rev. John O'Neill, parish priest of the church, was "shocked." The dance was one of a series held in the hall each Friday night.

Father O'Neill said the Jodoins and the two other youths were not members of the parish youth organization and apparently went to the dance helping supervise the dance.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—In a thrilling photo finish with Gallant Man, Calumet Farm's Iron Liege, with Willie Hartack aboard, today won the 83rd running of the Kentucky Derby. Round Table was third.

Iron Liege, stablemate of Gen. Duke, scratched earlier today, was in contention all the way, laying back of the pace-setting Federal Hill down the back stretch and coming on as the field entered the stretch.

The favored Bold Ruler finished fourth. Bold Ruler challenged as the field entered the final turn but didn't have it.

It was the sixth Derby victory for Calumet Farms.

Nine colts started in the classic. Calumet Farms scratched Gen. Duke this morning. Trainer Jimmy Jones made the announcement after the sore-footed colt failed in an early morning quarter-mile test.

Jones said later he would ship Gen. Duke to Baltimore Tuesday in hopes of having the colt ready for the Preakness at Pimlico May 18.

"I expect the injury to be completely healed in a very short time," he said.

Gen. Duke's withdrawal cut the derby's value to $132,050. The winner got $107,950.

More than 100,000 spectators braved unseasonable coolness to see the race. The day was bright today.

GIVEAWAYS WARNING

PM Puts Decision
To B.C. on Power

By PETER MURRAY, Times Political Reporter

VANCOUVER—A clear statement of federal government policy on Columbia River hydro, coupled with a warning to B.C. against any power "giveaway," was made here Friday night by Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

Showing no effects from a strenuous day's campaigning, the prime minister addressed an overflow audience at Georgia Auditorium.

He repeated the offer to help finance Columbia development and made it clear the federal government would never agree to any "short-term bargain" deal with the U.S.

The federal plan is to help finance the project if British Columbia's Social Credit government decides it should be a public power scheme.

"The policy of this government is to prevent any imprudent deal that would jeopardize B.C.'s long-term industrial development," Mr. St. Laurent said.

Although he did not specifically mention such proposals of the Social Credit government as the Kaiser Dam deal, it was obvious he had them in mind.

If B.C. agreed to treat the project as a national venture, financing could be done under a joint federal-provincial Crown company or by a purely federal company.

If B.C. decided, however, to have the power developed by private industry, then there would be no federal aid. The matter was up to B.C.

Standing Ovation by 2,500

Mr. St. Laurent was given a standing ovation by the crowd of 2,500 both before and after his hour-long address.

Another 200 persons heard the speech over the loudspeaker system in the basement, while 150 listened outside on the sidewalk.

The doors were closed at 7:45, some 15 minutes before the PM's arrival, and an estimated 400 people drifted away after finding they couldn't get in. Mr. St. Laurent made a brief unscheduled talk to the overflow before entering the hall.

Inside, he was heckled repeatedly during his speech but took it good-naturedly, firing off

LOUDSPEAKERS SET UP FOR OUTSIDE AUDIENCE

An overflow meeting is expected at the Royal Theatre at 8 tonight when Prime Minister St. Laurent makes his only public speech of the election campaign in Victoria.

Loudspeakers are being installed outside the theatre to relay the speeches to persons standing outside.

With Mr. St. Laurent on the platform will be Dr. F. T. Fairley, Victoria MP in the last parliament; Defence Minister R. O. Campney; F. W. Wilfert, Liberal candidate for Nanaimo; Alistair Fraser, Liberal candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich.

... ST. LAURENT

tential is vast, it is not unlimited and "we have nothing to spare at the moment."

Cheap and plentiful electricity is the province's best guarantee of a flourishing economy in the future, Mr. St. Laurent said.

"This province has one of the world's most marvellous water systems. We must not fail to develop to the full its enormous power potential."

Of all the projects in which the federal government is participating in B.C., including the Trans-Canada Highway, Stewar-Cassiar Road and Alaska Highway, the Columbia would be "the greatest of all."

The prime minister indicated his government will take a strong stand in current negotiations with the U.S. government over Columbia development and downstream benefits.

"Under the Boundary Waters Treaty of 1909 Canada preserves legal rights of the most sweeping kind with regard to rivers like the Columbia," he said.

But he added that Canada "will not take a dog-in-the-manger stand against the development of resources that will benefit our good neighbor."

Repeating statements made by Fisheries Minister James Sinclair and Resources Minister Jean Lesage in the Commons on the federal offer of financial aid, Mr. St. Laurent emphasized it is up to the provincial government to decide between public and private power.

"We wanted our views clearly set out so that the government of British Columbia could give full consideration to them in its planning of this power development," the prime minister said.

If it decides on public power, "the federal government is prepared to treat the development of the Columbia River as a national project because it would benefit not only the citizens of British Columbia but all Canadians."

The PM charged that opposition election promises are a "mere cream-puff of a thing."

"Since our Liberal program, while big, has no room in it for election promises, it might, to that extent, be less spectacular than an opposition election program prettied up to attract votes."

"But an election promise, after all, is a mere cream-puff of a thing—with more air than substance in it!"

Mr. St. Laurent said the only election promise he would make is that the "best is yet to be."

He invited British Columbia to vote Liberal June 10 and help increase the province's influence in shaping Canadian progress.

Earlier in the day, Mr. St. Laurent was questioned by reporters on Premier Bennett's objection that he had received no official word of the Columbia power offer.

Asked if he planned to write Mr. Bennett, the prime minister replied:

WON'T SAY

"I am not going to say how it is going to be handled. There is more than one way for people who want to do a good job getting together—not this way or that way but any way that will get us together and get good results for the Canadian people."

The prime minister was introduced at the evening rally by Defence Minister Ralph Campney, who said:

"No Canadian prime minister in all our history is more respected and beloved from one end of this country to the other than Louis St. Laurent."

The prime minister opened with a review of Liberal policies over the past few years.

In the field of taxation the government had followed a program of "prudent administration, sound fiscal action."

Tax reductions since 1953 have resulted in a saving of $475,000,000 to Canadian taxpayers this year, while the country's debt is being steadily reduced.

FULL ITINERARY IN VICTORIA FOR ST. LAURENT

Prime Minister St. Laurent's two-day itinerary in Victoria:

TODAY

5.30 p.m.—Arrives at Empress Hotel; rests in private suite.

7.30 p.m.—Meets Esquimalt-Saanich Liberals at reception at Empress given by Alistair Fraser, federal Liberal candidate, starting at 6.45 p.m.

8 p.m.—Addresses public meeting in Royal Theatre.

10.30 p.m.—Returns to Empress.

SUNDAY

9 a.m.—Attends High Mass at St. Andrew's Cathedral.

10 a.m.—Visits Veterans' Hospital, 2355 Richmond.

10.30-11 a.m.—Boards yacht Flier for fishing trip to government ferry docks, Brentwood.

3 p.m.—Returns to Empress.

5 p.m.—Leaves Patricia Bay airport for Vancouver.

Annual cost of defence has been cut by more than $100,000,000 since 1953.

By granting more money to the provinces in new tax-rental agreement, the Liberal party "shows that it stands firm for provincial rights and firm against centralization."

In the field of social security, Liberal policy is to "move ahead as far as this country can afford," the prime minister said.

OUTSTANDING

He described the new hospital insurance program as "the outstanding Liberal social measure of recent years."

The PM also made these points:

1. The Senate inquiry into land use was a form of "educational" process to be followed by federal measures to make sure that Canadian food production does not fall behind consumption needs.

2. He still hoped to make progress in getting the provinces to agree to make the Canadian constitution completely amendable in Canada on federal-provincial and provincial matters.

3. The Gordon commission's economic forecasts, while extremely optimistic, may be "somewhat pale and timid" to what Canada actually achieves in the next 25 years.

The Liberal leader covered a lot of ground in his 14-hour Vancouver tour, visiting the City Halls of Vancouver and North Vancouver, the Shaughnessy Military Hospital, suburban Burnaby, the new city post office and the North Vancouver Community Centre.

He was cheerful; his step was vigorous and his voice was firm. At Vancouver's North Shore Laurier Club, he hinted he may still be in the political arena in 1961, at the age of 79.

He was wearing the same grey felt that he wore in the 1953 fight. He had had it cleaned for the 1957 battle "and after this campaign, I want to use it in the next ... and I think I will be doing that."

LIVELY VANCOUVER RALLY

PM Offers Heckler Passport to China

By Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—Prime Minister St. Laurent Friday night offered a heckler a passport to China at his big Georgia Street auditorium rally.

The fast exchange came when the prime minister talked of trade, and Canada's decision to open new negotiations with Australia, New Zealand and the members of the future Caribbean federation.

The heckler, who later described himself as an unemployed, 52-year-old CCFer, cried: "What about trade with China?"

To this, Mr. St. Laurent smoothly replied:

"Would you like a passport to China?"

The crowd roared with laughter and applause.

LIVELY MEETING

The Liberal leader's quick retorts produced the liveliest meeting of the campaign.

When Mr. St. Laurent spoke of full employment, and the heckler cried that he'd been without work for five months, the prime minister replied:

"There is full employment for those who really want to work."

After the rally, the heckler, who wouldn't give his name, became involved in a scuffle in the aisle with a zealous Liberal supporter, but it didn't amount to much.

When Mr. St. Laurent spoke of the Trans-Canada natural gas pipeline, another voice from the floor shouted:

"Hurrah for Tanner! Hurrah for Tanner!"

This was a reference to Nathan Tanner, president of the Trans-Canada Pipeline Company who was reported to have made large paper profits from the public sale of the company's shares.

To this Mr. St. Laurent replied that he did not know Mr. Tanner personally. But one thing he was sure—the Liberal government would do everything appropriate to continue to encourage private enterprise. It was only when private enterprise did not step in to undertake a project that the federal government took action of its own.

He also was invited from the floor to talk about the suicide of Herbert Norman, Canadian ambassador to Cairo, but the prime minister ignored the shouts of "Talk about Norman! Talk about Norman!"

As the meeting ended, one of the hecklers was shouldered by a younger man. Newspapersmen stepped in to break up the clash.

When Mr. St. Laurent mentioned the name of Trade Minister C. D. Howe in connection with the government's attempts to expand trade with other countries, some of the audience hissed.

There was also scattered laughter when Mr. St. Laurent

The prime minister, interrupted while describing the new hospital insurance program as "the outstanding Liberal social measure of recent years," became a bit nettled.

"I'm glad there are a lot of people who enjoy Social Credit, even though their ethics are not the kind that would be recommended by an ordinary social etiquette book," he said.

LET HIM STAY

When a cry went up in the hall that a particularly persistent heckler be thrown out, the prime minister said:

"Oh, I don't think he should be put out. In spite of his interruptions, if he listens to anything at all, he may improve."

Mr. St. Laurent was cheered when he silenced the same interrupter with:

"Don't you think it's strange that you don't get more applause?"

The meeting started with the so far unprecedented happening at the prime minister's public appearances on this campaign—a sing-song.

Three local professional performers, strapped a bass, squeezed an accordion and crooned the latest, and some old, hit tunes.

uninvited. He was absent when the fight broke out.

David Jodoin, 19-year-old brother of the victim, said in an interview that the five went to the hall because the community centre they usually attended was closed for repairs.

"We were sitting down talking in French—we're all French boys—when a boy gave us a dirty look as he passed. He said in English 'what are you talking about.' We didn't pay any attention to him and then a little later we began to dance with some girls."

Bob Clermont, one of the Jodoin party, said that while he was dancing with a girl another youth asked him "why we had tried to pick a fight with his friend—the guy who had made a face at us."

"I told him we hadn't tried to pick a fight, that we weren't looking for trouble, that we'd only come over to dance."

"Then this guy began pushing me around and then he swung on me and knocked me down and my wrist watch fell off."

"After this the priest told us to leave. We decided to leave, because we knew the boys were too many for us and we weren't looking for trouble."

"But when we got outside the gang followed us and there was about two of them for every one of us."

The last barrier to conscientious objectors voting in a federal election has been removed.

Some 5,000 Doukhobors in British Columbia will be able to cast their first federal ballots in the June 10 election—if they want to.

At the last election in 1953, they were the only group denied the franchise under a legal provision covering persons claiming exemption from military service as conscientious objectors.

Since then, the B.C. Electoral Law has been changed to allow them to vote in provincial elections. The federal franchise was automatically extended as well.

National Social Credit leader Solon Low will speak on old-age pensions at a Social Credit luncheon meeting in Loughheed's banquet hall, 1408 Douglas Street, Monday at noon.

Mr. Irwin, former Speaker in the legislature as member for Delta, told a campaign meeting that persons earning enough money to pay income tax should not be granted the $40 old age pension. He stressed that his idea would not affect those who had amassed savings.

He also attacked the "inequitable application" of income taxes, saying that the harder a man works the heavier he is taxed. The provinces were the primary developers of natural resources in Canada, while "Ottawa sits back and skims off the cream in the form of taxes," Mr. Irwin said.

Wedding Guests

From out of town to attend the Wheeler-Liddiard wedding this afternoon were Miss Sylvia Wheeler, Ottawa, who was bridesmaid; Miss Army Bandrevick, New Westminster; Mr. and Mrs. R. Thacker, Miss Maisie Shong and Miss Suzanne Matson, Vancouver, and Mrs. John D. Wheeler, mother of the groom, Ottawa.

ENGAGEMENT IS ANNOUNCED

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia and Mrs. Frank Mackenzie Ross announce the engagement of Mrs. Ross' daughter, Brenda Phyllis Turner, to Mr. John Herbert Norris, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert B. Norris of Montreal. The marriage has been arranged to take place in September. (Photo by Dorothy Wilding, London.)

Wheeler-Liddiard Wedding Solemnized This Afternoon

This afternoon in Metropolitan United Church, Dr. F. E. H. James officiated at a ceremony which united Miss Bernice Helen Liddiard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Liddiard, Royal Oak, and Richard John Wheeler of Niagara Falls, Ont., son of Mrs. John D. Wheeler, Ottawa, Ont., and the late Mr. Wheeler. The bride was given in marriage by her father, and for the ceremony chose a charming gown of white nylon tulle. The floor-length skirt was fashioned in handkerchief layers from the fitted waistline. Chantilly lace edged the tulle tiers and the bottom was a flourish of gathered tulle. Her fingertip veil of white tulle misted from a headdress of seed pearls and cascaded layers framing her shoulders. Her bridal bouquet was a cascade of pink roses and white carnations.

The groom had Sgt. Ronald Thacker, RCAF, of Vancouver, as best man, and ushers were Wilbert Lindstrom and Hans Lindstrom, uncles of the bride.

A reception party was held at the Cock Pheasant at Royal Oak, where a four-tier wedding cake flanked by white candles was cut by the newlyweds. Dogwood and spring blossoms formed the floral background. Walter Holder proposed the toast to the bride. Leaving for a motor trip through Banff, and across Canada to Niagara Falls, where they will make their home, the bride wore a champagne-toned wool flannel fitted suit with brown beaded collar. Her hat and accessories were in tones of brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler will live at 538 Huron Street in Niagara Falls.

Violet Dawson and Edward Powell Wed in Friday Evening Ceremony

Rev. C. C. Janzow heard the wedding vows of Miss Violet May Dawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Dawson, Victoria, and Edward Arthur Powell, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Powell, 1289 Walnut Street, Friday evening. Spring flowers were placed at the front of Hope Lutheran Church for the ceremony, and guests sat in pews marked with flower sprays. The processional hymn, "Praise My Soul, The King of Heaven" and "O Perfect Love" were sung by the church choir during the ceremony and at the signing of the register. The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Harry Chalke, wore a white satin gown fashioned with classical full skirt on train, fitted bodice and v-neckline with inset featuring lace collar embroidered with sequins and pearls. Her veil of white illusion net was bordered with lace and extended to the tip of the gown's graceful train. A headdress of pearls and sequins held the veil. Her bridal bouquet was of red garnet roses and lily of the valley. Maid of honor, Miss Shirley Dawson, sister of the bride, wore a gown of lavender taffeta complemented with a lavender and green headpiece and a colonial bouquet of yellow roses, mauve sweet peas and white stock. Miss Donna

Chalke, cousin of the bride, bridesmaid, and Mrs. Thomas Sexton, bridesmaid, were gowned in green taffeta fashioned on princess lines. Their headpieces were of lavender and green taffeta. The three senior attendants carried colonial bouquets of yellow roses, mauve sweet peas and white stock. Flower girl, Janice Bruce, wore a yellow taffeta bouquet of yellow roses, white frock and carried a colonial carnations and multi-colored sweet peas.

Thomas Sexton was best man for the groom, and ushers were the groom's nephew, William Parker and Kenneth Schebek. Spring flowers decorated the bride's table at the reception party held in the Club Tango, Oak Bay. Andy Anderson's orchestra provided music during the evening. A wedding cake made and decorated by the bride's aunt centred the table and was topped with garnet roses. Herbert Bruce proposed the toast. Leaving for a honeymoon in Washington and Oregon, the bride wore a coral-toned sheath dress and jacket with flax accessories and gold jewelry. Her corsage was a white orchid. Mr. and Mrs. Powell will live at 1341 Balmoral Road when they return.

First Nuptial Mass Today

As traditional organ music sounded, Miss Francis Johnston, on the arm of C. N. Montague, entered Our Lady of the Rosary Church at Langford this morning to become the bride of George Dorian Elgin.

Father W. J. O'Brien officiated at the ceremony, the first Nuptial Mass said in this church.

The bride, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Johnston of Great Falls, Man., and formerly of County Atrim, Ireland, chose for the ceremony a brown ensemble complemented with green hat and matching accessories. Her corsage was of white and yellow roses.

Miss Yvonne Trotter was the bride's only attendant, and wore a beige suit with matching accessories and corsage of red and white roses.

The groom, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Elgin of Liverpool, England, had Frank Doherty as best man and Joseph Longpre as usher.

Organist was Mrs. O. D. Young who accompanied soloists, Mrs. William Baines. Spring flowers and greenery were placed on the altar for the ceremony.

Following the wedding, a breakfast was held at the Knotty Pine at Langford, where Father O'Brien proposed the toast to the bride.

COLDWELL ON PRAIRIES

Farmers Poorer Than in Thirties

SASKATOON (CP) — CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell said Friday night he has found people in his constituency of Rosetown-Biggar "harder pressed for cash than they had been in the 1930s."

He visited the agricultural riding earlier in the week. Mr. Coldwell made the statement in a television broadcast. Appearing with him was R. R. Knight, CCF candidate for Saskatchewan.

Farm prices across Canada have fallen in the last few years, Mr. Coldwell said. Farmers a few years ago received 12 per cent of the national income; now they get 7 per cent. Meanwhile, costs continued to rise.

Defining the difference between floor prices for farm products, and parity prices, which the CCF is advocating, Mr. Coldwell said that parity prices, which the CCF advocates for farm products, would be based on the relationship between cost of production and what the producer receives when it is sold.

He said he hopes the day will come when all Canadians have a comprehensive health plan. Everyone was entitled to full medical and hospital treatment. It should be as free as education is to children attending public schools. The CCF would not stop advocating this.

He described the proposed federal hospital insurance plan as the most important legislation of the last session of Parliament. But, he said, it was a feeble step when it is remembered that the Liberals, as long ago as 1919, promised a national health plan.

TO QUIT AFTER ONE MORE TERM

SASKATOON (CP) — M. J. Coldwell, national leader of the CCF party, said Friday he will probably retire after another term of office.

Mr. Coldwell, 68, declined to name any possible candidates for his office on his retirement.

Mr. Coldwell was first elected to the House in 1935 and became leader of the CCF in the Commons in 1940.

The proposed federal plan did not cover the largest group in hospitals in Canada—mental and tuberculosis patients.

"Our popularizing of the Saskatchewan hospital plan is one reason the federal government has adopted its plan," he said. Provinces with Liberal administrations had been slow to join. Saskatchewan now had the highest number of hospital beds in terms of population—seven per 1,000—in North America.

Welfare Election?

COWICHAN LEADER — The joy of Canadian politics is that competitors in the art of representing the public outdo one another in their promises of spending the public's money before even the public gets its hands on it.

It would not be fair to say that the Canadian general election campaign now under way is to be a welfare election, but there are signs of it. Mr. Diefenbaker, new Conservative leader, is holding up a $60 old-age pension. The Liberals this year granted a $6 increase to the present $40 universal old-age pension and said this amount would cost taxpayers Canadians $45,000,000. How much will Mr. Diefenbaker's $60 cost, an additional $150,000,000?

Island Firms Get Big Share In Safety Awards

Vancouver Island firms were well represented in the list of winners of B.C. forest products industry safety awards, announced today by the Workers' Compensation Board.

They were chosen according to an accident frequency rate calculated as the number of lost-time compensable injuries occurring in each million man-hours of work in an operation during 1956.

Winner of the multiple logging operations award was B.C. Forest Products.

Other logging division awards for smaller operations went to Cowichan division of B.C. Forest Products; Teakmer Arm camp at Kelley Logging Co. Ltd., on Redonda Island, east of Campbell River; and Fischer and Danielson of Refuge Cove, also on Redonda Island.

PAIDI WINS

Sawmill industry awards were won by Summit Logging & Lumber Co. Ltd., of Paldi, west of Duncan, and Beaufort Sawmills Ltd., Qualicum Beach.

Sash and door industry awards were bestowed on Crowe-Gonson Co. Ltd., of Victoria, and Skipsey Sash and Door Works, Port Alberni.

It was announced earlier this week that Victoria plywood division of B.C. Forest Products made the best safety record in the plywood industry.

More than 2,000 companies took part in the competition. WCB officials said that 1956 was the first year in which the rate for the logging industry was less than 100, and that the rate for the industry as a whole had reached an all-time low.

500 File Past Bier Of Sen. McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP)—About 500 persons filed through a funeral home here Friday night to view the body of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy.

A folded American flag lay on a pew at the foot of the casket, which was flanked by two marines.

Some wept as they viewed the body of the controversial Wisconsin Republican who died Thursday of a liver ailment.

McCarthy's body will lie in state at the funeral home through Sunday. After a service in the Senate chamber Monday the remains will be flown to Appleton, Wis., for burial Tuesday. Preceding the Senate service, a high mass will be celebrated at St. Matthew's Cathedral.

Most of those who visited the funeral home were elderly. The group included only two senators.

One woman repeatedly told those approaching the casket: "People were a little bit too late showing how they felt. Here we are—flags at half-staff, even at the White House."

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said Friday that flying the flag at half-staff was "automatic" when a member of Congress died. Flags were displayed in that fashion at the White House as well as at President Eisenhower's farm home at Gettysburg, Pa.

CUMBERLAND TAXPAYERS NO RICHER, NO POORER

CUMBERLAND—A tax boost of six mills will absorb most of the $28 provincial government grant to homeowners here, leaving net payment for 1957 at the 1956 level.

Mill rate this year is 38.13, including 23 mills for general city services and 15.13 mills for school costs. Rate last year was 32.14 mills.

'Meet Any Attack' NATO Tells Reds

BONN (UP) — The United States and its NATO allies warned Russia Friday night that they will meet any attack with "all available means," including H-bombs.

A strongly-worded communique at the close of the pact council's two-day meeting here flatly rejected the Kremlin's efforts to frighten America's European allies into excluding H-weapons from their soil. The communique said the Russians are merely trying to establish "a monopoly of nuclear weapons on the European continent."

"Such a situation clearly could not be accepted," it said. "The Atlantic Alliance must be in a position to use all available means to meet any attack which might be launched against it," the communique added. "It is the availability of the most modern weapons of defence which will discourage attempts to launch any such attack on the alliance."

N. Cowichan Approves 119-Lot Subdivision

DUNCAN—North Cowichan municipal council has approved plans for a 119-lot subdivision on the eastern border of Duncan, known as the Jaynes Estate farm.

R. W. Whitmore, who represents the syndicate which owns the property, announced Friday that 33 lots will be offered for sale as soon as a surveyor has completed ground plans. Maximum size of lots is 75 by 125 feet.

The subdivision will be served by Duncan city water mains, and subject to the restricted residential area by-laws of North Cowichan municipality. The subdividers will provide black-topped roads, sewers and fire hydrants. Approval has been received from the Central V.I. Health Unit.

H. Galvin Heads Little Leaguers At Chemainus

CHEMAINUS—Hugh Galvin was re-elected president of the Little League baseballers at the annual league meeting this week, and Miss W. Appleby was named secretary-treasurer.

It was announced that four teams will play this year under sponsorship of Kinsmen, Rotary Club, Canadian Legion and Community Centre. All games will be played on a new diamond to be laid out on the junior high school grounds.

Registration of Little League players of from eight to 12 years will be held shortly. Those too young to make one of the four teams will play in a special "farm" league, and those beyond the age limit will play in a league of their own, to be run by the Community Centre.

Water System Assured For Saltair

LADYSMITH—Saltair district will have its own water system this year, according to F. J. Rumble, Saltair Water Board chairman.

A by-law concerning joint operation of a water system with Saltair will be put to Ladysmith voters in May, he said, and if it is passed, then construction of the Saltair system can begin in July.

If it falls, then Saltair can proceed on its own. Mr. Rumble told a meeting of waterworks district ratepayers.

Water rights to 260,000 gallons per day from Stocking Lake have been acquired, he said.

Chief problem at present is non-payment of water taxes. Delinquents face severe measure under the Water Act than the Municipal Act, he said. At present there are $400 owed in delinquent taxes, and the board owes $725 for engineering services.
